'TAKING CASH WITHOUT PROVIDING REAL FIGHT'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Bob Summitt, legal counsel for the World Boxing Association, described Cassius Clay's first-round knockout of Sonny Liston as "a farce and a fraud."

"Tonight was another good example of taking money from the public without giving them a real fight," Summitt said Tuesday night.

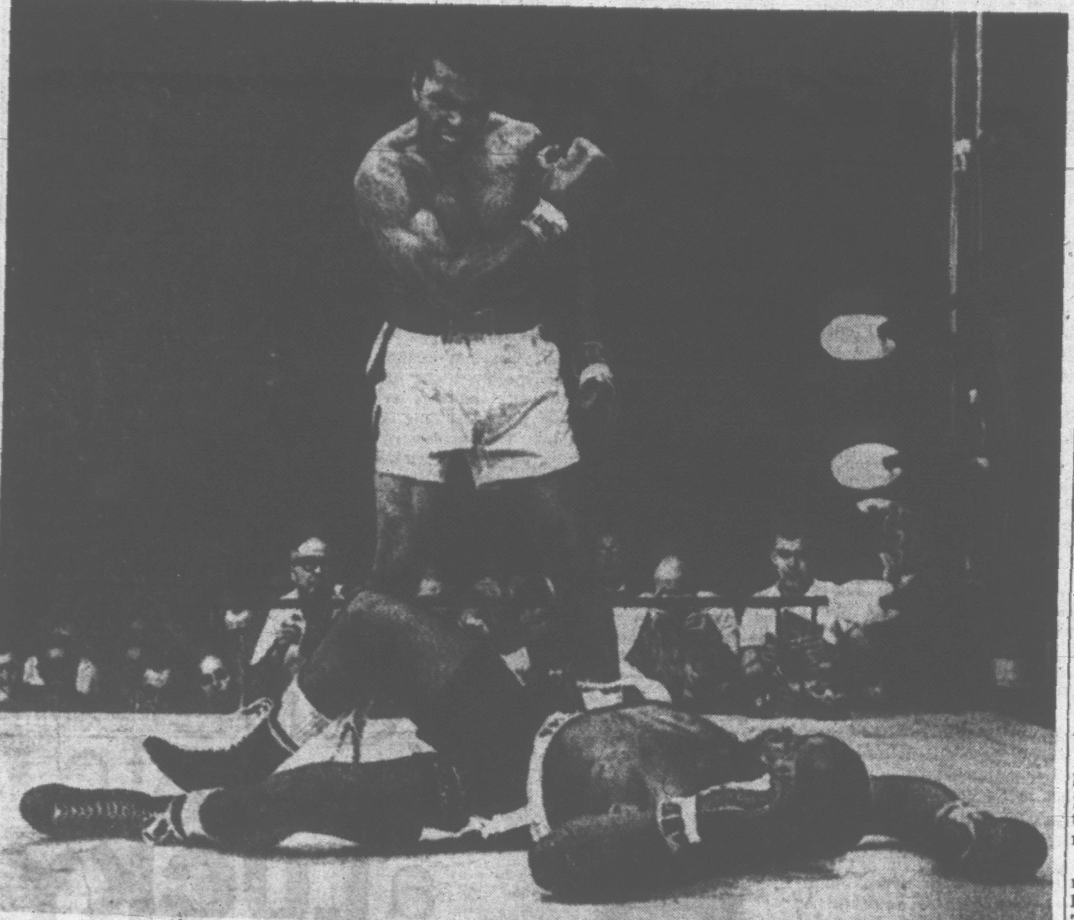
Fight Shocks Boxing World



'PLEASE, MR. LISTON, DO GET UP'

Blackest Night, Says Farr

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When St. Bernadine, the "father of boxing," died in the 13th century, the sport died with him for more than 400 years until the English revived it.

Tuesday night, cries of "fix," "fake," "fraud" were heard in many theatres in Canada and the United States when heavyweight champion Cassius Clay knocked out Sonny Liston with a "phantom punch" in the first round.

The controversial knockout at Lewiston, Me., left a nasty cloud over boxing for the umpteenth time in the last decade, and once again the sport's obituary is being written.

The heavyweight division is the key to boxing's success. When it dies so does the rest of the sport—little by little.

But then along comes another heavyweight match and the prospects of a big purse—and the sport is "revived" until the next time.

And there are potential matches for Clay, against Floyd Patterson or George Chuvalo of Toronto, that could air the boxing arenas once more. For television provides fantastic purses in heavyweight championship matches and as long as it does the corpse at least will remain warm.

REACTION CRITICAL

In London, British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper watched the fight beamed by Early Bird satellite. He commented:

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. London time. It drew wry comments from two former British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to Joe Louis when the Brown Bomber was world heavyweight champion, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing, and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former world middleweight champion, said:

"My wife Barbara can take a

'Squalid Shemozzle' Says Briton

LONDON (Reuters) — European sports writers and fans, with Britain leading the chorus, joined today in deriding the outcome of Tuesday night's Clay-Liston fight.

Today's London papers carried banner headlines in which the key words were "stinker," "farce" and "fix."

The Geneva daily La Suisse headlined its story "Parody of a fight." The leading Paris paper France-soir said: "Boxing, already in a state of confusion in the United States, had no need of this new blow below the belt."

If the British sounded angrier than other Europeans, it may have been because millions of them had stayed up most of the night to see the fight "live" on BBC television via a special Early Bird transmission.

The London Daily Express devoted much of its late edition front page to a six-column headline, "Clay keeps his title in 60-second K.O. farce," over a five-column picture of Liston on the floor with Clay standing over the challenger.

VIP TREATMENT, Japanese style, was extended to B.C.'s Premier W. A. C. Bennett as he arrived at Tokyo airport this week from Vancouver. In a special suite, reserved for "Honorable Bennett" the premier was greeted by a score of high-ranking government officials and a large battery of Japanese newsmen. Mr. Bennett accepts a bouquet of flowers from Mrs. Shinji Nishidera, wife of the president of Maple Leaf Cultural Association, and her four-year-old granddaughter, Sumiko.

BENNETT VISITS JAPAN ROYALTY

TOKYO (Reuters) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, accompanied by five provincial ministers, was received today by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko at their palace in Tokyo.

The British Columbians flew into Tokyo Monday on an 11-day economic mission to seek expanded trade and economic relations with Japan.

This afternoon they were to visit a camera company and three electric appliance makers in Tokyo.

Thursday they will meet Japan's trade minister, Yoshio Sakurauchi.

The visitors already have conferred with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and other leading government officials.

They are scheduled Thursday to visit western Japanese industrial cities for a four-day inspection trip. They will return home June 3.

'KO Punch Hit Like Wet Towel'

NEW YORK (CP) — Sport writers at ringside generally agree that the world heavyweight boxing championship bout between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston Tuesday night was an atrocity.

"The fight to end all fights."

There was much doubt, too, about the punch Clay threw—a "phantom right" Cassius said—and the time of the knockout, announced as one minute of the first round.

Columnist Jimmy Breslin of The Herald Tribune called it the "worst mess in the history of all sports."

"The first punch thrown by the champion was a short nearly invisible right hand that landed on Liston's jaw," wrote Jesse Abramson of The Herald Tribune. "It was his only real punch—after running, backing and ducking from Liston's determined pursuit."

NOT MUCH POWER

Robert Lipsyte of the New York Times also noted that the punch was a short right hand that "did not seem to have knockout power."

"This wildly unpredictable young man (Clay) put another strain on credulity," commented Arthur Daley of The Times. The fight "had to be seen to be believed and even then it was hard to believe."

Breslin was particularly brutal in his comments.

"Clay snapped a right hand from his hip. It was a little, loose-armed punch. But it was a short punch. Short enough to sting. It hit Liston on the side of the head like a wet towel.

"Liston went down. He went down as if he had been shot by a gun. Sonny Liston, who had never been off his feet in his life, who had fought in the ring with a broken jaw, who had kicked back at cops in the back of police stations, who had taken night sticks on the top of the head, went down onto the floor. He went down with his hands over his head, just like Jack Johnson did, and he was counted out in one minute of the worst mess in the history of all sports."

"And even when they were counting," Breslin said, high school kids at the ringside started shouting "fake, fake, fake."

"Oh, Liston looked as if he had been hit. He looked straight across the ring and his eyes blinked and looked crazy while he wallowed on the canvas."

COULDN'T HEAR COUNT

The timekeeper's count had become lost and the referee, Jersey Joe Walcott, was busy chasing Clay to a neutral corner. While he was doing this Liston got up to one knee.

"Nobody had said 10 yet that anybody could hear," Breslin

REVENUE MINISTER:

'No Chance' Of B.C. Bank

VANCOUVER (CP) — Revenue Minister E. J. Benson said Tuesday that Premier Bennett has no chance of getting into banking.

In an interview Mr. Benson said the premier should put his money into universities and let Ottawa look after the banks.

He said the federal government has little objection to a bank with its head office in British Columbia but is not in favor of seeing the provincial government getting involved because banking is a federal matter under the British North America Act.

Mr. Bennett's application to Parliament for a bank charter has been stalled for some time.

"One could guess that almost every business in B.C. would have to deal with a provincial bank," he said.

Asked if he meant such business would be forced into dealing with a provincial bank, he replied that provincial authorities—such as school boards—would find it necessary to deal with the bank.

Private business would likely follow because of provincial loyalty.

"The result would be that the federal government would lose control of fiscal policy, which is constitutionally a federal matter," he said.

"Because of this the provinces are not to be allowed to participate in banking."

Mr. Benson, a chartered accountant, was here to speak to service clubs.

Meanwhile, in the Senate, first reading was given to a private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia. The sponsor, Senator J. W. deB. Farris (L—British Columbia), said he would lead off the debate today.

A similar bill was killed by the senate banking committee last session after many senators objected to proposal by the B.C. government to buy 10 per cent of the new bank's shares. The government has since introduced a revised Bank Act in The Commons that would bar all governments from investing in banks.

Second Site 'Possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said today there may be a second Soviet installation in the vicinity of Hanoi, North Viet Nam, armed with what he termed missile-associated equipment.

He told a press conference this represents a deepening of the Soviet involvement in support of Communist North Viet Nam.

Rusk did not go into details, however, when asked about reports that there are more than one surface-to-air missile installations near the North Vietnamese capital.

But he acknowledged that "there may be a second site in the immediate Hanoi area."

40 TONS OF BOMBS RAIN ON RADAR SITE

Twenty F-105 Thunderchiefs supported by other jets early dropped about 40 tons of bombs on the Hon Matt Island radar site, 140 miles south of Hanoi, destroying and damaging a number of buildings.

The same planes then dropped about 12 tons of bombs on the petroleum depot at Vinh, 150 miles south of the capital. They reported that two fires started by Tuesday's strike on the same target were still burning.

RCMP Shoot Man After Dog Slain

Police said today no charges have been laid against Alison Malcolm Martin, an official of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. at Trail, who was shot in the forearm and thigh after a police dog was killed in a burst of buckshot.

Police said he was shot Tuesday by Const. Robert Stephens, a dog master.

They said two RCMP officers went to Martin's home early Tuesday after being told that another man had been ordered out of the house at knifepoint.

RCMP said the two officers were driven from the front door at gunpoint and called for additional officers from Trail and Nelson.

They said Supt. Stevenson looked into a closed stairway to the third floor and found himself facing a man with a shotgun. He backed away and the dog, which had been ordered to attack, was shot as she leaped at the man, they said.

Const. Stephens then fired twice at the man, wounding him in the forearm and leg, police said.

RCMP said they then seized the shotgun, which had one charge in it with the hammer cocked.

A list of the graduating class of the University of Victoria will be published in The Times Thursday.

Consul to Retire

VANCOUVER (CP)—Avery Peterson, United States consul in Vancouver, retires Aug. 10 after only a year here, but more than 35 in the foreign service.

Consulate officials said Peterson, 59, will retire to his home town, Boise, Idaho.

Legion Votes For Leaf Flag

They voted in favor of substituting the new Canadian Maple Leaf flag, reversing their previous decision on this issue.

They also reversed a resolution from the Nanaimo and North Vancouver Island zone of the Royal Canadian Legion that the Red Ensign be retained as the Legion's color.

A majority vote in favor of the new Maple Leaf flag was recorded at the 27th annual convention of the Legion's Pacific Command in Victoria Curling Rink.

The resolution urged the Legion's Dominion command to "take early action to see that the national flag of Canada is honored and displayed in an appropriate manner by members of the Royal Canadian Legion."

It was opposed by Joseph Cass of Nanaimo.

"At our Winnipeg convention last year we agreed to retain the Red Ensign as the Legion's official color," he said. "I don't think we should go back on that."

Several delegates favored retaining both flags, but the majority agreed this would be impossible.

The convention unanimously voted for an increase in the disability pension for veterans from $2,400 to $3,500—the minimum wage for an unskilled federal civil servant.

NURSERY SCHOOL COMPLAINANT:

John-John Punched My Nose-Nose

NEW YORK (AP)—John F. Kennedy Jr., four - year - old son of the late president, has been attending nursery classes since February at a private school run by Roman Catholic laymen just off Fifth Avenue, it was disclosed today.

"He's a great kid and likes school very much," a source at St. David's School said.

Asked if John's school chums are aware he is the late president's son, the source said: "No, I don't think so. They're four-year-olds."

John's enrolment at St. David's was first brought to light by the New York Herald Tribune with this anecdote in today's editions:

"The new boy punched me in the nose," the four-year-old boy told his mother on coming home from nursery school the other day.

"Oh," said his mother, "I didn't know there was a new boy. Who is he?"

"I don't know," said her son. "He says his name is John Kennedy."

FOSTER REAL THREAT SAYS VETERAN 500-MILER

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Ford-powered cars should be the ones to watch in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Monday, but veteran driver Bob Veith says his rear-engine Offenhauser will beat them in the long run.

"I'm not worried about the Fords," said Veith, of Fort Bragg, Calif. "Actually, I don't think many of them will finish."

One of the four drivers Veith considers his chief rivals is Billy Foster, 27-year-old Victoria car salesman who became first Canadian to qualify for the race when he averaged 158.416 mph in his rear-engined Offenhauser May 16.

The others are Offey driver Jim McElreath of Arlington, Tex.; and Novi drivers Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., and Jim Hurtubise of North Tonawanda, N.Y.

"I think they have the machinery to go competitive for the full race," Veith said.

Veith was in Victoria in December, 1963, to participate in a safe driving campaign jointly sponsored by The Times. He gave lectures at several schools in Greater Victoria and up-Island.

'GIVE IT TO CITY'

Lack of Money Riles Bureau

The threat to toss the operation of the Victoria Visitors Bureau into the hands of city council has been termed "a retrograde step" by Mayor R. B. Wilson.

Bureau president Nick North said Tuesday that the executive was tired of trying to operate the bureau without adequate financial support.

The city makes an annual grant of $50,000 to the bureau but operating costs are $80,000. Recent bids for an increase in the city grant have been turned down.

NO INCREASE

Tuesday Mayor Wilson said the threat to drop the operation of the bureau in the city's lap would not change council's attitude on the amount of the grant.

He said the city was not in a position to provide more funds. "If the people in the industry have not sufficient gumption to work in their own interests, I don't think they can expect the city to work for them," he added.

The bureau committee voting in favor of ditching the bureau said the decision was arrived at "due to lack of financial support from the business community and the refusal of the Chamber of Commerce to support our request for additional funds."

Mr. North said "either the chamber or the business community is apathetic about the value of tourism."

The chamber recently refused to back Mr. North's proposal for an increase in the business tax in the city to cover the bureau operation.

DISAPPOINTED

Chamber president David H. Lawson said he was "very surprised and disappointed" by the action of the bureau executive.

He agreed, however, that some merchants are apathetic to the bureau's work but denied that the chamber or downtown merchants had even been unaware of the value of tourists.

He added that he did not think the city should take over the bureau operation.

POOR SELLING

Fred Martin, past president of the Motels and Resorts Association, said part of the failure of the bureau rested with the poor selling job done by the bureau for itself.

"They should put on a selling job to win more support," he said. If they give up they're a bunch of backsliders. I don't want to see it fold. The bureau is absolutely necessary."

But bureau head Mr. North says a fund-raising compaign was put on last October. "The response was so poor it was almost negative," he said.

WHAT ALTERNATIVES?

"We don't want to turn the bureau over to the city," he added. "But what are the alternatives? You can't play the game if you haven't got the ball."

Mr. North warned that without adequate tourist promotion the entire city would suffer. He said that part of the failure of the bureau to tell its own story stemmed from the fact that the local press and radio did not give it enough support.

HOME GARDEN

Sprays Can Upset Balance of Nature

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

If so, let it go for its hours are numbered.

The spot is actually the egg of a tiny parasitic wasp, one of a group of insects that are of inestimable value to the home gardener.

From this egg will emerge a larva which, according to its type, will consume the caterpillar shortly or devour it during pupation, the period in which a caterpillar changes to a moth.

These wasps are responsible for the peak and low periods of tent caterpillar infestations.

When caterpillars are plentiful they provide a mass of material on which the wasps prefer to lay their eggs. This results in an increased wasp population the next season and a corresponding decrease in caterpillars.

As caterpillars decrease each season so less wasp eggs are laid and the wasp population becomes small, which, in turn, permits an increase in caterpillars.

Other parasitic wasps and flies use grasshoppers and beetles as food for their larvae, while some spend their entire life inside the egg of another insect.

Ground beetles live on caterpillars, and "aphid lions" on aphids, and each predator has another parasite as a control.

These tiny friends of the gardener receive little recognition or encouragement. Poisonous sprays too weak to kill larger insects mean death to them.

Even those not subjected to poisons are doomed when sprays eliminate their food supply.

It is always wise to check first and spray later—if necessary, for when man interferes with nature he usually sets himself a price which he may eventually be unable to meet.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Clear skies in the interior overnight allowed temperatures to drop to near the freezing mark at many points while along the coast readings were held to the low 40s by thin blankets of cloud. The cloud was to linger until noon in coastal districts but the remainder of the province was expected to be sunny today. A weather system will move out of the Gulf of Alaska and over the northern half of the province tomorrow. A few showers are expected on the windward side of the mountains but only bands of cloud should penetrate into inland points.

wrote. "Liston fell back on his rear end. Nobody said 10 yet, that could be heard. Liston struggled up.

"Walcott wiped off his gloves, stepped away and let Clay come in. Clay did some little thing with his hands and Liston went down again and by now the timekeeper at the ringside had caught Walcott's attention and screamed that it was over. Walcott ran over and waved his arms and ended the fight."

"What was clear was that Charles (Sonny) Liston is going to have to explain something about last night to somebody, and explain it damn well."

Breslin said that "all over the country" big money was bet on the fight, with the price 6-to-5, take your pick.

He said: "A racketeer in Miami bet $30,000 on Liston this week. Another wise guy, this one in New York, sent in $7,500 on Liston yesterday afternoon."

STOPPED RETREATING

Daley of The Times said the knockout punch "seemed solid enough." but what astonished everybody was the fact that Liston, the solid oak who had never been knocked down, "was toppled and knocked out by a man hitherto deemed an indifferent puncher."

Wrote Jimmy Cannon of the Journal American:

BLAMES REFEREE

Lester Bromberg of The World-Telegram and The Sun blamed much of the fiasco on the poor refereeing job turned in by Walcott.

"Clay was good, dazzlingly good with his gracefully professional punch-evading and his snap-powered hitting . . . and Walcott was bad, very bad. . . ."

"God save the king.

"The sneaky, half - hearted right hand clip that did the trick seemed nothing more than a flick of the wrist."

Vancouver Times to Be Weekly

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Times announced today that is temporarily leaving the daily field to publish a weekly newspaper.

But president Val Warren announced in a press conference that the newspaper that was first published only nine months ago will gradually return to the daily field.

It would publish first each Thursday. Later there would be two newspapers a week and then three a week.

He said the change was necessary by the "fungus of the lack of working capital." The newspaper had lost $1,000,000 since it started.

Mr. Warren said in his press conference if the newspaper continued as a daily "we would incur further substantial losses for our shareholders."

"We do not want to create any further debt matter. Within eight weeks we will be able to operate at a profit for the first time."

The plan was to operate as a weekly for six to 12 months to "build up a substantially greater circulation with a view to re-entry into the daily field with a circulation of 150,000."

The new newspaper would be a "daily published once a week" and some 100 key men in a present staff of 225 would be retained.

The move did not affect plans by the Times Publishing Co. for four new Canadian dailies within the next five years.

Plans for inaugurating a new daily in Edmonton "have been going ahead for three months and as far as I know there has been 'no change.'"

Boxing Probe Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Robert Michel, (R-Ill.), terming Tuesday night's heavyweight championship fight a "disgrace," today called for a congressional investigation of professional boxing. Chairman Emanuel Celler, (D-N.Y.), of the house judiciary committee, said the bout was an obvious mismatch. He said it indicated that "there's something rotten in Denmark."

The BBC's Harry Carpenter told millions of Britons:

GETS BIG BUILDUP

Other British observers were similarly critical of the way the fight ended. The bout had received a heavy buildup in the British press and on television.

Express correspondent Desmond Hackett wrote from ringside at Lewiston, Me.: "What had promised, or threatened to be, a dance macabre with eight-ounce gloves became a quickstep which will be remembered only as a great fix, or the big phoney."

"The 60 seconds of shame in a fight which may mean the end of boxing in America caused no pain at all to the arrogant, contemptuous Clay . . ."

The London Evening News said today in an eight-column banner: "60-second stinker."

BBC-TV had presented more than three hours of special programs leading up to the fight itself—which lasted 60 seconds.

More than 1,200 Paris fight fans jammed a studio at French Radio-Television House to see the fight relayed by Early Bird.

"It was hardly worth sacrificing a night's sleep," said one disgusted fan.

Swedish boxing promoter Edwin Ahlqvist said today he is bidding for a tifle fight between Clay and Patterson in September in Sweden.

WANTED MONEY BACK

While many fans were disappointed at the outcome of Clay's return bout with Liston, there were no serious incidents. A few persons asked for their money back but Clay's mouth may have prevented further disturbances.

At Richmond, Va., it was reported that most of the crowd of about 2,000 was engrossed by Clay's commentary when the fight was rerun in slow motion.

The biggest crisis developed at the Cleveland Arena, where 5,404 turned out. A portion of the crowd was distraught—before the fight started.

Seems the place ran out of beer.

Chuvalo, who last Feb. 1 gave Patterson a rough time for 12 rounds although losing the decision, remarked:

"My baby could have taken that punch."

TWO-FOR-ONE PAYS

Nina Hilarious; Cast 'Superb'

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

The Wife	Daphne Goldrick
The Husband	Harry Hill
The Lover	Paul Bettis
A Man called Redon-Lemur	John Richards

Two-for-the-price-of-one first night policy inaugurated at McPherson Playhouse by Bastion Theatre, Tuesday, paid off handsomely.

There was a record attendance for Bastion first nights, of 613 laugh-drenched patrons who certainly received double and triple their money's worth in hilarious entertainment.

Fast, buoyant as a hydrogen-filled balloon, sleek as a stalking cat, Nina refreshes like a jet trip to Paree.

There is firm, beautifully integrated team work between the three principals, who are well matched in talent, training and style.

IDEALLY MATCHED

So well matched indeed, that it becomes difficult to discuss them separately, which is as it should be, ideally, in this type of situation comedy.

Nevertheless, despite Daphne Goldrick's swashbuckling verve and Paul Bettis' elegance (he has a panther-like grace in movement), Harry Hill managed by just a little, to steal the show now and then.

Mr. Hill is a delightful comedian. His talent is a versatile bag of tricks that contains subtlty, the naive wide-eyed quality of the born clown, a hint of poignancy and a sure instinct toward the farcical.

Set and costumes were well conceived and properly related with emphasis on bright, clear, slightly sizzling color.

It will be on nightly for the balance of the week with curtain time at 8:30.

FIGHT GATE $4.5 MILLION

LEWISTON, Me. (AP) — Fred Brooks, president of Sportsvision, the closed-circuit company that televised the Clay-Liston fight, said today 515,000 persons at 258 locations saw the bout.

He said the total gross revenue from all sources, including the live gate, radio, and foreign rights, will be close to $4,500,000.

Brooks said Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston should get between $550,000 and $600,000 for their short night's work.

36-Day Limit 'Booby-Trap'

OTTAWA (CP)—Government proposals to streamline parliamentary procedure got a rocky ride in the Commons Tuesday from Progressive Conservative critics.

Marcel Lambert, Edmonton West, 1962 - 63, Commons Speaker in the last days of the Diefenbaker administration, said the proposed 36-day time limit on spending estimates is a booby-trap infringement on the right of discussion by members of all parties.

And he said a proposal to allow cabinet ministers to set a cut-off deadline on debate is "merely selective closure and is the result of trying to import into our Canadian practice a seldom-used device of the British Parliament."

Gordon Churchill, Winnipeg South Centre, former Conservative House leader, said the Commons should allow 150 days to get the business of each session completed.

Within this period, spending should get a maximum of 45 days, not 36 as the government proposes.

SUGGESTS CHANGE

Mr. Lambert called for the removal of supply motion discussion (12 days) from the 36-day estimates period.

He recommended "a flexible formula guaranteeing at least one day's discussion of the estimates of every department in formal sittings of the House" because the government proposal on estimates was no guarantee against a helter-skelter rush on them at the end of a session.

Bulk of the 36 - day period could be taken up by non-controversial estimates with the result, "is an injustice not only to members of the opposition, but to government backbenchers."

QUESTIONS INTENTION

Dealing with the government proposal to allow a cabinet minister to set a debate deadline if an all-party business committee cannot agree on one, Mr. Lambert said it is "an attempt by the administration to choke off full discussion of controversial proposals in that a time limit will be set beforehand."

However, Mr. Lambert agreed with the government proposal to abolish appeals of rulings by the Speaker, but suggested the proposal be tempered by an all-party committee to examine decisions if requested by 10 or 15 members. The committee would produce a recommendation on how to handle disputed rulings in the future.

Eaton War Forecast Not Substantiated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A spokesman said Tuesday the state department has no information from other sources along the lines of a prediction by Cyrus S. Eaton that the U.S. will be at war with China and Russia in one to four weeks unless it stops bombing North Viet Nam.

Eaton, Canadian-born Cleveland financier-industrialist just back from Prague, Budapest and Moscow, made his forecast Monday in a speech to the Economic Club of Detroit.

He based it on remarks he said were made to him last Thursday by Soviet Premier Aleksei Kosygin, to the effect that the United States has declared war on the Soviet Union, that the U.S.S.R. is committed to the defence of North Viet Nam and has "no alternative but to fight."

PROSPECTIVE compromise choice for provisional president of Dominican Republic is Antonio Silvestro Guzman Fernandez, 54, rich landholder. U.S. officials feel he is the man most nearly meeting needs of the leader of a coalition regime. He now is in the country after conferences in Washington. (AP Wirephoto.)

'N-Weapons With Troops'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said Tuesday that "tactical nuclear weapons will remain deployed with frontline troops."

His statement came in response to an inquiry about persistent published reports suggesting that McNamara has decided to pull back United States tactical nuclear weapons from forward military elements in Europe.

The United States has a variety of battlefield-type nuclear weapons in Europe, all under tight control regardless of where posted. Nuclear weapons also are available in the Pacific, although not with forces operating in South Viet Nam.

AT NATO BASE

Uproarious Welcome From Canadians

By CAROL KENNEDY

SOEST, West Germany (CP) A smiling Queen today spent 90 minutes with Canadian NATO troops and their families here in a packed program that swung from the splendor of a military review to the squealing delight of nearly 3,000 school children waving a forest of tiny Canadian flags.

There could have been no greater contrast than the inspection of the Fort York parade ground with its massed bands, precision marching and thundering jet flypast and the shy, simple ceremony at Soest senior school where a 16-year-old girl guide gave the Queen a gold maple leaf friendship pin for her daughter Princess Anne.

ARRIVES BY TRAIN

The Queen's train arrived at Soest after an overnight stop at Duesseldorf. The royal couple were met by Air Vice-Marshal Douglas Bradshaw of Ottawa, the senior Canadian officer commanding active troops in Europe; Brig. Alfred Tedlie of Montreal, commander of the 4th Infantry Brigade Group, and German civic officials.

A 21-gun salute was fired as the car turned into the base's parade ground and drew up at the red, two-tiered reviewing stand. The 100-man guard of honor snapped to attention and the national anthem was played.

After 30 minutes at the base, the Queen started the second and more personal visit—almost a family occasion—at the married quarters on the outskirts of Soest.

A roar of delight swelled along the thickly-banked row of children and mothers, most of whom had arrived in 50 buses from the eight other Canadian Army bases in the area.

The Adaptable Defence

IT IS BECOMING EVIDENT that General de Gaulle considers the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will soon have outlived its usefulness—at least to France. Already he has given notice that he intends to revise it to the point of dissolution when the pact ends its twenty-year term in 1969. The French leader sees various specific alliances with individual powers as more beneficial to France than the existing mutual-defence organization.

France's role in NATO has not at any time been without its frictions. The original impetus of Soviet threats made the organization a necessity for its partners at first. But soon France's manpower and money were being expended in Indo-China, and later in Algeria, and as the European danger diminished the French contribution to the joint defence became less and less. President de Gaulle made it plain that France's military strength would be used where it did France the most good—and that at the time meant abroad. General de Gaulle's more recent opposition to joint nuclear armament and his insistence on a French nuclear weapon have further estranged him from the group.

What the French leader may have in mind for NATO four years hence will no doubt be conditioned by the international situation at that time. Certainly, developments within the last four years have been rapid enough to make a prognostication chancy. But what is easily overlooked is that NATO itself is a fairly flexible instrument. While its sole major concern has remained military—it has never expanded into the economic and cultural fields which were part of the original agreement—it has not in any sense been a rigid organization.

Mr. C. L. Sulzberger in the New York Times mentions a number of ways in which NATO has changed—almost without the attention of its members—during the years. Originally consisting of twelve nations with Atlantic ties, including Canada, the organization added Greece and Turkey two years after its formation. This brought the "Atlantic" group into the Middle East.

The independence of Cyprus in 1960 deprived NATO of the use of the island except for two British bases. Algerian independence removed a large area from French—and NATO—use. Other attrition of the imperial holdings of Britain and France similarly reduced the areas which NATO was pledged to help defend. These were major changes, involving major alterations in responsibility, but they excited comparatively little discussion.

It was the decision to make Hawaii a state of the Union in 1959, however, which caused the greatest extension of NATO responsibilities. In one jump, the North Atlantic body was committed to defend an island halfway across the Pacific. Yet this vast expansion of potential military problems apparently caused little concern.

With so flexible a history NATO may find it possible to survive even drastic proposals from Paris. But the basic fact is one of need: if the Communist threat is sufficient, the defence against that threat will be maintained; if the threat has subsided to minor proportions, then the mutual defence group may be given a reduced status.

It cannot be forgotten that the formation of NATO must itself have contributed substantially to the new atmosphere of lessened international tension. But it is hardly likely that the cause of NATO's creation will have disappeared within two decades of the group's formation.

A Stride in a Slow March

THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANization's unanimous vote last week making birth control a part of its official program indicates both the ground covered in recent years and the distance still to go.

The resolution, approved without dissent, empowers the organization to give advice on birth control to any member nation requesting it. It does not — and the point is emphasized — interfere with the right of national governments to frame their own policies on the subject.

Progress is revealed by the fact that WHO felt itself in a position to call a ballot. A few years ago predestined failure of such a vote, and the disruption it would have caused within the organization, forestalled such action. No one withdrew last week because the organization had finally addressed itself to an expression of opinion on the need to control population.

Over-riding religious antagonism seems to have waned. All nations in the organization recognize the fact that something should be done and are prepared to offer advice to those countries which want it.

This is a step forward in a very gradual journey. The danger is that progress may become a fatally slow march. As has been proved in countries where birth control has been the national policy, there is a great deal of difference between telling people that they must limit the number of mouths to be fed and persuading them to observe the limit.

Two major obstacles to population control have arisen in various parts of the world. One has been formal opposition on the basis of principle or ideology. The other has been ignorance on the part of large sections of the people themselves.

The fight must still continue against the forces of ignorance, but the opposition based on principle and ideology is apparently receding. The hard realities of providing sustenance, let alone a decent living, for countries whose population outpaces their food production are having their influence.

Definition of Obscenity

A TORONTO LAWYER HAS asked the Supreme Court of Canada to hear an appeal by an agency in that city found guilty of distributing obscene magazines and paperbacks.

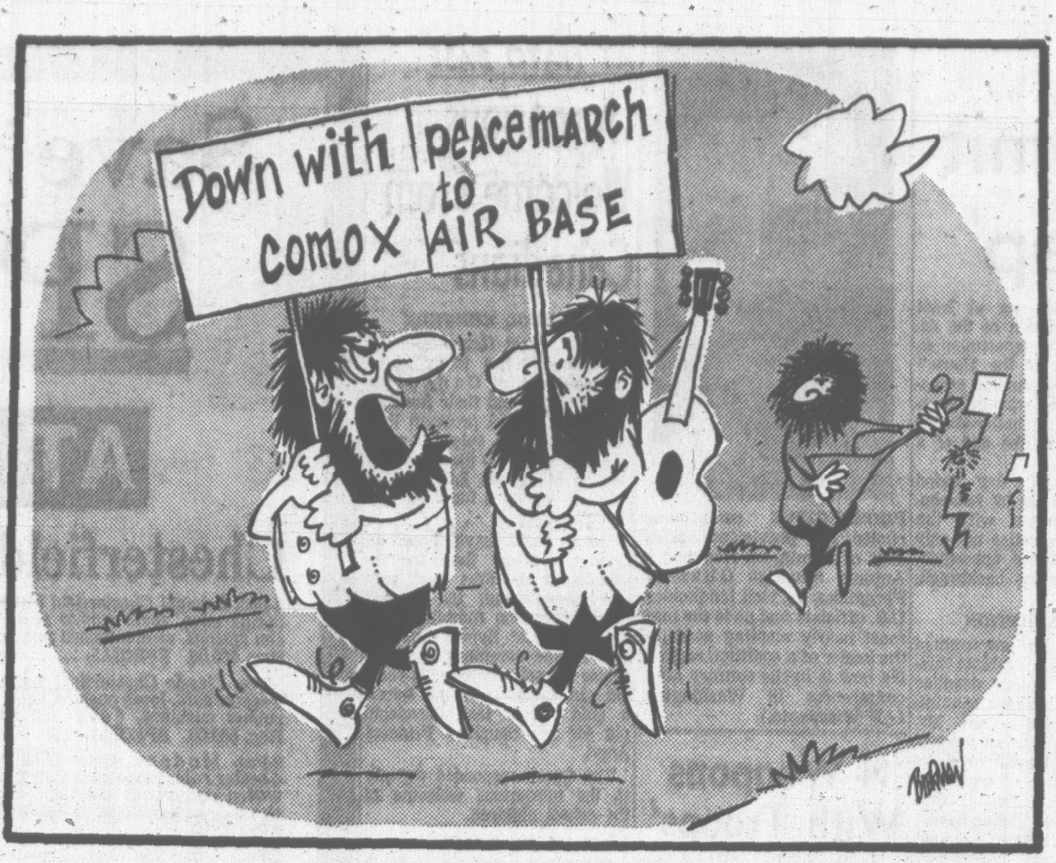
Leave to appeal is sought from an Ontario Court of Appeal ruling which upheld the verdict of a Toronto judge. The lawyer seeks from the top court in the nation a ruling which would establish guidelines for publishers, defining for them what they may print.

He contends that the real test involved is whether or not the magazines represent an exploitation of sex beyond what is acceptable to all Canadians and not to any particular area or group, and he offers the personal opinion that "girlie" magazines may be trashy and frivolous but not necessarily obscene on that account.

What the lawyer is evidently seeking is a clear-cut definition of obscenity—a definition which seems generally to defy the absolute. Passages in books accepted as literature — and they range from the Bible, through Shakespeare and James Joyce to D. H. Lawrence—could, removed from context, be judged obscene. Within context, however, they represent to competent critics, essential elements of works considered of high literary value.

Furthermore, what the Toronto lawyer considers trashy and frivolous in the magazines to which he refers, is declared "pornography for profit" by other elements in the North American community, lessons in depravity to the young and enticements to moral decay.

There never will be a definition satisfactory to everyone on moral grounds. The added complication of infringement on the right to publish, with its element of freedom of speech, makes continued controversy a certainty.



—Bierman, Victoria Daily Times.

ECHO FROM THE PURGES

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

A Letter to Check Stalinism

TWENTY-SEVEN years after Nikolai Bukharin's execution in Moscow, his last letter has been published to the world. In a letter pronouncing anathema on Stalin, the executioner, and declaring his innocence of all the crimes he was charged with—to some of which, under heavens knows what pressures, he confessed at his notorious trial.

The letter has for some time been circulating among higher Communist Party officials in Moscow and certain East European capitals. It has been deliberately leaked to the West to ensure wide publicity by East European Communists, Revisionists in the Khrushchev manner, who are deeply concerned at what they take to be signs of a revival of Stalinist thinking in the Soviet Union.

The letter certainly comes from Russia, and it has every appearance of being genuine—as it is believed to be by many senior Communists. Even if it is not, the very fact that it has been put out as such by responsible Soviet Party members itself carries great weight. It will have the same effect on Communist parties the world over as Khrushchev's denunciation of Stalin in 1956—and, in particular, a citation of Lenin's "Testament," warning the comrades against Stalin, which, although known to the West, was suppressed inside Russia for 32 years.

The letter is short and to the point, and has every appearance of having been written in a hurry and under great stress—as it would have had to be written in the brief pause between torture and execution.

To Future Leaders

It is headed: "To a future generation of party leaders." It begins: "I am leaving this life. I bow my head, though not beneath the battle-axe of the proletariat, which would be merciless, but clean. I am conscious of my helplessness before the infernal machine, using medieval methods and wielding immense power, which fabricates organized slanders and functions with perfect self-confidence."

He goes on, poor, gentle Bukharin, by far the kindest and most civilized of all the Old Bolsheviks, to regret the days of Dzerzhinski, the creator of Lenin's notorious Cheka—begetter of the GPU, NKVD, MGD. The Cheka had been hard because "it was the idea of Revolution that directed all its actions, that justified harshness towards the enemy, and protected the State from counter-revolution." But now the tradition of the Cheka had been betrayed by the NKVD, "a resurrected organization of unscrupulous, debased, well-fed officials."

"Acting in servile compliance with Stalin's pathological distrust—I hesitate to say more—they perpetrate their vile deed in pursuit of distinction and fame. The NKVD can crush to dust any member of the Central Committee, any member of the Party, transforming him into a treacherous terrorist, deviationist or spy."

This had been done to him, Bukharin, by methods which he does not specify. He declares his innocence, and goes on sadly to say: "A head as totally innocent as mine will bring down with it yet more thousands of innocent people" — because to fabricate the case against Bukharin the NKVD and the State Prosecutor Vynshinky (whom Bukharin does not mention) had to invent a vast, organized conspiracy.

Bukharin and others were accused of working to destroy the achievements of the Revolution and to restore capitalism to Russia: "This is outrageous insolence, a lie whose only parallel in shamelessness would be if they maintained that it had been discovered that Nikolai Romanov (Nicholas II, last of the Tsars) had devoted his whole life to the struggle against capitalism and the monarchy, and to the realization of the proletarian revolution."

Cruelest Charge

That is all that needs to be said. Bukharin, perhaps the best brain amongst all Lenin's comrades, had all his life burned with the revolutionary flame. He had made himself hard in the cause, and he had put up with much from Stalin, to whom, against his better nature he gave invaluable help—all in the interests of Communist unity. When, at last, Stalin turned on him to destroy him he used against him the charge which he knew would cause Bukharin more offence than any other.

And yet the world, listening, fascinated, to Bukharin's "confession" was bewildered. How could a man confess so freely to high treason and yet be innocent?

We know the answer now—and from Khrushchev himself. Khrushchev never got around to rehabilitating Bukharin, but he described in some detail Stalin's torturing and destruction of other old Bolsheviks. And there have been signs that the day was approaching when Bukharin too would be officially rehabilitated. It was a difficult situation: if Bukharin, why not Trotsky? And how could Khrushchev begin to tell the whole truth without compromising himself? In 1938, the year of Bukharin's execution, he was beginning to ride very high.

Now certain elements in the Soviet Communist Party have decided to force the pace. We do not know who. But Bukharin was the symbol of what was called the "Right-Wing oppositon"—the men who stood against Stalin's violent and cruel measures against the peasants, and others: they wanted to give the Russian people time to breath.

The men who have sent this letter out of Russia must think, or fear, that there is a real danger in the Soviet Union today of a reaction against the liberalizing movement towards the "Right"—perhaps in the interest of yet another attempt to placate China, perhaps by old Stalinists who are beginning to regain confidence.

Be that as it may, they have acted. And their action is one more step in the long process whereby the Russians seek to liberate themselves from their past. In so acting they obey Bukharin's own words:

"I appeal to you, the future generation of Party leaders, whose duty as an historic mission it is, to unravel the terrible tangle of crimes, which are becoming ever more monstrous in these horrifying days, and are suffocating the Party like a ravaging fire.

"I appeal to all Party members!

"On this, perhaps the last day of my life, I am convinced that, sooner or later, my head will emerge from the filter of history, purged of all impurity.

"I was never a traitor. For Lenin's life I would have given my own without hesitation and have never instigated anything against Stalin.

"I ask the new, young and honest generation of Party leaders to justify me at a Plenum of the Central Committee and to restore my Party membership.

"Know this, Comrades, that on the banner which you carry in the victorious march to Communism there is a drop of my blood also.—Nikolai Bukharin."

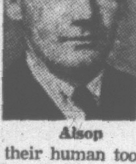
FROM HUE, VIET NAM

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Defected Cog From Communist North

IN HIS mid-30s, Nguyen Xuan Thuy is a sad, worn, prematurely aged wisp of a man. But this is hardly surprising, for this ex-cog in the Communist political apparatus has led a wearing life. It is also an interesting life, for it reveals the detailed direction of the war in South Viet Nam from the Communist North; and it shows, too, how the Communists have rather less mercy for their human tools than a good carpenter has for his inanimate tool kit. So let us begin Thuy's story at the beginning, as he told it through an American interpreter here in Hue.



Alsop

Thuy was born into a peasant family in a village in this lovely province of Thuy Tien, not far from the banks of the perfumed river. His father had good land, and he still speaks with obvious longing of those first good years before he was sternly conscripted for service in a Viet Minh unit in the war against the French. That was in 1951 and he was barely 17!

When the French war ended he went to North Viet Nam with his whole unit. "Why?" he was asked. "Because those were the orders," he replied with an air of dumb astonishment.

Being a simple fellow, not very tough and not very quick, Thuy was passed over in all the earlier selections of men from South Viet Nam who were trained as cadres in the southern war. Instead, when his military service ended, he was sent to serve as a common laborer in various agricultural construction projects.

A Slave

"It was like being a slave," he added, with a sudden edge of bitterness in his voice. "We had believed the propaganda that life in a Communist country would be like paradise. It was more like hell."

Thuy was downright relieved, therefore, when he was suddenly called up in the late winter of 1964 and sent for training to a military camp at Sung Mai, just north of Hanoi. In all there were 194 men, most of them former southerners like himself, in his class of candidate-political cadres.

After six months of indoctrination in propaganda and other techniques, plus "training in carrying heavy loads," Thuy and his classmates all got diplomas "signed by Ho Chi Minh and Vo Nguyen Giap"—even now the memory of those signatures seemed to impress him. The class was taken south. They slipped by night across the demilitarized zone to a secret camp called "Pine Tree Forest" in the mild mountains near the Laos border; and there they were divided into provincial contingents.

Thuy and 35 others were assigned for service in the two most northerly provinces, Thuy Tien and Quang Tri. After a hard march through the mountains, the little party reached the jungle hideout of the provincial boss, a grim, harsh-tempered veteran with the war-name of Sinh.

Ugly, Furtive Life

Here Thuy was named "political commissar" of Huong Tra district, which borders this city. He was thus the deputy for political affairs and propaganda of Huong Tra's Viet Cong district chief. As such, he lived the underground life, revealing himself only to the members of the Viet Cong net in the district. It was an ugly life, furtive of course, hungry and above all fear-haunted.

"The Viet Cong leaders stop at nothing," Thuy said. "With my own eyes I have seen them kill a rich farmer's kidnaped son and then write a message to his family, saying that the dead boy had joined them and was well but wished his parents to send money. The provincial forces are always hungry, and they almost ambush the village people to force them to deliver food. The villagers are afraid. The soldiers are afraid. I was afraid."

From August last year until the beginning of May, Thuy passed on his slogans, spread his disruptive rumors and lurked in the shadows. On May 4 he finally turned himself in to the government district chief of Huong Tra, for he had "had enough." And so ended his service as a cog in the machine.

He was a very small cog, but the very fact that so small a cog was prepared in the North, sent from the North and directed from the North speaks volumes about the nature of the Vietnamese war. The twaddle merchants at home would have us believe that this war springs from southern soil. One must admire the ingeunity of those who have constructed the machine in which Thuy was a poor cog. But admiration for the twaddle merchants is another matter.

Looking Back

From the Times of May 26, 1890:

Aberdeen, Wash.—A party which set out last December to explore the Olympic mountains and country west of the range arrived here today.

The men had lived on wild meat and had not seen a white man for the past three months.

The men were very recitent about the results of the trip but it is known they have made important discoveries in the mineral line.

Friends and War

In view of the recent articles associating the Society of Friends (Quakers), with the projected Comox peace march, we feel it is timely to restate the Quaker attitude to all forms of violence.

The Society has no political platform. Its historical peace testimony is well known and has remained virtually unchanged for the past 300 years. Friends are against all war and all violence. The basis of Quaker pacifism is entirely religious and depends on the belief that all war and violence are incompatible with the life and spirit of Jesus Christ as recorded in the Gospels and on the conviction that every human being contains a seed of the Divine Spirit. Hence, Quakers are against all weapons and all methods of waging warfare, whether conventional or atomic, and always have been.—John Priestman, Assistant Clerk of the Victoria Meeting, 1831 Fern St.

Bastedo Supporter

The brief submitted to the Bi and Bi commission by Mr. Frank Bastedo and Mr. Percival Gordon has, I am sure, expressed perfectly the feelings of the majority of citizens of the western provinces. Nowhere in Canadian history is any mention made of two equal languages.

Mr. Peter Newman may have hit the nail square on the head in his report from Ottawa (Times, Mar. 12): "There is growing speculation that De Gaulle is seeking a foothold in Canada through Quebec." So, before we break our spines bending backwards to please Quebec, let's digest slowly some of the facts.

Pierre Laporte says "English Canada has no personality." How could we, when it comprises people from every country in the world, who brought with them the cultures and languages of their fatherland to add something new and different to this land.—Canadian First, Scot Second.

Art and Artisan

Mr. Siebner remarks with certain bitterness the lack of culture-minded people in our midst. I wonder how many people are aware of Sir Winston Churchill's spare time activities? Painting and bricklaying, two constructive activities, how much did these two contribute to his success as a statesman? Let the artist and artisan be aware of their value, and parents who label art as a frill, take note.—Sheila Timmins, 11350 Chalet Rd., Sidney.

Junk the System?

It is too bad university tuition fees have gone up. The price of butter is going up too. But what can you expect? This is capitalism, where everything is reduced to the status of exchange, and is therefore subject to the law of supply and demand, including human talents. Everything must be paid for.

To save a lot of time and energy — and misery — it might be plausible to entertain the idea of junking this system and establishing democracy in its place, where each individual can produce according to ability and receive according to needs, that is, common ownership of the means of production and distribution.—D. Holliday, 1355 Lang St.

The Alternative

Ottawa Le Droit

We have our differences with Justice Minister Favreau on a good many subjects . . . but he must be hailed as a great servant of the state, a fine minister, a man devoted to the public interest and the common welfare.

Recently, in a speech to Quebec Liberals, he drew attention to the fact that the Conservatives while in office after 1957 had an unprecedented majority. So they could have constructed a more just system of Confederation; they could have greeted the renewed energies of Quebec with a strengthened spirit of quality in the Canadian system of government which would have guaranteed the preservation of Canada as a free nation; they could have made of bilingualism a means of cementing national unity. All these chances were wasted, said Mr. Favreau.

At the next election, in certain constituencies, one could vote for the Conservative candidate because of his personality, his individual qualities and merits. But one couldn't vote for the Conservative party as such, if one thought of the men now running it. With the Liberals, it's the other way around. One could vote for a nullity so that the country could retain the leadership of men like Mr. Pearson and Mr. Favreau. Not that they are perfect or beyond reproach. But just look at the alternative.

INSIDE POLITICS

With Douglas Fisher, M.P.

(Mr. Fisher is the member for Port Arthur riding for the New Democratic Party.)

Resources Council Vital

Rene Levesque threw another scare into the Anglocrats of Quebec last week with a public performance which revived, after a long pause, his reputation as an experimental and radical thinker. This latest foray happened to coincide with press reports that Quebec "cold-shoulders" the Council of Resource Ministers.

Since Mr. Levesque was an architect of this most unusual of all agencies in provincial-federal relationships his present attitude to it is vital.

The Canadian Council of Resource Ministers is only two years old. At a crucial meeting in Victoria, B.C., last week the ministers of the provinces and Arthur Laing, the federal minister in the field, announced a general agreement on a new, embracing, and co-ordinated measure on wildlife. Neither Mr. Levesque nor any other political minister from Quebec showed up at the meeting and the province was represented by a senior official of less than deputy minister rank. The absences were legitimate to a point and it is most unlikely that Quebec is going to sabotage the only service agency of any permanence which has come into being between federal and provincial government.

The secretariat for the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers is located in Montreal. It is not an agency of any one government. Its small staff of four officers and four secretaries is headed by a French-Canadian with a Belgian background, Christian De Laet. He is not a civil servant. The agency hangs the peculiar skyhook of a private corporation. Its funds (about $150,000 a year) come from contributions by all 11 governments. One feature of its operation has been the quiet assistance it has received from Levesque's Quebec Hydro in such routine necessities as reproduction and distribution facilities.

Almost everyone in politics on all three levels of government is bemused with the problem of inter-governmental relations. Those of us in the federal field tend to believe that the administrative answer in planning and working joint programs is some kind of federal bureau which links all governments.

Increasingly, there are suggestions of a permanent federal-provincial secretariat. The other day an Ontario Tory suggested an Ontario House in Ottawa. This would seem to foreshadow another relationship after the pattern between nations with embassies. This would be the other extreme, with provinces behaving somewhat like autonomous states in their dealings with the federal government.

The present format in this field is dominated by occasional federal-provincial conferences, usually held in Ottawa, chaired by the prime minister or a cabinet colleague. They deal with general problems on most occasions and occasionally concentrate on specific ones such as pensions. One of the current speculations is when the next conference of the general kind is to be held.

There is a brewing dissatisfaction with these conferences, particularly amongst federal opposition parties and amongst the editorialists of English Canadian newspapers. Major decisions and plans are worked out in secret, taking much of the stuffing out of Parliament's role.

Will we get a permanent federal secretariat to formalize this developing practise? The Canadian Council of Resource Ministers suggests another possibility. That's why it is so intriguing and why the matter of Quebec's attitude is so vital. The council was established "To establish a new approach to the orderly development of Canada's renewable natural resources."

At present, the council's secretariat is in the final stages of producing a reference book over 180 pages in length, setting out the details of some 69 joint programs which have been carried out between federal and provincial governments in the past.

The conference is planning a major meeting in October, 1966, on resource development. It could be more important than the original Resources for Tomorrow Conference (1961) which first tried to develop a sense of national purpose in the resource field. A series of regional resource development symposiums are to be held in the interim, the first for the Prairies in Winnipeg this fall. Some 40 thinkers—government officials and academics—will review and exchange and suggest.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By Elizabeth Forbes

Last January, in the Sumallo Valley, on the Hope-Princeton Highway, there occurred a slide that took the lives of three persons and left the valley a shambles of rock and mud.

When we heard of the disaster and saw pictures of the devastation, those of us who knew the Sumallo, mourned for the loss of its beauty.

It was a valley you couldn't pass without slowing the car. The mountains were not as menacing as at some places on the highway.

There was a winding river that looped its way between the red osiers. There were lights and shadows that touched the water and made patterns over the coarse grass that bordered the still pools.

There were men, women and children who liked to try their luck at fishing in those same pools.

At the far end, going in from Hope, there was a small mill that always had a plume of smoke drifting from its stacks.

This holiday weekend some of us travelled the Hope-Princeton road for the first time since the slide occurred.

We thought we were prepared for what we would see but it is worse . . . much worse . . . than anything we visualized from stories and pictures.

★ ★ ★

First shock comes as you enter the valley and find that where men and women once fished there is now only a backwash of drying mud and uprooted trees.

Along the slopes you can see where the earth has been sliced off in this backwash, leaving nothing but the rock.

Before you can absorb the fact that the river is now only a number of small streams fingering a way around the debris to create a new course, the road begins to rise in a series of curves that take you right over the floor of the slide.

Around you are rocks of every size, from small pieces of shale to huge boulders that lean and tilt against one another.

These rocks are heaped and tossed into piles that tower above the roadway. In places they are crushed into a mosaic of colors that tell of their mineral qualities. In other spots they are jumbled and pushed together in a way that terrifies and awes.

★ ★ ★

Signs warn that there must be no stopping until you reach a lookout point provided midway over the slide.

Here you look in both directions and you get the full extent of the disaster.

You see a valley piled high with rock, drying mud and uprooted trees. You trace the old roadway, coming in from the east, to a point where it disappears under the rubble.

And, you look up at the bare face of the mountain that loosed this holocaust and that now stands, sliced down to a living rock that glistens and shines in menacing beauty under the light of the sun.

Only familiar scene, as far as you can see, is at the eastern end of the valley, which was away from the path of the slide and where the mill still has a plume of smoke drifting from its stacks.

"This cannot be the Sumallo!" I heard a man say as he stood beside me at the highest point of the lookout. His companion shook his head as if to clear it of a nightmare, then pushed his hands deep in his pockets and let his eyes roam slowly over the whole scene.

"It is the Sumallo as it is going to be from now on," he said.

"Nature has so decreed!"

France and Communist China Building Strong Trade Links

By ANDREW MULLIGAN

PARIS — Franco-Chinese relations are now on a sound commercial footing. The Chinese government pavilion at the Paris Fair is the biggest government exhibit on view, covering 27,000 square feet and displaying 6,000 products. It reflects not only the established French government interest in ties with the East, but a solid commercial follow-up from both sides.

Since President de Gaulle's recognition of Communist China, French businessmen have been active, determined to cash in on the cut-off of Chinese-Russian trade. Last September the French organized an exhibit of measuring and control equipment in Peking, the results of which were sufficiently encouraging for the French to organise a repeat exhibition for November this year of mechanical, electronic and electrical equipment.

Among the 150 French firms planning to exhibit at Peking are Renault and Peugeot, who hope to find markets for their new R-16 and 404 models. In Peking there are only 300 taxis, and French trade missions report the Chinese are in dire need of better transport facilities. The government is already running a number of French cars for visiting VIPs.

French businessmen have concluded a number of successful deals with Communist China, notably in the oil and chemical fields. Last autumn an oil delegation spent a month in Peking and signed a £3 million contract for seismographic, drilling and refining equipment. Other negotiations are under way.

The French oilmen were unable to make any realistic estimate of the extent of the Chinese industry. One said: "I have been in oil all my life, but we were successfully prevented from finding out much about their industry." Despite the general Chinese phobia about foreigners, especially Americans and Russians, the oilmen thought that they would continue to need Western help and technicians for some time, especially to service the complex electronic equipment sold to them.

Breakthrough

The French chemical industry in February signed a contract with the Chinese to build a synthetic alcohol plant, the first significant breakthrough in the Franco-Chinese chemical trade since the thirties.

M. Henri Journu, a Far East expert for France's Association of Chemical Industries, who headed a five-man trade mission to Peking early this year, believes that China is trying to solve her problems in the agricultural chemical field and compared her position to Russia's 20 years ago.

Journu found that China's key problem is how to pay for plant and products, although the situation has improved since China now has more capital available for purchases from the West, following the rift with the Soviet Union, once her main supplier. A French businessman said: "Doing business with the Chinese is straightforward and efficient. Because of their planned economy they are punctilious over payment and have clear ideas about their needs." China has also developed her exports of rare metals, such as tungsten, which has improved her foreign currency reserves.

French oilmen who delivered an illustrated lecture of their visit to China, were clearly impressed with what they saw—the intensity of agricultural production and no evidence of famine. All were agreed that a strong regime was the answer to China's enormous problems. "We had the impression that China is on the move. She may not know quite where she is going, but the priorities are right, with the main manufacturing effort concentrated on necessities — shoes, clothing and household goods."

Crowds, Crowds, Crowds!

We've Got to Play The 'Waiting Game'

By THOMAS L. SAATY in The Washington Post

(A mathematician, Saaty has made a special study of the problems of population increase and how to cope with them in everyday life.)

The population problem is with us, so we may as well face one of its most insidious aspects—the choking, limiting irritating, intimidating, boring, claustrophobic business of congestion.

We are multiplying faster than our facilities. The already intolerable waiting game will become more tedious. Lines will get longer and tempers will get shorter. Patience will wear far thinner.

Man is a waiting animal. He waits nine months to be born. He waits to be fed. He waits for the bus and the bus waits for traffic and his wife waits for him and he waits for his wife. He waits in cafeteria lines, grocery stores, banks and post offices, elevators, gasoline stations, car washes, ski lifts, golfing tees, barbershops, doctors' offices, telephone booths, theatre lines, as well as at and over airports.

Like the Army

"Hurry up and wait," was the army by-word.

Now it is nigh on impossible even to "hurry up" to wait. The lines are too long. Thus it is becoming easier to sit at home than sit in an automobile as it inches along a congested highway leading hours later to the fall splendor of a national park or open house at a nearby air force base or a day at the beach.

Most persons are willing to wait a set amount of time. But smoldering impatience is fanned into flame by artificial waiting as created, I suspect, by some theatre owners who think it is good advertising to have a long queue in front of the box office.

Sometimes waiting can be pleasurable, especially when the waiting is spiced with anticipation, as it is for Christmas morning.

But most waiting is painful and wasteful. Take the doctor's waiting room. The magazines are out of date, the nurse is tired and the doctor's schedule is so mangled that it is an hour after the appointed time before he can see the patient. Modern medicine has lengthened our longevity and now the doctors and others who keep us waiting are eating up those added years by making us wait, wait, wait.

Operators of facilities and persons providing services take it for granted that we are nice people resigned to the failings of our age and society. To me, the world sometimes seems like a factory in which people are looked upon as parts stacked willy-nilly along an assembly line waiting without bleat or plaint for something to happen to them.

Not Necessary

But this need not be, particularly if ways can be found for us to pass our waiting time enjoyable and profitably. As an optimist, and as a queueing theorist, I think we can reduce waiting time and certainly make waiting more pleasant.

Queueing theory, the application of mathematics and statistics to the waiting game, was first applied to telephone traffic shortly after the turn of the century. It was not until after the Second World War, however, that queueing theory became a broad art applied to transportation, queueing for service, inventories and industrial processes and even biomedical processes such as the psychological flow of nervous impulses.

Essentially, queueing theory combines science and technology with common sense. A theory is needed to organize airport take-off and landing operations at a minimum of inconvenience, for example, because of the complexity of many factors entering the problem and the large size of the problem.

The theory provides predictions about waiting times, the number waiting at any time, the length of a busy period and so forth.

We queueing theorists have been fairly successful in solving the waiting problems for some complex situations. We have speeded traffic through tunnels, along toll roads and in and out of airports. But we have not been as successfull in getting the less complex, often more irritating problems solved—in the doctors office, in the cafeteria, slow drivers.

Schedules

The doctor, for example, should provide up-to-date magazines and sweet nurses, and he should be able, with some queueing theory help, to learn how better to schedule his appointments. He should also be able, with a little statistical help, to figure out how to juggle incoming telephone calls and incoming patients more efficiently.

In a cafeteria, a priority system whereby the manager would judge which customer was the hungriest and feed him first, probably would cause massive indigestion. But multiple service lines at peak hours and faster servers would ease the wait.

There are, I think, some simple, non-scientific things facility owners could do to provide a little fun and profit for those forced to play the waiting game. The owner could offer games or books or educational television (closed circuit in doctor's offices, for example). Distractions could be created to break the silence. Silence makes waiting infinite. And, attempts could be made to explain the delay. We all feel better when the pilot tells us what's going on during an airplane flight.

Many Solutions

Among the larger problems, some things are being done in an attempt to clear up transportation congestion and others are being considered, or ought to be. These include the building of freeways, beltways, subways, monorails, the use of fringe parking and the manufacture of more small automobiles designed primarily to carry people rather than tons of metal and chrome.

The use of the telephone, combined with a television-like device, could help control the need for some transportation if people could be convinced to use it as a partial substitute for personal contact. I can even imagine remote shopping by television, with cameras focused on merchandise in the store. Occasional visits to the store would orient the housewife. Shopping by mail already helps to relieve one kind of congestion, but mailmen may look at it differently.

But people still have to go out, and when they do, there is no reason why the frustration cannot be reduced.

A supermarket in the late afternoon is a mess. Each of the many check-out counters has a line of customers getting longer and longer. In addition, if a clerk happens not to have slept well the night before, his line moves slower than usual.

Simple Device

Both these situations can be remedied. The device is simple and can even save space. In the grocery store, all those waiting with carts could be arranged in one line, service would be on a first-come, first-served basis. Just before a counter became free, a bell would ring and a green light would identify the counter. The person at the head of the line would go to that counter, and so on down the line as counters became free.

Beyond these practical proposals will have to come a philosophical, almost a spiritual, adjustment if the waiting game is to become less burdensome.

I suggest that the time has come to train young children in the mores, pains and pleasures of queues. Today, the pains predominate. So until creative measures are adopted to take the weariness out of waiting, I further suggest that children be taught that you can't beat city hall and that standing around is the price they must pay for the ride on the rising population curve.

To the Point

"Some people think it a little queer if a man in public life expresses interest in the Bible." — Premier Ernest C. Manning, who conducts a "Back to the Bible" hour.

'Publish or Perish' Ruling Angers University Students

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

Teachers are so caught up in the rush to publish, to travel, to do research that they no longer have much time to teach. Undergraduates complain they have become only punched computer cards. Here is a look at the campus revolution which is sweeping the U.S. and may be spreading in Canada.

"Nobody knows my name" is a common dormitory lament on U.S. campuses where classes may run from 1,500 to 2,500 students and be divided into 60 or more sections presided over by a teaching assistant, a graduate student working on his PhD.

Frequently the full professor doing the lecturing doesn't even know his assistants by name.

More than a year before the recent strike and sit-in at the Berkeley campus that resulted in the arrest of 733 demonstrators, President Clark Kerr of the University of California (enrolment 87,000 on seven campuses) gave a remarkable series of lectures at Harvard.

His subject was the care and feeding of today's huge university — or the "multiversity," as he named it.

Little Good

"Recent changes in the American university have done them little good: Lower teaching loads for the faculty, larger classes, the use of substitute teachers for the regular faculty, the choice of faculty members based on research accomplishments rather than instructional capacity, the fragmentation of knowledge into endless subdivisions.

"There is an incipient revolt of the undergraduate students against the faculty. The students want to be treated as distinct individuals."

Why?

At Yale, the ancient Ivy is still quaking with a "publish or perish" controversy over Richard J. Bernstein, a young assistant professor of philosophy who had been denied tenure because his books, rather than his lectures, had been found wanting.

"Here was a classic case of a professor in the Socratic mold," he said, "a jabber and a molder, who made students grapple with all sorts of ideas, but whose teaching excellence was not even a factor in the tenure decision."

At the height of the furore, yearbook chairman Robert U. Woodward decided to dedicate Yale's 1965 yearbook to the ousted Bernstein, rather than president Kingman Brewster, Jr., and then had second thoughts on the subject and dedicated it to Prof. Richard B. Sewell, a housemaster who had consoled the undergraduates over the loss of Bernstein.

"We are not against professors doing research," Woodward insisted. "A guy who spent all his time teaching would not be welcome at Yale. It's easy to talk to students all day, to listen to their 25-cent ideas and maybe give them back 50-cent ideas, but the students and Yale are looking for the $10 idea and that requires a certain amount of research and scholarship. Still, being a professor is a profession, a scholarly profession that should not be incompatible with good teaching."

At its heart, Yale's dilemma involved a modern university at the crossroads, torn between the traditional values of the old liberal arts college and the cultural colossus of Kerr's multiversity. At each turn in the road, defending the separate paths, stood an eminent Yale philosopher.

Fear of Students

On one side stood Prof. Norwood Hanson, who defended his department's "publish or perish" decision and publicly blasted student demonstrators for putting Yale on the path to becoming "a banana republic university," where faculties lived in constant fear of an aroused student body.

On the other side was Prof. Paul Weiss, Bernstein's mentor, who saw the whole episode "as a crisis in values" and another example of "the growing attrition of the undergraduate college within the university."

To Hanson, Yale's problems are the problems of many colleges, a combination of growing pains on the part of the university and growing pains on the part of the students.

"The university today is expected to occupy the centre of gravity on the intellectual frontier," said Hanson. "Once you start going after the big money and the big names, you are expected to make a real contribution to the world reservoir of knowledge. Yale has got to take a definite stand in favor of research if it expects to occupy a position of world leadership in thought by 1980."

"The undergraduate is losing ground rapidly, he knows it and he resents it," said Weiss.

Short-Changed

"For the first time we at Yale now have as many graduate as we have undergraduate students. It is time that we redefined our educational goals. The undergraduates are being short-changed and ignored. There is a feeling abroad in the land that nothing can improve education quite as much as the total elimination of the student. Universities have become places where eminent men come to discourse with other eminent men, and students just seem to get in the way of the dialogue.

"The fun has gone out of college. These are serious students and their education must be taken seriously. Student concern with the quality and content of their education is bound to increase. The unrest undoubtedly will spread to other campuses. Berkeley has taught the students their power. The civil rights movement has taught them their tactics. There are hard days ahead for many a dean and administrator."

John Searle, associate professor of philosophy at the University of California, attributes both the unrest and the rising leftist tide on campus to the seriousness of today's students. He says:

"They want more—more out of life, more out of their professors. Aware and committed are the big words on campus today. There is a resurgence to the left, but I am impressed by the degree to which present student radicals are not ideological. They are more committed to activism, to doing something about peace and civil rights, and much less to the dogmatism of previous generations."

Cost of Frost Said $8 Million

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Veteran fruit growers say the government will have to pump at least $8,000,000 into the Okanagan Valley if the fruit industry is to survive last winter's crippling frosts.

Soft fruit trees — apricots, cherries and peaches—were first hit in the third week of December when the temperature dropped to 15 below on a night of high wind.

In March the few trees struggling through that first onslaught were wiped out by a 10 above temperature that destroyed every bud.

The total damage has not yet been tallied but it is already around the $10,000,000 mark.

LOOKS FINE

To the unskilled eye the Okanagan looks its usual late spring normal, green and lush. The practiced eye sees acres of devastation where branches which should be carrying fresh-formed fruit stand bare in the sun.

Veteran grower W. O. June of Naramata, nine miles north of Penticton on the east side of Okanagan lake, says assistance from the provincial government must come soon in the form of cash, or complete ruin will follow.

"There will be a few cherries from the south this year, but no peaches, apricots and a very light crop of prune plums," he said when interviewed last week.

The government has offered Okanagan growers aid in the form of new trees up to $1,000 and long-term low interest loans up to $5,000.

"It sounds great," said Mr June. "But a new tree costs $1.50 each. A man with 10 acres would need $1,500 for new trees alone. After that it would cost him at least $1,000 to remove the old trees and the estimated cost of re-planting at 75 cents a tree. In addition it costs roughly $200 per acre annually to keep an orchard in good shape.

"And this does not even take into consideration his loss of revenue during the five years it takes for a peach tree to bear a crop."

A grower with 10 acres—the minimum economic fruit growing unit—normally sells his crop for between $8,000 and $12,000, the price being dependent on variety and quality.

INCOME ZERO

This year, and for the next five years, his income will be zero.

With each agricultural dollar turning over at least four times in the community the total business loss to the central and south Okanagan will be $40,000,000.

That loss is already being felt.

"Those frosts ruined two of the Okanagan's biggest industries," he said. "The fruit industry and unemployment insurance payments."

Mr. Currie was talking of the common Okanagan practice where fruit growers' wives work in the packing houses and canneries during the harvest to earn money and obtain enough employment to qualify for UIC payments. Both incomes are usually required to obtain a living income.

LAYOFFS

"Already men who have worked in packing houses for 20 years are being laid off for the first time in their lives," Mr. Currie said. "It's pretty obvious what's going to happen, or rather what isn't going to happen, later on. There will be little or no work in the packing houses so there will be no supplemental incomes. It's going to be a rough year for everyone."

On Penticton's main street the credit manager of a large department store said the "rough time" was already here.

"Normally at this time of the year we know that people behind in their payments will catch up in the summer months," she said. "This year we know they can't and have no hope of doing so. I'm not looking forward to the rest of this year at all."

Sid Godber, publisher and editor of the monthly magazine "The B.C. Orchardist" and a resident of the Okanagan for 20 years, said he has never seen things so bad and a future so bleak.

HAD 2 ACRES

"I can hardly be classed a grower because all I have is two acres of peaches," he told me, adding: "I should say all I had was two acres of peaches. This year I have nothing, not a blossom, not a bud. Last year I picked about four tons and made about $500. This year I have a few scraggly green leaves and the tragedy is, of course, that the trees are gone. It isn't just a matter of losing a crop, that would be bad enough, it's a matter of losing everything for the next five years at least."

The answer if the fruit industry is to survive?

"A hefty grant with no strings attached, immediately," says Mr. Godber. "Plus re-planting assistance, plus long term loans interest free until the first commercial crop comes off the new trees.

"And the provision should be added that only growers with 10-acres or more should get the re-planting aid and the long long term loans. Those, like myself, who want to grow fruit just ass a sideline, should not be classed with the commercial grower who depends on his crop for his living."

On May 31 Agriculture Minister Frank Richter travels to the Okanagan to meet in Kelowna with industry leaders. Together they will try to find a solution to the worst disaster ever to hit British Columbia's fruit bowl.

"I don't envy him," said Mrs. Geoffrey Alington who with her husband operates 35 acres at Kaleden on Skaha Lake. "But something must be done, and soon. The land-sharks are already moving in offering growers with ruined orchards cash payments for their land for real estate development. The only trouble is the money they are offering is about one third the value of the land."

Six Firms Delisted, Suspended

TORONTO (CP)—Two firms were delisted and the shares of four others were suspended from trading at the opening of the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Delisted were Novamines Corp. and Yankee Canuck Oil and Mining Corp. Ltd. Novamines had been suspended Oct. 1, 1964, and Yankee May 5.

The four suspended "had prior notice that their listings were under review, but failed to put forth proposals for obtaining new working capital and becoming reactivated," an exchange statement said.

Yankee Canuck was delisted at the request of the company, the statement said.

Novamines was delisted because "there has been no evident material change in the last eight months, and the company has made no effort to have its shares reinstated on the trading list."

JAPAN CARS TO BE BUILT IN CANADA

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Two big Japanese car manufacturers, Toyota and Isuzu, will have their vehicles assembled in Nova Scotia for the Canadian market, two leading Canadian industrialists said here.

They are J. C. Mackeen and G. W. M. Manuge, members of a trade and industrial development delegation from Nova Scotia that recently visited Japan.

Their initial plan is to turn out 15,000 to 20,000 cars a year and work on an assembly plant for this purpose already is under way in Cape Breton.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain exchange prices rallied in late trade today following an earlier easy tone influenced by declines on Chicago markets.

Flax became firmer in response to a broader demand and overseas inquiries, with business developing to the United Kingdom in parcel lots.

Rapeseed prices were sharply higher following the Chicago rally. There were indications of a fairly agressive demand by Japan and other countries estimated at 4,000 tons.

DEMONSTRATIONS UPSET FOREIGN INVESTORS

MONTREAL (CP)—A French-Canadian businessman said Tuesday night that demonstrations like those that took place on Victoria Day "worry" foreign investors.

Marcel Faribault, president of the General Investment Corporation of Canada, was speaking during a panel discussion on the issue of separatism.

"It is enough to see the worry of foreign capitalists each time demonstrations like those of last night (Monday night) occur at a time when financing is to be carried out in the United States or elsewhere," Mr. Faribault said.

Another member of the panel, Raymond Barbeau, a prominent Quebec separatist, said he did not see how Quebec province's separation would affect investment here.

MARKET SUMMARIES

BUSINESS VIEWS

Unemployed, But Couldn't Get Time Off

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Odd items culled from a notebook filled with bus-jogged squiggles durng the grand tour of the Columbia Treaty projects.

It has to be confessed that the nine placard-carrying university students who met Premier Bennett in the rain at the Arrow dam-site near Castlegar were not tottering on the brink of starvation.

Hume

When asked if they were the only students protesting lack of work and increased university fees they answered "no." They figured that at least 35 students in the area felt the same.

"Why aren't they here carrying placards?" we asked.

Premier Bennett, addressing the civic banquet at Nelson said his take-over of the B.C. Electric "didn't cost the taxpayers of the province a penny." He added that it hadn't cost the provincial treasury a penny, either.

WHO DID PAY?

All of which leaves open-speculation as to who did pay for the take-over. The shareholders, maybe?

Another of his delightfully unexplained statements to the same audience was that rather than B.C. owing anybody any money the "banks" owed "the people of this province $85,000,000."

Please, don't demand explanations, the premier doesn't like that kind of attitude.

A few weeks ago The Times spotted a little juggling act when the premier blew up a section of the Government Street parking lot to initiate construction of the new museum and archives building.

If you remember, at that time an expert crouched behind the official platform and synchronized his down-beat on the real plunger with the premier's public-view effort.

The same man must have organized both blasts.

At Duncan the switch the premier ficked merely flashed a little light which caused a nearby workman to signal across the valley to yet another workman who pressed the plunger to create the big bang.

GOOD TIMING

The timing was excellent and the kids from Meadow Creek school enjoyed it.

A word of advice to those thinking of taking a look at the Duncan dam-site this summer. Go prepared for some hot, dusty travel and take lots of mosquito repellent. They're big, they're black and they bite.

And if you're crossing Galena Bay on the ferry ask for Robert Friebell, the engineer. He's from Victoria and gets a little bushed now and then with a longing for his old Island home.

One little item all tax-paying readers will be delighted to know is that 100 people in the entourage were transported from Vancouver to Arrowhead, the other side of Revelstoke, by special train.

Having crossed Galena Bay by ferry the group was met by three Pacific Stage Line buses which made the 500-mile trek through the interior empty.

After the long dusty ride from Galena Bay to Duncan dam, Nelson, Castlegar, Grand Forks and over Anarchist Mountain *into the Okanagan and eventu*ally Kelowna, the group reboarded the special train—and the buses jogged back to Vancouver empty.

But, like the B.C. Electric take-over, it didn't cost the taxpayer a penny. Operatng costs, maybe?

GAS-COOLED N-GENERATING PLANT DESIGNED

Britain 'Hits the Jackpot'

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—A decision to build a new-style nuclear power plant to produce electricity at less cost than conventional power stations was greeted today as a major development in British science and technology.

Scientific experts, politicians and the press predicted the Advanced Gas-cooled Reactor, to be built on the Kent coast with a world-high 1,200,000-kilowatt capacity, will finally establish the competitiveness of atomic energy against conventional fuels in generating electricity.

The AGR project, in which carbon dioxide gas carries heat from the atomic furnace to boiler tubes to make turbine-driving steam, is expected here to boost British chances of selling atomic power plants abroad against competition from water-cooled North American systems.

Power Minister Fred Lee, announcing the decision to build the AGR plant, told Parliament Tuesday he was confident Britain had "hit the jackpot" with a design that has clear advantages over competing water-cooled reactors.

CHOICE TOOK YEAR

The Central Electricity Generating Board, responsible for the supply of electric power in England and Wales, studied six designs for more than a year before recommending the AGR plant on grounds that it would be technically superior and produce electricity 10 per cent more cheaply than the rival U.S. and water-cooled British designs.

Atomic Power Constructions, one of three commercial groups building nuclear power plants in Britain, is negotiating on design details for construction of the plant at an estimated cost of £80,000,000 ($240,000,000). Completion date is 1970.

With the generating cost by AGR, British authorities may decide to step up construction of nuclear stations and cut expansion plans for conventional power.

Britain now has seven commercial atomic power stations in addition to generators at the Atomic Energy Authority research centres of Calder Hall in Northern England and Chapelcross in Scotland. Together, their capacity is about 3,500,000 kilowatts. Two more plants under construction will raise the total to more than 5,000,000 kilowatts by 1968.

The new AGR plant, to be known as Dungeness B, will be built on an English Channel promontory near Dungeness A, a water-cooled reactor with a 550,000-kilowatt capacity going into production this year.

Dungeness B's two 600,000-kilowatt generators will give it a capacity greater than any present nuclear plant.

Dungeness B, based on an experimental prototype developed by the Atomic Energy Authority, was hailed by The Financial Times as "a nuclear breakthrough" which is "pure gain for the British economy."

"It holds out the prospect of cheaper power . . . improves our chance of developing a new export market . . . makes it possible to look forward to the day when men will no longer have to risk their lives by mining coal underground."

Can't Recall Kissing Policeman Testifies

NEW YORK (CP) — Undercover policeman Raymond A. Wood denied in U.S. federal court Tuesday that he had an affair with a blonde Montreal woman who has pleaded guilty to smuggling dynamite into the U.S. for a group charged with conspiring to blow up U.S. shrines.

The Negro policeman, instrumental in the arrest of the alleged plotter, said that after Michelle Duclos, 26, brought the dynamite here from Montreal he met her at a hotel about 2 a.m. Feb. 16.

Defence lawyer Mark Lane, representing one of three men on trial for smuggling and conspiracy, asked Wood whether he had invited Miss Duclos to spend the night with him Jan. 31.

Wood, 31, said he was with Miss Duclos from about 10 p.m. that night to 4 a.m. Feb. 1 in Montreal.

"Did you have an affair with Miss Duclos in the early hours of Feb. 1, 1965," Lane asked.

"No sir," Wood said.

KISSES MISS DUCLOS?

Lane then asked whether he had kissed Miss Duclos.

"To the best of my recollection I did not kiss her," Wood said.

Miss Duclos is scheduled to be sentenced June 9 on the smuggling charges. The former Montreal TV performer also has a conspiracy charge pending against her.

On trial are Robert S. Collier, Walter A. Bowe and Khaeel S. Sayyed, members of a Negro extremist group which police allege plotted to blow up the Statue of Liberty in New York, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia and the Washington Monument to dramatize the plight of the U.S. Negro. Wood infiltrated the group.

Only A Few Benefit

What is next on the agenda for boxing's amazingly-loyal and oft-disappointed fans?

Will they continue to flock to the television well, or will they begin a quiet revolt against risking their money and feel content to partially slake their pugilistic thirst by listening to radio accounts of important fights?

Those were some of the questions being punched around today following Cassius Clay's strange one-round knockout of boxing's supposedly-indestructible "bear," Sonny Liston, Tuesday night at Lewiston, Maine.

This is not to suggest there was anything pre-arranged about the world heavyweight champion's latest triumph.

Although it was hidden from the television cameras, the punch that did the trick could have been a beauty. It could have been a sneak right cross, coming short and swift after a left hook and shaking Sonny from topknot to shoelaces.

And Liston would have to be an actor beyond the range of his suspected talents to have faked his first groggy attempts to regain his feet.

★ ★ ★

Despite the brief display of Clay's artistry there had to be disappointment in theatres and arenas across Canada and the United States. Boxing buffs, stimulated by months of pre-fight ballyhoo, had paid from $4 to $10 for seats, expecting to watch a battle of giants by way of closed-circuit television.

In less than three minutes, it was all over and millions of dollars had been collected for a pair of pugilists, their followers and big business enterprises.

Is it right that so many people should pay so much for so little, for the benefit of so few?

Probably nine out of 10 who watched the bout on the screen at Memorial Arena, or at other sites between here and Lewiston, today would say "no." Possibly most will swear they won't fall for the next round of propaganda, preferring to take their fight by radio and follow-up movies.

There was more than briefness to the bout. There was again the mysterious aroma that seems to follow the men who control big-time boxing.

★ ★ ★

On the television screen was an amateurism that was unbelievable for a championship fight. It started when Canadian-raised Bob Goulet sang the American national anthem, substituted "night" for "light" and then quickly checked a slip of paper for correct words.

There was referee Joe Walcott trying to chase the wild-eyed Clay to a neutral corner while Liston was down and failing to either delay the count or check with the timekeeper. It ended with Liston apparently able to continue and squared off with Clay while Walcott went to check with the timekeeper.

In other words, it was almost too mysterious to be true.

★ ★ ★

It was the sort of ending that suggests people should have had enough of fight fiascos.

There have been unsatisfactory and unsavory championship fights before. There will be others.

But each time, after a fitting period of mourning the demise of the manly art, the ballyhoo artists have gone to work and boxing buffs have come flocking back to the well.

They'll be back and the few will get richer. It never seems right, but we're that kind of people.

Maybe its a pity, perhaps its wonderful.

But it does seem certain that boxing is controlled by the wrong kind of people.

Shoulders Stooped, Liston Stands Alone

'King' Clay Switches From Rabbit to Chuvalo

Canadian 'Onliest Man Has a Chance With Me'

By MURRAY ROSE

LEWISTON, Me. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay said Wednesday he would like to make his next title defence outdoors in New York City to "let the people see it."

Clay said Sonny Liston, his victim in a one-minute, first-round knockout Tuesday night, was "the onliest man who had the power and the chance of getting to me.

"Those other fellows like Floyd Patterson with their short steps don't have a chance.

"The onliest man I think has a chance with me is George Chuvalo. He's from Toronto. He takes a lot, he's determined, and he's not afraid. He climbed in the ring last night and they had to pull him off of me. He's serious."

A short right hand to the jaw knocked out the aging, former champion for a "12 count" in a confused and controversial finish that had many of the 4,280 fans in the heavily police-guarded Central Maine Youth Centre yelling "fake" and "fix."

But the undefeated Clay, unperturbed over reported threats on his life, shouted, "That was my secret—it was a phantom punch. It was lightning and thunder—fast as lightning and booming as thunder from the heavens."

"It was a good, right-hand punch," said the unmarked Liston, listed as 31 but believed several years older. "No, I didn't quit. The blow landed on my left cheekbone. I've never been knocked down before. It made me groggy. I got to my knees but fell the second time because I was off balance."

"It was a good lick," said Patterson, the two-time former heavyweight king and the rabbit Clay wants next in about four months. "He really hit him. I'm more anxious now than ever to meet him."

"There was nothing suspicious about it as far as I'm concerned," said George Russo, chairman of the Maine State Boxing Commission. "The only thing is that it ended too soon. The people didn't get their money's worth."

The Ex-Champ's Fall Was Delayed

Nothing much happened in the early moments as Clay, hands down, danced and circled from the plodding former champion, out to nail Clay with one punch. Then Clay caught Liston with the right.

Liston fell on his back in a delayed fall, rolled over, got to his right knee and then fell on his back again.

In the meantime, referee Jersey Joe Walcott, another former heavyweight champion, never counted once. First he tried to steer Clay to a neutral corner. When he got back and peered to the knockdown timekeeper across the ring, Liston had fallen back on the canvas.

When Liston arose, Walcott rubbed Liston's gloves and looked towards the timekeeper again. Then he left the fighters, to go over to the timekeeper.

With the referee gone, Clay and Liston started slugging away.

By then Walcott had been informed by the timekeeper that he had counted to 12 before Liston got up and that Clay had won on a knockout.

Quicker Lullaby Than Tom Burns'

Russo verified that the knockout time was one minute.

Thus the 23-year-old Clay, now calling himself "King of the Ring" as well as "The Greatest" broke one of the oldest records in the book.

By taking out Liston for the second straight time—this time in 60 seconds—he wiped out the record time of 1:28 for a heavyweight title fight set by Tommy Burns when he beat Jem Roche in Dublin, March 17, 1908. Clay's quick kayo was the 12th first-round knockout in a heavyweight title fight.

The fight, which was telecast to 258 outlets in the United States, Canada and Mexico and was beamed overseas by the Early Bird satelite, kicked up almost as much of a storm as their still hotly-discussed first fight at Miami Beach 15 months ago.

That was the strange fight in which Liston, a prohibitive 7-1 favorite, quit in his corner after the sixth round, claiming an injured left shoulder. Clay had tried to quit after the fourth, claiming he was blinded by liniment on Liston's gloves.

Each Will Pick Up About $600,000

Clay, who turned pro in 1960 after winning the Olympic light heavyweight crown, now has a 21-0 record, including 17 knockouts. Liston, winner of 28 straight over a nine-year span until he ran into Clay, now has a 35-3 record, including the two knockout losses.

The fight, kicked out of Boston because of the promotional setup, drew 4,280 customers and $201,000 according to Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc. With the television and other rights included, the fighters each probably earned about $600,000.

Clay, as usual, got in the first and last words.

Just before leaving the arena, he said, "I told everybody I had a secret but I couldn't reveal it. If I told the people what I was going to do, they wouldn't have come to the fight.

"I knew I was going to knock out the big bear in the first round. I'm just too fast for everyone. My punches just blur."

Champion in Typical Pose

'I've Been Hit Harder by Shot Of Whiskey . . .'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Comedian Joe E. Lewis did not think Cassius Clay's punch that knocked out Sonny Liston was a blockbuster.

"I've been hit harder by a shot of whisky," Lewis said.

★ ★ ★

At Memorial Arena, the reaction of some 1,100 witnesses was stunned disbelief rather than outright derision. They were amazed that the fight could have ended so quickly and that one punch was responsible. Some responsible viewers claim they have yet to see the punch.

★ ★ ★

Clay's wife was impressed by her first fight: "I thought he was beautiful," she said, "simply beautiful." Cassius' mother agreed: "I feel sorry for the other man. I hope he's not badly hurt."

★ ★ ★

Other comments on the fight:

British heavyweight Henry Cooper and former world middleweight champ Terry Downes, who watched the fight with Farr in London over Early Bird satellite, had similar opinions.

Said Cooper: "It's hard to know what to say. It looks as though he knocked Liston down with a wrist movement. They talk over there about horizontal British heavyweights — but we can do a little better than that."

★ ★ ★

★ ★ ★

Pressed for a description of the punch that ended the fight, Clay seemed uncertain.

"A left hook, and a right cross," he said at first.

When he was asked again, however, he said:

"I'll have to see the video tape."

'They've Thrown Us Out Of Hockey'—Boucher

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Has the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association activated a delayed fuse?

Frank Boucher thinks it has.

One of the game's greatest players and now commissioner of the Saskatchewan Junior League, Boucher was highly critical of the CAHA's refusal to permit the Prairie circuit extra time before commencing playoffs.

"They," Boucher said Tuesday night of the CAHA, "have just thrown us out of hockey.

"On Monday, at a meeting of the western junior council, we were granted a bye into the western final. At Tuesday's plenary session, the vote was altered and they deprived our league of the bye.

'FINANCIAL RUIN'

"That leaves us two alternatives. Either we drop out of CAHA playoffs, or we reduce our eight-team league to six by dropping two teams. Naturally, the teams that would be dropped would be Flin Flon and Brandon, both Manitoba clubs."

Boucher said each SJHL team operates on a 28-game home schedule.

To reduce the schedule any more, he said, "would be the financial ruin of the west's most successful league."

Del Wilson, manager of Regina Pats, was equally incensed with the turnabout in voting that may develop into a real hot-potato issue before the annual CAHA convention ends here Thursday.

NARROW MARGIN

Said Wilson: "We have the most successful operation of any amateur league in Canada . . . bar none. The CAHA is jealous of the fact and this is why they refuse to concede anything to us."

Boucher and Wilson both criticized the plenary session's vote on the matter. A total of 11 votes were cast, and the Saskatchewan motion was defeated 6-5.

NOT OVER YET

"There are 22 votes," said Wilson.

"An important resolution was defeated by six voting delegates—that's less than 30 per cent. More appalling is the fact that there were three abstentions. Even a vice-president of the association refused to vote!

"I've never heard of such a thing!"

Both Saskatchewan officials, not eligible to vote, said they "wanted just what was given the Ontario junior league." (The CAHA earlier approved the OHA junior "A" representatives a bye into the eastern finals.)

"This isn't over by a long shot," said Boucher.

CAHA PREXY SAYS:

Reneging Cost Us Puck Show

Canada lost its bid to host the 1967 World hockey tournament because Russia and Sweden reneged on a "gentlemen's agreement," the president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said Tuesday.

Lionel Fleury unveiled reasons for Canada's failure to bring world hockey here for centennial year as he presented a report to the annual CAHA meeting at the Empress Hotel.

He said Russia, Sweden and Czechoslovakia had promised to vote in favor of Canada, which would have provided a bloc of votes large enough to win it for this country.

But when the vote came "some people had a change of heart." Of the three, only Czechoslovakia supported Canada and Austria won 33 to 22, he said.

★ ★ ★

The CAHA decided to continue with a national hockey team next year, based in Winnipeg and with a full-time manager-coach.

The team will be built around a nucleus of young players from this year's National team, and all will live and train in Winnipeg from September until the spring championship tournament in Yugoslavia.

Rev. David Bauer, coach of the 1964 National team and advisor to the 1965 squad, warned that Canada must start building a strong team and somehow keep it together to get experience.

"I don't think we can ever go over there again with anything less than the ability of an American Hockey League team," he said. The professional AHL is rated one notch below the National League.

★ ★ ★

The CAHA meeting was told Russia and Czechoslovakia have accepted invitations to send their national teams to Canada next year, and there is possibility that the Swedish and Finnish teams may also make tours.

Canada will send one and possibly two teams to Europe, said Gordon Juckes, CAHA secretary-manager.

BERNIE 'DELIGHTED'

Larks Finally Sign Faloney

MONTREAL (CP)—Quarterback Bernie Faloney said today he has signed a three-year contract with Montreal Alouettes and was "delighted" with the terms.

"The Alouettes have explained their position to me in terms that I can appreciate," Faloney told a press conference.

"I have accepted their offer of a three-year contract and look forward to helping to bring at least that many Grey Cups to Montreal, starting this fall," he said.

No terms were announced.

"To clear up any former impressions, I must tell the Montreal and Quebec fans that I am delighted to come here to play with a great team and organization," said Faloney.

SIGNED DURING WEEKEND

President Ted Workman of the Eastern Football Conference club, said the contract was signed in Hamilton during the weekend.

Workman said head coach Jim Trimble and Joe Atwell, chairman of the board, sat in at the signing. They "must have created an excellent atmosphere so as to make this entente possible."

Faloney has been driving a hard bargain with the Alouettes in negotiations that began last Jan. 5.

Speculation has been that Faloney was seeking a $40,000 annual salary or $200,000 on a three-year basis.

Faloney, 32, is the first experienced quarterback the Als have had since the departure four years ago of Sam Etcheverry.

The former Hamilton Tiger-Cats star who was traded to Montreal last January, romped around Jarry Pak field in a work-out uniform, then met reporters at the training park to comment on the signing.

"I like to play football and I love to win," he said. "In spite of what you may have heard, I am convinced that the money is of secondary importance."

It was Trimble who smilingly announced that Faloney had been signed.

Braves Swap Maye For Ken Johnson

Heighton's Timing Can't Be Faulted

With his club trailing by two runs in the bottom of the seventh inning, Transport Workers' Jim Heighton blasted a three-run home run over the left-centerfield wall at Athletic Park Tuesday night to lead the defending champions to a 3-2 victory over Independents in Senior Amateur Baseball League action.

The dramatic drive came as Independents' pitcher Steve Bishop cautiously worked with a 2-0 lead. Bishop, who had control trouble throughout, issued a pair of walks to Cliff Rutledge and Barry Harvey before throwing to Heighton.

Transports' fireballing hurler, Bruce MacKenzie, matched Bishop's performance until the sixth inning. He was removed when a series of bad breaks and a streak of recurring wildness led to two Independent runs.

Transport reliefer, Cliff Rutledge silenced a brief Independent rally in the semi-darkness of the eighth inning. John Balloch reached first when his sinking liner was juggled by Transports' leftfielder. Tony Cosier forced Balloch at second and was stranded when Rutledge fanned Rick Blake, walked Dave Cutler, and forced Gerry McAdam to foul out to the first baseman.

Kowalyk's Counter Snaps Rock Slump

VANCOUVER—Is the famine over?

Victoria's Shamrocks are prone to believing it after snapping a three-game Inter-City Lacrosse League losing streak Tuesday night.

Shamrocks scored their second victory of the season by edging second-place Vancouver 8-7.

Captain Ed Kowalyk scored the winning goal for the Shamrocks at 6:11 of the fourth quarter after Vancouver had come back from a 7-5 deficit with two quick goals early in the final quarter.

The two teams meet at Memorial Arena tonight at 8 in the second game of a home-and-home doubleheader.

The victory moved the Shamrocks into a tie with Coquitlam Adanacs for third place with four points each. Coquitlam has played one less game than Victoria. Both Victoria victories have been over Vancouver.

NEVER BEHIND

The Shamrocks were never behind in the game. Both teams scored twice in the opening quarter before the Rocks took a 5-4 lead at the half. Victoria still led, 6-5, going into the final 15 minutes.

Veteran Reg Foster, 30, broke out of a scoring slump to score three goals for the Shamrocks. Terry Davis added two goals for the winners.

SIX PENALTIES

Although the game was a hard-hitting affair, only six penalties were called, four to Victoria. Vancouver failed to score on the odd-man play due to tight checking by the Shamrocks.

Victoria had the odd-man play twice, and scored once with Davis finding the range early in the fourth quarter. Ron Jay directed the odd-man play for the second straight game.

Hot Junior Burns Sooke Forest 1-0

Wade Burns gave up two singles and led Morrison Juniors to a thrilling 1-0 victory over Sooke Forest in Senior "A" Men's Softball League action at Heywood Park Tuesday.

Larry Jay was hard-luck loser when an outfield error with two out in the seventh inning set up the winning run on second base.

Dave Bowie, hitless in two previous trips to the plate, then drove in Morrison's lone run with a long single over third base.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Mounties have announced that outfielder Manny Jiminez was being removed from their Pacific Coast League roster pending a new assignment.

Jiminez, who has been batting .236 with one home run and 12 runs batted in, has been involved in a number of troubles and incidents with teamates since his acquisition from the parent Kansas City Athletics.

To replace him the Mounties placed veteran Catcher Charlie White on their active list. White played with Vancouver from 1957 through 1960 and had been signed this spring as a bullpen coach.

Who Floats, Stings? Why Stu 'Cass' Miller!

Associated Press

Miller worked two innings Tuesday night to protect the Orioles' 6-3 victory over Kansas City Athletics and run his scoreless string to 11 consecutive appearances.

The victory, fourth straight for the Orioles, moved them within three games of the American League lead.

First-place Chicago White Sox dropped a 7-5 decision to Detroit Tigers, Minnesota Twins blasted Boston Red Sox 17-5, Washington Senators swept a 7-3, 6-5 doubleheader from Los Angeles Angels, and Vic Davalillo drove in four runs with a pair of homers as Cleiveland Indians downed New York Yankees 5-1.

DON DRYSDALE
. . . like March Hare

For a Pitcher Milt's a Swinger

Starting pitcher Milt Pappas had smacked a bases-loaded triple in the second inning and scored on Jerry Adair's single giving the Orioles a 4-0 bulge. Pappas, however, failed to survive the Athletics' three-run fifth. Haddix came on and checked the As for 2⅓ innings before giving way to Miller.

Al Kaline clubbed two triples and capped a three-run rally in the fifth inning with a run-scoring single as the Tigers handed the White Sox their fifth setback in six games.

The Twins exploded for 20 hits, including home runs by Earl Battey, Bob Allison, Tony Oliva, Zoilo Versalles and Jerry Kindall, to smash the Red Sox.

Like the March Hare in Alice in Wonderland, Don Drysdale was late for a very important date.

Once he arrived, though, St. Louis Cardinals knew it wasn't going to be any tea party.

Drysdale stymied the Cardinals on one-hit — a scratch single — and ignited the rally that gave Los Angeles Dodgers a 2-0 victory Tuesday night.

The loss knocked the Cardinals out of their wonderland existence. They had won seven straight games and 11 of their last 12 and hadn't been shut out this season.

Explaining his tardiness for the adventure, Drysdale said:

"I was so interested in listening to the Clay-Liston fight that I was two or three minutes late going out to warm up. I had to get ready in a hurry. I considered this an important game. We had to stop the Cards somewhere."

St. Louis never got started.

After Flood's hit, the 28-year-old veteran retired 14 consecutive batters. Then, Dick Groat reached first in the fifth inning when shortstop Dick Tracewski let Groat's grounder go through his legs for an error. The final 13 Cards went down in order.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates edged Chicago Cubs 7-6 in 12 innings, Cincinnati Reds defeated Houston Astros 7-4, Milwaukee Braves trampled San Francisco Giants 14-1 and Philadelphia Phillies whipped New York Mets 10-3.

Drysdale, winning his seventh game against three defeats, outdueled Bob Gibson, who suffered his first setback after eight victories. Two of the six hits off Gibson came in the eighth. Drysdale started the inning with a single, and after Wes Parker walked, Ron Fairly doubled them home.

Andre Rodgers singled across Donn Clendenon with the Pirates' winning run in the 12th. Clendenon led off the inning with his fourth single and was sacrificed to second.

Legion Drops Ensign Motion

A motion that the Canadian Red Ensign be retained permanently as the official color of the Royal Canadian Legion was ruled out of order at the 27th annual convention of the Legion's Pacific Command Tuesday afternoon.

"The Red Ensign, bearing the Canadian coat-of-arms under which our members served during the two world conflicts be retained permanently as the official color of the Royal Canadian Legion."

Said a Legion spokesman:

"The motion was rejected because we are a non-political body. We support the government of the day. We do not rebel against laws which have been democratically adopted by the House of Commons and approved by the Queen of Canada."

Another motion from Nanaimo and North Vancouver Island zone for an annual memorial day holiday for the late Sir Winston Churchill was rejected by the more than 400 delegates, representing 47,000 B.C. veterans at the convention.

The motion was defeated by a heavy vote. But delegates supported an amendment to the effect that Sir Winston's memory should be kept green with "a simple ceremony in the schools."

Many Victoria veterans are critical of a ruling by the federal department of veterans' affairs that the Canadian Ensign cannot be used at military funerals or at funerals arranged by the department.

But so far the ruling has not been debated on the floor of the convention.

"It is scandalous that, if a Canadian veteran wishes to be buried under the Red or White Ensign, his wishes should be ignored by the government," said Major Eric Henderson, a Victoria veteran of the Canadian Scottish.

GROSS INTERFERENCE

Another veteran said the ruling was "a gross interference" with individual rights.

"It is like passing a law to the effect that a man must not be buried by the church of his faith. And, if this sort of thing continues, that could happen."

Dominion president Fred O'Brecht, Ottawa, said there are close to 1,000,000 war veterans in Canada, of whom 250,000 belong to the Royal Canadian Legion.

"One of our tasks should be to see that the great sacrifices made by Canadians in the First World War are no forgotten."

Mr. O'Brecht said 100,000 Canadians were killed in the First and Second Wars and the Korean War.

Earlier in the convention, Lieutenant - Governor George Pearkes said:

'TOO YOUNG . . .'

"More than half the population of Canada is too young to remember even the start of the Second World War.

"It is imperative that the Legion shoulder the responsibility of guiding these youngsters to a proper recognition of the sacrifices made by Canadians who gave their lives in defence of Canada."

Tuesday evening delegates to the convention were entertained by all Greater Victoria branches of the Royal Canadian Legion.

The four-day convention winds up with a banquet in the Curling Rink at 7 tonight when the guest speaker will be B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin.

At the head table will be Hon. Justice Mervyn Woods, past dominion president from Saskatoon; Raymond Tow, representing the British Ministry of Pensions in Ottawa, and Col. R. B. Longridge of the Victoria zone.

Satellite Takes Bids To Auction

LONDON (AP) — Bidders on both sides of the Atlantic took part Monday night via the Early Bird satellite in the first inter-continental art auction. A 1945 Italian landscape by Sir Winston Churchill went to a wealthy Texan, bidding from New York, for a record £14,000 ($42,000).

The Churchill painting showed the picturesque town of Managgio on Lake Como. The best previous price for a Churchill painting has been £9,000 ($27,000).

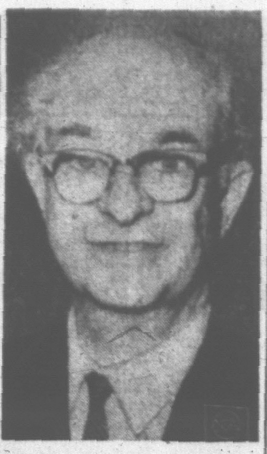
Sotheby's said the buyer of the Churchill painting was John Rowna, an interior decorator acting for John E. Newman, a Houston, Texas, oil millionaire.



NOBEL PRIZE chemist Linus Pauling has accused President Johnson of trickery and manipulation of the U.S. Congress in the Viet Nam situation. The U.S. constitution gives congress the power to declare war, but Mr. Johnson's manipulations prevented a debate on a war declaration, Mr. Pauling said.

BRAZILIAN FORCE READY TO MOVE IN

1,700 U.S. Troops to Leave War-Torn Island

SANTO DOMINGO (Reuters) The United States today was expected to begin the withdrawal of some 1,700 troops from the Dominican Republic despite a political stalemate in the more than month-old civil war.

Diplomatic observers said U.S. efforts to reach a quick political solution to the Dominican crisis appeared to have given way to a more patient American policy with perhaps a lesser role being played by Washington.

The withdrawal of 1,700 U.S. troops during the next few days was timed to coincide with the arrival of 1,250 Brazilian troops of the inter-American peace force.

Officials here said the U.S. would withdraw about 600 troops in the next day or so. The total American force here is about 22,000 men.

Peace plans were stalled Tuesday when the right - wing military junta leader, Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera, accused the U.S., the United Nations, and the Organization of American States of "open interference" in the embattled republic's affairs.

Approval was also being given to an increasing mediation role by the OAS, particularly that of Secretary-General Jose Mora.

The U.S.-stated view of the Dominican situation is that the rapid dispatch of troops to save lives of Americans and other foreign nationals and to forestall a Communist takeover has achieved its purpose.

It now appears virtually certain that Washington had pinned its hopes for a quick solution to the crisis on a coalition government headed by Antonio Guzman, a supporter of exiled former president Juan Bosch.

But this plan ran into strong opposition from Imbert, who heads the regime known as the "reconstruction" government as opposed to rebel leader Col. Francisco Caamano Deno's "constitutional" forces.

Although Caamano was willing to stay out of a coalition government, he insisted that it be based on the Bosch constitution of 1963. But this was anethema to the anti-Boschists in Imbert's camp.

Swamp Studied As Sanctuary

Saanich council has voted to proceed with caution in acquiring Rithet's swamp for recreational use.

Tuesday council approved a motion calling for a botanical and planning study of the area to determine if it could be used successfully as a sanctuary.

A second part of the motion calls for an appraisal of the actual value of the land.

Earlier council's $15,000 offer for the 96-acre parcel was rejected by the owners, Burdge Farms Ltd. The company is asking $50,000.

The land was purchased by Burdge in 1954 for $5,000 subject to a number of covenants which restrict the land to agricultural use.

Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe suggested expropriation proceedings could be started if a "reasonable" offer was refused by the owners.

"But there is no cause for alarm," he added.

Council is confident the property owners on Royal Oak Avenue would not agree to release the covenants on the property if the land were sold to a private company or individual.

"There is no emergency in this case," said Reeve Hugh Curtis. "I think we have taken this as far as we should at this time."

What Has Happened To Service?

Discussion arose from a complaint by Mrs. G. F. Dunlop, 877 Ellery, who said small dogs running through her garden are ruining it, and force of numbers would keep her busy calling the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals at least daily and "twice on Sundays."

The SPCA does pound service for the municipality, which was the first in Greater Victoria to sign an agreement for the service.

"They were doing a bang-up job then; what has happened to the service?" asked Coun. Arthur Mebs.

Noting they were the first to sign with the SPCA, Reeve A. C. Wurtele commented, "Maybe they had more time for us then."

The SPCA will be asked to report on why service is down. Mrs. Dunlop said she was told by the society it had only three men and two trucks to perform all functions.

Sidney Wants Tourists

Sidney council Tuesday agreed to meet the Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce to discuss ways and means of attracting more visitors to Sidney.

Comm. Douglas Taylor suggested council use the business tax to finance any worthwhile Chamber of Commerce promotion plan for the village.

"I don't think we should set ourselves up as an advertising agency for the chamber," replied village chairman A. A. Cormack. "I object to the business tax being placed in a special fund for this specific purpose."

But he said he was in favor of meeting chamber officials to discuss any plan for making the village more attractive for visitors.

"It's up to them to come up with a plan," he said.

Plaster Job, Paint Saves City $19,000

A plaster job and a coat of paint may help save the city all or part of $19,000 earmarked for a baked enamel aluminum screen for the rear of the police station.

Victoria city manager Dennis Young reported to Centennial Square committee Tuesday that since the paint went on the building looks vastly better and may not require the expensive screen previously authorized as a separate contract.

"It is anything but unsightly, and when mature trees are planted at the rear of the building, it may well blend in with the rest of the square," the manager said.

Of course, "the architects all throw their hands up in dismay," he added.

NOTHING TO LOSE

But he suggested there is nothing to lose in waiting.

It was intended to cover the rear of the building and two sides of the cell block—hiding steel-barred windows—with a louvre-type screen to admit light and air.

"I suspect we will end up doing it anyway," Mayor R. B. Wilson said.

"Those bars have got to be covered."

"That's the only thing that bothers me," added Ald. A. W. Toone, who also felt the appearance was improved.

"Personally, I don't think this thing should be taken too lightly," said architectural consultant Roderick Clack.

GOOD PLAN

He pointed out the design team had a good plan and the estimate for installing a screen was well below what had been considered originally.

"I think it would be the only building in the square to present an incompleted appearance," Mr. Clack said.

U.K. Troops In Libya Withdrawing

LONDON (AP) — The British government disclosed Monday it intends to make a partial military withdrawal from the kingdom of Libya by March.

Defence Secretary Denis Healey told the House of Commons that after talks with the government of King Idris el Senussi the British have agreed:

—To pull a battalion of the famous Green Howards from Tripolitania, which is the sophisticated part of the kingdom.

FARMER

'No One Victor In Dispute'

Victoria contractor George Farmer has offered to settle an extra cost of $14,102 for Centennial Square carpark building without going to arbitration.

Victoria city council square committee was told Tuesday of Mr. Farmer's offer, based on the assumption that in a formal arbitration, "no one emerges victor."

The city and contractor clashed last winter when subsoil work for carpark footings ran the project into difficulty, necessitating some design changes.

There was a delay of several weeks, which cost the city some winter works recoveries on labor charges.

ABSORB SOME COSTS

Mr. Farmer said he is willing to absorb some of the cost, but a report by city engineer James Garnett indicates the city's position was technically beyond criticism.

There was corroborating material furnished in additional soil tests, which cost another $2,300, the committee was told.

Mass Graves Found

WARSAW (AP)—Mass graves were found at Rakow, near the town of Piotrkow in central Poland, the official Polish press agency, PAP, says. The agency quoted experts as saying they were remains of people executed by machine-gun fire because empty shells were found on the spot.

IN SQUARE

Walkers Taking Nasty Knocks

After six months of pratfalls in the pleasant paved area centring on the Greater Victoria fountain, Victoria city council square committee Tuesday talked about instaling walking aids to reduce accidents.

Mostly older people, the fallers apparently have difficulty distinguishing the different levels presented by wider than usual steps having a brick edge.

Special projects and architectural consultant Roderick Clack advocates the use of pedestrian bollards set up in the pavement between steps and fountain to help people orient themselves, lending visual perception.

PLANTERS WANTED

City manager Dennis Young and Ald. A. W. Toone hold out for planters to do the same job, while Mayor R. B. Wilson feels a few handrails on the steps themselves may lend perception as well as assist people up and down the steps.

People are also falling over cables used to guy new plane trees planted in the sidewalk near Douglas Street, committee was told.

More warning flashes and pieces of red ribbon will be used in future, the members agreed.

★ ★ ★

The old folks' recreation centre will be ready for occupancy in about two weeks, but there will be no furnishings and equipment by then.

The committee suggested early July for the building dedication ceremony, to be turned over to council entertainment committee for verification.

Furnishings and equipment will cost $19,000, for which tenders will be called. Money will come from an old Mountain View Home bequest for entertainment purposes.

About $3,700 worth of cutlery and china will also be bought, and a kitchen range for $857.

★ ★ ★

Land commissioner Alfred Joyce reported four of the seven arcade shops adjoining the carpark have been rented, the last to a beauty salon.

Members agreed that addresses for the new shops should be distinctive, probably even numbers starting at 2—e.g. 8 Centennial Square, Victoria.

Mrs. Harold Husband's gift of $1,335 will be acknowledged by the committee and council. The sum paid for planting the three mature plane trees along Douglas.

Long Search For Leader

LONDON (CP) — British authorities say three months of behind-the-scenes soundings among the 21 member countries have failed to produce agreement on the man to head the new Commonwealth secretariat.

The British government had hoped a consensus would be reached before the prime minsters gather here for their June 17-25 conference. This hope now has been abandoned.

APPOINTMENT to the senior staff of the Fourth Allied Tactical Air Force in Ramstein, Germany, is announced for Group Captain H. W. Lupton, 45, of Victoria. He has been senior air staff officer at Air Transport Command at Trenton, Ont., since July, 1961. He takes his new position in July.

SQUARE LANDSCAPING

In 8 Months—Costs Double

Victoria city council faces a $37,000 beautification job at Centennial Square old folks' recreation centre and police station—with only $18,600 to pay for the work.

"There is no flexibility in the present budget," city manager Dennis Young regretfully told members of Centennial Square committee Tuesday.

"The only place we can look to for additional funds is tax sale land."

Mr. Young said there is $53,000 in the tax sale fund unallocated at this point.

"We can't leave the Square unfinished," he added.

"This was the original intent," Mayor R. B. Wilson said.

He said it was intended that tax sale money be used as the need and availability of money became apparent.

It was recommended that the existing landscaping contract be extended to cover the additional sums, which includes two phases—$21,810 and $15,102.

Noting the more than 100 per cent increase, Mr. Young commented: "This is one of those unfortunate situations without satisfactory explanation." It could be partly explained by an eight-month delay in the work from bidding time.

Highway Closed

TERRACE (CP) — Highways officials here said Tuesday the northern trans-provincial highway at Legate Creek has been closed until further notice.

EX-CONGO MINISTER ARRESTED BY POLICE

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Former foreign minister Justin Bomboko of The Congo was arrested Tuesday night with 100 armed companions, police sources reported today.

Police officials were reported to believe that Bomboko, an enemy of Premier Moise Tshombe, was behind bomb attacks which rocked Leopoldville several days ago.

these boots were idle four months out of every twelve. Today they're on the job the whole year round.

You used to see them hanging in pawn shop windows. Mute testimony that some logger was out of work. Forced out in the winter by snow. Closed out in the summer by fire hazard conditions. You don't see these boots in the city so often now. Our company took a second look at time-honoured logging practices in the light of today's new, powerful mobile equipment and advanced fire-fighting techniques. Then we decided to make a change. Now in summer we log the high regions when snows have receded and where fire hazards are low. During winter the lower, accessible areas are logged. The change has worked wonders. Now logging is year-round instead of only eight months. Year-round logging means new stability for the woods worker and his family; new productivity for our forest industry. Plus new security for everyone who depends on this industry. And in British Columbia that includes almost all of us.

Everest Expedition Makes It Look Easy

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Mount Everest was scaled Monday by the third successive party of an Indian expedition, it was announced here.

Two members of the expedition reached the 29,028-foot peak Thursday, two more Saturday, and the final pair reached the summit Monday, an expedition spokesman said.

In 1963, a United States expedition performed a similar feat, when two pairs climbed from the south column by the same route the present expedition used, and a third pair made the first ascent by the west buttress.

The Indian expedition planned to send a record-breaking fourth pair to the summit but the weather was reported deteriorating.

Canada UN Proposal Wins Shah's Support

MONTREAL (CP)—The Shah of Iran, on a three-day visit to Montreal as part of his state visit to Canada, came out strongly in support of Canada's suggestion that there should be a permanent United Nations peace force when he answered questions at a press conference here Monday.

Of the American actions in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic, the shah said: "Either you are for or against the principle of standing against aggression, and I see no difference between standing against aggression in Viet Nam and Berlin. In the other place (the Dominican Republic) I think it more the responsibility of the OAS to get together and find a solution.

"It is clear the United Nations is not as strong as it should be. If it was, no country would have to take on the responsibility the United States has assumed."

The Shah and Empress Farah were ni Toronto today to wind up their eight-day Canadian tour.

Open Meeting On Planning Use of Land

Community planning in the capital region will be the topic of discussion here tonight and Thursday night by professionals and other interested persons.

The Capital Region Planning Board's comprehensive long-range transportation study and a British film, Traffic in Towns, will spur comment at the annual meeting Thursday of Community Planning Association, 8 p.m., 1216 Broad.

It will be open to the public.

Implications of land use as a result of the report's recommendations will be a major point of discussion. The reservation of green belt and parklands is also expected to be involved.

Tonight at 8 p.m., Room 316 of the Young Building at University of Victoria Lansdowne campus, the film, How to Live in a City, will be shown.

SPENCES BRIDGE (CP) — John Kujbus, 55-year-old cook's helper at a mining operation, was killed Friday when his car went out of control on the Trans-Canada Highway eight miles north of here. Two passengers in the car were slightly injured but did not require hospital treatment.

111-Year-Old Dies

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Harry Eagen died quietly Friday at Modesto State Hospital where his age was estimated at between 111 and 125. Dr. William O'Brien, superintendent of the hospital, said sketchy records showed Eagen was at least 111.

Commonwealth Gets Salute at Ceremony

LONDON (CP) — Trumpet fanfares and a parade of the 21 Commonwealth flags down the 900-year-old aisle of Westminster Abbey added a touch of medieval pageantry at Britain's first Commonmealth Day service Monday.

A message from the Queen —who is touring West Germany—read by 23-year-old Prince William, eldest son of the Duke of Gloucester, began the hour-long service. The abbey was packed by iore than 1,000 representatives of Commonwealth countries and institutions.

Special guests included the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, most of the Commonwealth high lommissioners and agents-general, members of both Houses of Parliament and distinguished businessmen and others leaders connected with commonwealth activities.

LEARN ABOUT OTHERS

In her message, the Queen said each individual should seek out chances to learn more about the people of other Commonwealth countries "so that we may have the warmth of fellow feeling and the vision to work together for the good of the world in years to come."

The lesson was read by Viscount Amory, former British high commissioner in Ottawa and now chairman of the joint Commonwealth Society's council.

In his sermon Rev. David Paton, secretary of the missionary and ecumenical council of the Anglican church assembly, said the Commonwealth exists "as a single universe of trusting, consultations and in this divided world that is no small thing."

Canada was represented by Gordon Bull, a second secretary. The high commissioner, the deputy high commissioner and the third-ranking representative at Canada House were all absent from London.

Britain has no official holiday on Commonwealth Day and until this year the Queen's message was read at a Sunday service for Commonwealth youth held usually in May.

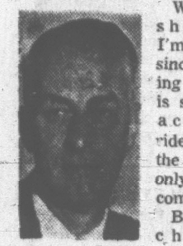
Arthur Mayse

Ever since the day when Times photographer Irving Strickland and I ventured out among flying hoofs and swinging mallets to get a picture-story on the revitalized Vancouver Island Polo and Riding Club, the sight of mounted madmen bashing a bamboo root ball has fascinated me.



Why this should be, I'm not sure, since my liking for horses is strictly academic. I ride one of the beasts only under compulsion.

But a brisk chukker makes good watching from the sidelines of the club's Bermuda grass field off Island View Road, and I was disappointed when the holiday weekend game was postponed to early next month.

By then, if the weather stays summery, the turf over which the club's 30 nimble mounts will scurry should be in proper shape.

Mr. and Mrs. Polo on our green peninsula are veterinary doctors Bill and Barbara Powell, who dropped in with a season schedule last week.

If the rain stays away, a game will be staged every Sunday through the season. The one I'm looking forward to is lined up for July 4, when a Portland team and local riders will tussle for the City of Victoria Cup.

When I first mentioned it a few days ago, Dr. Cliff Carl of the Provincial Museum wasn't available for comment. But on Monday, Dr. Carl told me that the great canoe has been up there as long as he can remember. He suggests it was stored by some museum curator of an earlier era, and because of lack of exhibiting space, left to gather dust.

One thing's sure: whoever undertakes to fetch the canoe down has a ticklish job on his hands, since the ground floor offices of the bureau now practically surround it.

No mystery, however, is the origin of the tiger tails that have sprouted from a number of Victoria cars. Their sponsor is an oil company which boasts the super-punch of its gasoline through a tiger in its advertising.

Personally, I'm by no means sure that the tiger is the best of symbols. I quit being a tiger behind the wheel the night a couple of us helped the highway cops search the roadside rough for a pretty girl's severed head.

After that, I became a rabbit-type car pilot . . . reasonably brisk but wary, with an earnest conviction that the business of a driver is to get himself and his passengers from here to there as smoothly and safely as possible.

Same on the water, where each year the sea-going tigers are making themselves more of a headache to non-exhibitionist boatmen.

I'm not going to make a pitch for the licensing of pleasure boat operators; in fact I hope we never reach the point where it's necessary.

That, though, may be mere wishful thinking, since there exist among us, marine cut-ups whose fun takes a keener edge when they can perpetrate a nuisance on others.

Like the jerk who roars full-throttle through a group of fishing craft.

Or the dope who swings a water skier into a cove populated by bathers.

If boatmen find themselves licenced and sternly regulated, it will be the fault of such boatniks as these.

Well, the Clay-Liston 'fight' is over, and it would appear that the abused, racket-ridden business of professional boxing has taken a blow considerably harder than the so-called anchor punch administered by loud-mouthed Cassius with an assist from Allah.

There have been fast knockouts, of course, when heavyweights clashed. The second Louis-Schmelling fight was over almost before we had settled down to watch it.

But they were giants in those days, and I verily believe Jack Louis in his prime could have taken on both of Tuesday night's ring buffoons at once.

Dancers Twirl, Whirl To Winners' Circle

It was a bonnie day for Victoria highland dancers when they twirled and skirled their way to the top in a Penticton competition over the Victoria Day weekend.

Winner of the grand aggregate trophy with three first places and one second in the 16 years and over class, was Teresa White, 2722 Topp, a Grade 11 student from Oak Bay High School.

Other medal winners were Twyla Bolley, two firsts; Jonit Ruthven, two seconds; Shirley Harman, one second; Pat O'Rourke, one third, one second; Beverley Gait, one third, and Leslie Lord, one third.

The dancers will now be kept busy preparing for a series of summer highland games in the Victoria area.

Peacenik Sent Back To U.S. Via Ferry

He was picked up from city jail shortly after noon.

Officials would not disclose where Robinson was being taken.

Only comment was: "He will be taken by boat to some point in the U.S."

An immigration official was to accompany him.

Robinson has been in the city lock-up since last Friday.

Police picked him up at an address in the city only a few hours after he arrived from Vancouver by charter plane.

An all-points alert was put out for the peace marcher after he crashed the U.S.-Canadian border last Wednesday.

PAST RECORDS

Robinson and five other peace marchers from San Francisco had been denied entry on the grounds of past records and lack of capital.

He was to have spoken at a public rally in Beacon Hill Park Saturday morning, then accompanied Canadian marchers on the protest trip to RCAF Station Comox.

They will be joined there by others.

If they cannot enter the base they will hold a two-day sit-down at the main gate.

'Helicopter Canada' Meets Tallest Totem Eyeball to Eyeball

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

What is transparent, weighs practically nothing, has travelled from St. John, Nfld., to Victoria, and costs $11,800 for a 16-month rental?

And attached to the camera is a French-built and piloted Alouette II turbine helicopter, with the bright 11-sectored symbol of the Canada Centennial Commission on its side.

The whole rig—copter, camera and lens—with French pilot and engineer, and a veteran National Film Board cameraman, is in Victoria filming part of an hour-long coast-to-coast documentary for Canada's Centennial.

ZOOM LENSE

The lense alone carries $22,000 insurance.

'CHEAP'

Boyko, with camera, heli*copter and assistants,* has already buzzed across Canada in the eight months filming has been under way.

Having shot films for the National Film Board for 14 years, he is an expert at documentary work, and filmed the noted "Fields of Sacrifice" for the board several years ago.

Starting with a Newfoundland lighthouse keeper, who showed the way in "Canada's front door," Boyko has caught a cross-section of people and activities almost entirely as he wished.

"We have a script," he says, "but not a tight one."

"I know Canada quite well, and if I see something I like, I shoot it."

EASY-GOING

Victoria he sees as easy-going and slow-paced filled with a number of "the nice type of tourist traps."

"This may be a cliche, but this is the way I see it and I like it."

Boyko has taken advantage of his Department of Transport clearance to try any capers in the helicopter within the bounds of safety.

Monday he took off with the 400-horsepower, 36,000 rpm copter from the "Welcome to Victoria" sign beside the CPR ferry dock, and escalated up to look Captain Vancouver in the eye on his perch atop the Legislative Buildings.

In a practice run Tuesday he flew over Beacon Hill Park and hovered around the World's Tallest Totem which he photographed face-by-face for continuity with similar shots of a Vancouver totem.

"That way," says Boyko, "I can make my own world's tallest, tallest totem, by joining the film together."

The film will be shown abroad in 1966 and to Canadian audiences in Centennial Year.

IN THE CAMERAMAN'S SEAT behind the 35-mm. camera used to shoot a Centennial Year documentary across Canada is National Film Board's Eugene Boyko. With French-built craft, Alouette II, and French pilot, Boyko is half way through 16-month assignment which takes him from coast to coast.

Guns Banned In Parade Next Year

Officials announced this decision today after hearing of Monday's shooting accidents in which three people were injured.

No official protest of the action will be made until a directors' meeting of Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee next month.

But organizers have already had informal discussions and decided to take the action.

The injuries were caused by the blast from blank cartridges fired from 12-bore shotguns by a group of clowns.

Said a parade official today: "We had no idea these guns were to be used.

"We were horrified when we heard what had happened."

They appealed to the public to put forward suggestions which may improve future parades.

Talks Set Next Week On Regional College

'Urgent Need' For Senior Matriculation

Officials from three school districts will meet Thursday, June 3, to discuss establishment of a college to provide senior matriculation to students not wanting to take first-year university.

It would also provide facilities for students who have failed in one or two university entrance examinations to try again.

SOOKE IDEA

The proposal was first made by Sooke School Board. The Greater Victoria and rural Saanich school boards agreed Tuesday to explore the matter.

John H. Dalgleish, director of education for the Greater Victoria board, said there is a vital need for a college.

"The problem is that people are not yet fully aware of the need," he said. "A student has to leave Victoria if he wants to get further education."

He pointed out that many students who failed their first-year university did not necessarily lack brains, but were immature and not ready for university life.

NOWHERE TO GO

"Once they have failed they have nowhere else to go," he said. "A college would re-direct them to some other course or train them to be highly skilled technicians."

He said at present there are 1,008 adults registered at night schools. Forty of these are taking full-time matriculation or high school leaving courses.

The remainder are employed and working towards senior matriculation by taking one or two courses a year.

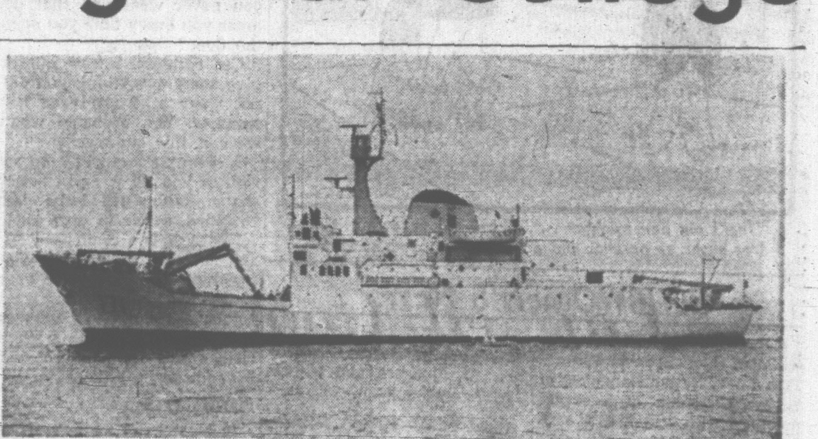
PROBLEMS AHEAD

"But it is evident that we are going to run into problems as the school population increases," she said.

Trustee Isabelle Reader of Sooke, said the district did not have sufficient students to warrant the establishment of a Grade 13.

"We feel a regional college for the whole area is the answer," she said. "Students would also be provided with better facilities. It would also serve adult education."



Endeavour did not like rough seas on trials.

Navy 'Isn't Too Worried' About Endeavour's Roll

Senior naval officials say they are not worried about the seaworthiness of the new naval research ship Endeavour.

The $4.5 million ship launched last September, has been restricted to inland waters until problems with stabilizing equipment are solved.

Crew members reported that she rolled so badly that at times there were fears that she would founder.

The harbor master ordered the vessel back to port and restricted further trials to inland waters.

A naval spokesman said this morning the problem is not regarded as serious by senior naval officers.

"We are not too worried about it," he said. "The problem can be overcome and will be overcome."

ADDS TO ROLL

The Endeavour, entirely new in design, is fitted with stabilizers which depend on the transfer of large tonnages of oil to oppose the normal rolling motion of the ship. If the system does not work properly it adds to the roll rather than control the motion.

"It has to be remembered that the Endeavour is entirely new in conception and design," the spokesman said. "It is quite likely that with so many radical differences she doesn't handle like a normal ship. We feel sure that once we have given careful study as to how she should be handled most of the problems will be solved."

The Endeavour, one year in building, was launched Sept. 4, 1964, and handed over to the navy March 9 of this year.

FIRST OF KIND

It was the first ship of its kind specifically designed in Canada for defence research.

The 1,560-ton diesel-electric ship is 235 feet long and has a cruising range of 10,000 miles. She has a cruising speed of 12 knots and a top speed of 16 knots.

Air-conditioned throughout the ship carries a civilian crew of 36 plus 14 scientists and two helicopter experts.

Built to naval research design by Yarrows the ship is still in her trial period.

"She rolled to a greater degree than was expected when in high seas," the naval spokesman said. "All we have to do is make the necessary adjustments and she will be ready to go out again. In the meantime she will be restricted, naturally, to calm waters."

"If you have a car with enging defects you don't set out on a long trip until you have checked the vehicle out," he said. "This is no different. We have a ship of radical design which handles differently to other ships. We had trouble with the stabilizer equipment on the high seas so we just brought her in for checks and adjustments."

EX-CITY MAN IN HERO'S ROLE

Diving Waiter Saves Chum

Former Oak Bay High School student Larry Russell, 23, of 879 St. Patrick, made five hazardous dives Monday to a car submerged in Burns Lake with four people trapped inside.

Larry, who now works as a waiter in Burns Lake, was a passenger in the car when it missed a turn on to the Burns Lake Bridge and went into the lake.

He told police he crawled out of the car through a broken windshield, forced open a door and pulled one man to safety.

BODIES RECOVERED

Russell said he dived into the water five times to try and find the other two men and two women.

Police later recovered the bodies of Pierre Ouelette, 26, of Fort Kent, Alta.; William McCartney, 27, of Powell River; Violet Starrett, 19, of Topley Landing, and Mary Tom, 48, of Smithers.

By Penny Saver

Last Sunday was a beautiful summery hot day . . . and I have the sunburn to prove it! I wandered down to the beach in the afternoon, bathing suit and all, and proceeded to fall asleep—right at the hottest part of the whole day. When I awoke, my back looked as though I had been dumped in the nearest crab pot and boiled. Ooh, was it sore! The next day, I painfully limped into town to find something to relieve and heal the horrible mess.

Now, relief for my condition has come in an unbreakable plastic bottle of soothing, cooling lotion. Applied evenly over the burned area, the special medicated ingredients in the lotion go to work immediately to lubricate and loosen skin stretched tight by the burn.

When it is used, the flesh-toned lotion leaves a pleasant light scent, and, ladies—you don't need to worry about roughness or greasiness when putting on stockings over top of a burned leg. This even stops the scratchiness of fabric.

This is priced at $1.69 a bottle. Do not put it on a burned surface which has been opened or has formed severe lesions.

Here's a tip for the lucky person who tans easily. Now, a well-known cosmetic house has formulated a new lubricating sun-tan lotion which contains a special sun-screening ingredient. This ingredient reduces the amount of ultra-violet rays which tan but can sometimes prove harmful to skin from overexposure.

This replaces skin oils the sun dries, keeping the tan smooth and sleek and preventing unsightly peeling. Price is $1.39.

Another thing which summer is famous for is its crop of mosquitos and other annoying little biting insects. Protect yourself and your family by applying the new insect repellent I found, selling for 79 cents. It is in a stick form with a special ingredient pesky pests intensely dislike. The scent of this is light and pleasant and soon disappears. Non-greasy, it won't stain or harm clothes.

THINK THIN AND STAY UNRUFFLED

NEW YORK (UPI) — How do you face summer weather—hot and bothered? or cool and collected?

Your mental attitude, you see, can keep you as unruffled as a courreges suit. One good formula for staying cool: take Cary Grant's advice for losing weight—think thin. And apply it to the things in your life.

So your figure is perfect. But what shape is your closet in? Flabby-full with clothes you never wear and that depress you every time you open the door?

Get ruthless. Throw out or give away everything you did not wear at least twice last summer. You probably won't wear it this summer.

A skinny closet will keep the clothes you do wear in better shape. They will be less wrinkled, easier to care for.

Neatness is a cool character, and comes easier if your grooming aids are where your clothes are. Hang an extra shoebag on your closet door and tuck into its little pockets a good clothes brush, an adhesive tape lint remover, a little sewing kit.

HANDY ITEMS

Include one of the new apply, let dry and brush off spot-liters to handle spot cleaning assignments. Tuck an extra pair of stockings in your shoebag and leave them there for emergencies.

Put your chest of drawers on a diet, too, for a cool summer. Throw out that old sweater that you never wear, and all the too-long slips you've been hanging onto until skirts head for greater lengths.

Sparse, orderly dresser drawers are easier to keep in order. The neatness helps to contribute to a psychological feeling of coolness, regardless of the soaring temperature.

Think thin when it comes to choosing your new summer wardrobe to fill the empty spaces. Spare little dresses, well-cut to hang straight from your shoulders without excess material, will keep you looking cool.

CLEAN SILHOUETTES

Choose your pared-down dresses in fabrics with enough body and stiffness to stay cool and crisp all day. A clean-edged silhouette will lower the visual temperature, but yards of extra fabric swirling around will make you look and feel hotter.

Thin, airy sheers might sound cool, but the general effect is too often untidy and limp. And those sheer fabrics mean wearing a heavier slip underneath—not a good idea. Each layer ups the temperature. A heavier or lined fabric means you can eliminate an extra layer and stay cooler.

Once you've started thinking thin, you won't be happy with a handbag that looks like an overnight case. Keep it small. Pare down contents to the minimum.

Medical scientists have been telling us for years that excess body weight makes the body temperature rise. A clutter of excess weight of things around us makes our psychological temperature rise, too.

Think thin about the things about you and help yourself to cooler times when days are hot.

Double Diamond Wedding For Two Couples Tonight

To celebrate the diamond wedding anniversaries of two member couples, the Fifty and Up Club are holding an "open house" in the Cade Memorial Hall this evening.

Highlight of the event will be when Rev. A. G. Atkins officiates at a "wedding ceremony" for the four, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Pearson and Mr. and Mrs. John Ellis.

Married on June 8, 1905, in Barrow-in-Furness, Lancashire, Eng., Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pearson moved to Calgary in 1911. They were there until Mr. Pearson's retirement in 1945, when the couple came to Victoria.

The couple have one daughter, Mrs. John Vredik, Calgary, and three grandchildren. Later this month, Mr. and Mrs. Pearson will travel to Calgary to attend a reception given by their daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis were married June 21, 1905, in Chatham, Ont. The couple made their home in Detroit, Mich., and Davidson, Sask., until 1953 when they came to Victoria. They have eight children: Donald, Standard, Alta.; Jack, Moose Jaw, Sask.; Robert, Qu'Appelle, Sask.; Harold, Medicine Hat, Alta.; Harvey, Victoria; Mrs. Dorothy Wilmer, Davidson, Sask.; Mrs. Velma Powell, Regina, and Mrs. Mary Wilkinson, Kamloops, B.C. There are 21 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

In charge of the wedding ceremony arrangements is Adam Glover. P. Ferris and Mrs. J. Thomson are in charge of flowers. Decorations will be convened by Mrs. Glover.

DEAR ABBY . . .

It's Not Practical!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY, I've been married to a successful attorney for 30 years. Our children are grown and gone. My husband is a wonderful, generous man. He's been very good to me, but I have never known where we stood financially. He has always given me a generous allowance to run the house, and I never asked any questions.

It just occurred to me that in all the years we've been married he has brought home a blank income tax form for my signature. Then he would take it to his office to fill out later. I know nothing about his total income, deductions, etc. Do you think I'd be asking for trouble if, next time, I refused to sign it until he fills it out so I'll know what's what?

CURIOUS.

DEAR CURIOUS: As an attorney your husband surely knows the many complications wives face when they suddenly become widowed with no knowledge of their husband's financial affairs. You should be aware of what he owns and what he owes. It's only common sense for a wife to know the score. Ask your husband to fill you in NOW instead of filling out his income tax form "later."

DEAR ABBY: My wife is a crackpot on the subject of smoking. What gets me is she never complained about it before we were married. In fact, while we were going together, she even bought me a lighter for my birthday. Now she raises the roof whenever I light a cigarette. She said she wouldn't object so much if I ran around with other women. (She knows she's safe.) She isn't worried about my health because I smoke less than a pack a day. She has a few annoying little habits like cracking her knuckles and putting five teaspoons of sugar in her coffee, but I don't say anything. We've been married for 18 years. I am 48 and she's 37. How can I get my wife off my back about smoking?

SAM

DEAR SAM: Your marriage could go up in smoke long after the flame of love has quit burning. Your wife is getting even with you for something, and your smoking has provided her with a handy smoke screen. Find out the real reason.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married soon and we plan to take a cabin on a lake for our honeymoon. I was thinking of taking my 12-year-old sister with us so she could take pictures of my husband and me together. If we were to go alone, we would have to settle for pictures of ourselves taken by each other.

My fiance says it okay with him, but he thinks it might seem silly to some people. Please answer soon. Thank you.

MAKING PLANS.

DEAR MAKING: A picture is supposed to be worth 10,000 words, but I doubt if it's worth taking your 12-year-old sister along on your honeymoon. Leave her home and ask a friendly tourist to assist you.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if other women have had this stunt pulled on them, and how they handled it? I have been invited to luncheons and even dinner parties where there are three and sometimes four "hostesses" who have gone in together to give the party. Now, I always reciprocate when I have accepted an invitation. But at some of these affairs I have known only one hostess—the one who invited me. Am I indebted to ALL the hostesses, or just the one who invited me? Please print the answer. Either I have a lesson to learn, or some of my friends have.

SHIRLEY.

DEAR SHIRLEY: You are indebted only to the hostess who invited you.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a man who tells his wife she should be able to do all her housework in a few hours and then sit down for the rest of the day? I am 27 and have five children. The youngest is eight months old and the oldest is seven. My husband never offers one bit of help, which is all right, if he just wouldn't voice his opinion on how things could be done easier and better. If the kids are sick, he says it's my fault for not taking better care of them. If I am sick, he has a fit. I had infectious hepatitis last year. The doctor said all I could do was "rest" and my husband said I was just plain lazy. I would leave him in a minute—but where can a woman with an 8th grade education go with five kids?

OLD BEFORE THIRTY.

DEAR OLD: Your mate is hardly a gem. But what you saw in him eight years ago has probably been obscured by the steam of boiling diapers. Think back. And then ask a Family and Children Service counselor to help you back into each other's arms and off each other's backs.

Couple Takes Indian Tots to Their Hearts

HOME FOR THE HOMELESS

By JUDY CREIGHTON

Joy and happiness for CPO and Mrs. Stanley MacCoy means four adorable brown-eyed Indian tots. These wonderful people who already have a quartet of children themselves, are the foster parents to Earnest, two years; Roseanne and Billy, three years and Donna, five.

The MacCoys were named foster parents of the year recently by the Victoria Diocesan Council, Catholic Women's League and a more deserving honor could not have been given.

Out at their home in Belmont Park, Stanley and Phyllis MacCoy are fostering an urgent need and making a success as white parents to these colored children.

TIME TO SPARE

Mrs. MacCoy explains how they became interested in caring for the homeless babies. "When my youngest boy Rick started school, I just didn't know what to do with myself. I spent so much time scrubbing floors, and generally being the 'perfect' housewife, that it nearly drove Stan wild!"

Not a "joiner" of womens' and social groups, Phyllis decided to make use of that time on her hands.

"In the past two-and-a-half years, six children have been fostered by us and I can tell you it's been a marvelous experience," says Phyllis.

Her only sorrow is the 'semi-permanent' basis on which the children are taken. "But I feel better knowing that when a child must return to its' parents, that the problems at home have been ironed out and there is still hope for the child's welfare."

As we talked in her comfortable living room, the four foster children romped, chattered and generally enjoyed themselves. They were joined by the four MacCoy children, Bob, 16 years old; Lynn, 14; Cathy, 12 and Rick, eight. Phyllis beamed, "Having the little ones about, has done so much for our own children in teaching them to realize how fortunate they really are."

NOT AGGRESSIVE

She gave an example of this feeling. "The first Christmas we had the children, our own four excitedly tore open their gifts as most youngsters do. Not the Indian children. They just sat and stared and it was then we realized that for them, the receiving of presents was a very rare experience."

A few problems have naturally beset the MacCoys. Phyllis explained, "As each little one arrived we noticed how very subdued he or she was. When our children went to the cookie jar, the foster child would stand and stare with beseeching eyes, but would never ask for anything. It was pathetic."

Slowly the children have been taught to be more aggressive and to speak up when in need. "In fact," laughs Phyllis "sometimes, the little girls won't stop talking!"

NO PREJUDICE

Heartening too, is the fact that the children's color has enhanced the situation. "No one has ever questioned the race of the children—in fact I would be astounded if anyone did!" exclaims Phyllis.

Donna attends a local kindergarden in Belmont Park. "The teacher has been wonderful with her, and she is as bright as any five-year-old."

The MacCoys have found the foster children most affectionate. "It takes time to build up the faith of an unwanted and unloved child no matter what it's race, but the obvious closeness of these children to us, just proves that we are getting through to them."

FILL REAL NEED

Though the children are financially cared for by the Family and Children's Service, the real need is being filled by the MacCoys.

"Stan and I could never turn down a homeless child—we love youngsters too much," says 36-year-old Phyllis.

"There will always be room for one more in our home—this experience has given our lives the greatest fulfillment."

Pink Flowers Form Setting For Gregory-Regan Vows

Baskets of pink gladioli and snapdragons were on the altar of Oak Bay United Church recently, when Sandra Emily Regan, exchanged wedding rings with Kenneth Charles Gregory.

Rev. A. Calder officiated at the ceremony uniting the daughter of Mrs. Thelma Regan, 924 Wilmer Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Gregory, 1533 Clawthorpe Street.

ESCORTED BY BROTHER

Given in marriage by her brother, John R. Regan, the bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon organza over taffeta, styled with a detachable lace train. The chantilly lace bodice of the gown featured a portrait neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Highlighting the skirt were appliques of lace, centred with sweetheart bows. A band of taffeta, ending in a bridal bow at the back, accented the waistline. Her three-tier veil of nylon illusion net misted to shoulder-length from a coronet of seed-pearls and lace, centred with white roses. Only jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the groom, and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink Briarcliffe roses.

Matching Empire-line gowns of aqua nylon crepe were the choice of bridesmaids, the Misses Wendy Brinkworth, Winifred Wright and Laurna Cullimore. Headpieces were toning pill boxes, edged with net, and they carried bouquets of pink marguerites and feathered carnations.

Debbie Hoyle was flower girl for her cousin in a frock of pink taffeta, styled with a lace bodice. Her headpiece was a floral band and she carried a basket of blue marguerites.

Miniature figures of a bride and groom topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the bride's table at the reception following in Holyrood House. The cake was surrounded by tulle and roses. Candelabra completed table decorations.

W. C. Clarke proposed the toast to his niece.

For travelling on a honeymoon trip to Los Angeles, the bride donned a turquoise wool boucle suit with matching hat and bone accessories. Pink rosebuds en corsage completed her ensemble.

Beauty and Medical Parlor 'On Wheels' In Outback

HAVANA (Reuters) — Far from banishing feminine beauty aids as bourgeois, Cuba is instituting mobile beauty parlors for women living in remote areas.

The mobile parlor, however, is only the lighter side of a much more serious "health and beauty brigade" plan aimed at bringing a general medical service to isolated hamlets.

Every Sunday, a 36-member jeep-borne commando of doctors, nurses, hairdressers and manicurists sets out over the dirt tracks from Manati, in eastern Cuba. Their object is to give isolated hill dwellers in the outlying regions a general medical checkup and minister to women's beauty needs.

Manati has been chosen as the pilot project. But it is expected that the program will soon be extended to other regions, especially to the isolated areas in the north of Oriente Province, eastern Cuba.

The "health and beauty brigade" is just one of the projects introduced by Premier Castro's regime to fill the medical void existing in rural areas here.

The general progress made in the country's health services is one of the successes on which the regime most prides itself.

According to official statistics, the total of doctors working for the national health service has virtually trebled and that of nurses quadrupled since Castro came to power.

WOMEN'S ROLE OUTLINED

Hospitality will be the major task of women across Canada during EXPO 67, says Mrs. Leslie J. Stuart, EXPO co-ordinator of women's groups.

"One of the most important roles for women will be in creating a friendly, hospitable atmosphere for our guests, for the performers at EXPO, for the students and for business delegations," she told the Women's Auxiliary of the McGill Museums.

"It will be most unfortunate if visitors from other countries do not get an opportunity to visit Canadian homes and Canadian families."

Mrs. Stuart appealed to women across Canada to open their homes to EXPO visitors who decide to see the country while they are here.

Women in the Montreal area will be doing similar work as part of the over-all accommodation plan know as Loge-Expo.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Involuntary Breathing Leads To Inadequate Respiration

Without breath there is no life. Nature was very wise to make breathing one of our involuntary acts. Our need for oxygen is so continuous that it would be quite a chore if we had to remember to breathe. The fact that nature takes care of this for us may cause us to be careless about doing our part.

Lowman

There is a tremendous difference between shallow chest breathing, which so many indulge in, and correct deep breathing. Adequate breathing cleanses the blood, improves nutrition and is a wonderful antidote for nervous tension. Deep breathing exercises are of real value to the person who spends much time indoors, who leads a sedentary life, who is nervous or suffers from malnutrition, who has a respiratory disease, or anyone who wishes to live at the top level of energy and zest.

Many people use less than half of their lungs when they breathe. They indulge in upper costal, or chest breathing. They breathe by raising their ribs. In order to use all of the lobes of the lungs the muscles of the diaphragm and abdomen and back must also come into play.

I think it is easier to get this feeling of deep breathing at first when lying down rather than standing. Lie on the floor on your back. Bend both knees and place your heels flat on the floor. Now breathe in through your nose. First get that feeling of deep breathing by expanding the muscles of your abdomen and diaphragm and back as the air flows into your lungs. Then carry it further by lifting your ribs and expanding your chest. Hold your breath for a few moments and then forcibly exhale through your mouth.

If you will practice a few deep breathing exercises daily you will soon find that the quality of your involuntary breathing has improved.

We have always longed for a fountain of youth. As more and more scientific discoveries appear on the modern scene the more we realize that the fountain of youth probably lies within ourselves. We just need to give nature a little help. Deep breathing is one way to do it and is a beneficial measure for every woman who wants to delay the aging process for as long as possible.

If you would like to have my breathing exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the leaflet "The Fountain of Youth." Address Josephine Lowman with your request for leaflet number 26 in care of this newspaper.

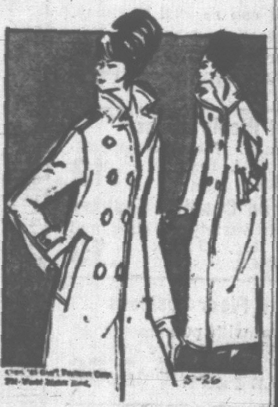
Line pie plate with pastry. Add half the salmon. Top with sliced eggs. Sprinkle with dill seed, salt, pepper and chunks of butter. Top with white sauce. Put in rest of salmon. Cover with pastry top. Seal edges, prick top and brush with beaten egg. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees F., 30 to 35 minutes or until well-browned. Makes six servings.



BE SMART—

Ah, what luxury, to have a real honest-to-goodness evening raincoat. (It seems that one just wants to seek bright lights when rain pours!) This is most elegant: a coachman's style in silk broadcloth and satin, treated for water repellency, of course.

Fluoridation Vote Set for Dec. 4

The issue will go to the voters Dec. 4, municipal election day, instead of June 19 as originally planned.

Reeve Allan Cox said he had "grave doubts" about getting a good turnout of electors on a "sunny Saturday in June."

Councillor Dr. Harold Carter also admitted he had a change of heart when the bylaw to put the matter before the public next month came up for first, second and third readings.

"I would hate to see this win by a small vote," the reeve said before the motion was amended.

SHIFTED SLOWLY

But council slowly shifted to the reeve's viewpoint.

Coun. Douglas Watts felt "this is an issue people would turn out and vote on."

He suggested the municipality advertise through press and radio.

Reeve Cox countered this with a proposal to mail voters a notice concerning the date.

OPEN HOUSE

Coun. Mrs. Frances Elford pointed out Ladysmith held an open house for a week in the city's council chamber and the mayor and councillors answered voters' questions there.

Another suggestion was to mail electors literature voicing pros and cons.

"Council can't give both sides in an unbiased way because we have come out in favor of it," said the reeve.

Councillors Walter Dodsworth and Fred Hawes also wanted to see it an election issue.

Coun. Bill Wade said it made no difference to him.

Coun. Carter said it would be better to defer the vote although he originally wanted to hold it at "the earliest date that is legal."

Coun. Watts and Coun. Elford dissented on the deferral when it came to a vote on first reading.

But they joined with other council members on votes in second and third readings.

Ambulance Fund Drive 'Too Soon'

An Oak Bay councillor felt slighted Tuesday night because a service club was trying to "dictate council policy."

Coun. Douglas Watts said Oak Bay Kiwanis Club has appealed for canvassers to raise funds to present the municipality with a new ambulance.

"It is most unfortunate to go out on a door-to-door canvass when home-owners are getting their tax notices," he said.

He stated the club appealed for the canvassers in an advertisement in the Oak Bay Leader.

"It is most unfortunate if this civic-minded group has embarrassed council but they are now dictating council policy," he added.

Reeve Allan Cox said he had discussed the project when approached by a club official.

ACTED TOO SOON

He said he wasn't going to "look a gift horse in the mouth" but did not think the club would act so soon.

Council had included funds for a new ambulance in its 1965 estimates but it was later dropped.

Reeve Cox said council had endorsed a recommendation to the BCHIS calling for provincial ambulance service.

Coun. Watts stated he had heard no reports on the ambulance being outdated or obsolete.

The original ambulance was presented to the municipality by the club which now wants to replace it as a Kiwanis golden anniversary project.

Coun. Fred Hawes said the club's proposal had "sort of committed the council for something."

"It was a worthwhile, public-spirited gesture on the part of the club but it got out of hand," the reeve said.

PTA Supported On Kindergarten

Oak Bay council Tuesday night endorsed a protest from Monterey PTA because the school board plans to discontinue a kindergarten there next year.

Children are now attending the kindergarten either in mornings or afternoons every other week.

The school board plans to end the service next fall to provide more classroom space for grades one to three.

Coun. Mrs. Frances Elford told council the preamble in the school money by-law last year stated kindergartens would be increased from 12 to 22.

"There are 15 this year but instead of this figure going up it will be reduced to 14," she said.

Social Security Official Plans Visit to City

A United States government official will visit here June 9 and 10 to give information on U.S. social security.

Field representative William Pierron of the U.S. Social Security Administration office in Bellingham, Wash., will be at the U.S. Immigration office in the CPR building, 468 Belleville, from noon to 4:30 p.m. June 9 and from 8:30 a.m. to noon, June 10.

"Canadian citizens as well as U.S. citizens may be eligible for benefits if they meet certain requirements," an official said.

"Persons now receiving U.S. social security cheques may have problems with change of address or other matters."

Mr. Pierron will have the necessary claim forms, as well as information leaflets.

According to the agriculture ministry, a total of 66 fishermen are still held by the Russians. Thirty-three others were released last week.

PROGRAM COVERS 1966 TO 1981

Saanich Eyes $14 Million Road Plan

Major road construction in Saanich between 1966 and 1981 will cost almost $14,000,000.

The program, based on the recommendations of the Capital Region Transportation Study, was received by Saanich council Tuesday.

The Saanich plan will be designed to handle a portion of the estimated 90,600 vehicles which will be in the Greater Victoria area by 1981.

The work will be done in three phases.

The first, between 1966 and 1970, reconstruction of heavily travelled roads to four-lane arteries will take up the major part of the estimated $2,946,000 cost.

The major roads affected will be Gorge Road, Burnside Road, Carey Road and Linwood Avenue. Saanich sections of Cook and Quadra streets will be reconstructed when Victoria completes construction of its sections of the streets as one-way roads.

Also during the first phase, crosstown roads such as Hillside and Cedar Hill Cross Road will be reconstructed to relieve congestion.

The second phase, 1971 to 1975, will cost an estimated $4,032,000.

During this phase emphasis is placed on crosstown roads and reconstruction of arterial roads in the urban area.

At the completion of Phase 2 more than half of the arterial roads, south of McKenzie Ave., will have been constructed to four-lane capacity.

Phase 3, 1976 to 1981, will see a total of 26 miles of roadway constructed or reconstructed at an estimated cost of $6,960,000.

FULL DEVELOPMENT

By the late 1970s the southern portion of the municipality will approach full development and most of the major roads south of McKenzie Avenue will require widening and reconstruction.

Admirals Road, Marigold Road and Agnes Street are recommended for construction as a continuous loop road between Craigflower Road and Douglas Street.

By 1981 the population of Saanich will be about 101,000.

The total cost of the plan will be offset by $2,776,000 worth of local improvement assessments.

One-eleventh of the total cost will be required for land purchasing.

Fulton Plans Quebec Foray

VANCOUVER (CP)—E. Davie Fulton said Tuesday he is going to try to revive Progressive Conservative party fortunes in Quebec.

Mr. Fulton, who announced his resignation as B.C. party leader in April, leaves his Kamloops home Sunday for a week-long visit to eastern Canada, including speeches and conferences in Montreal, Quebec City, Ottawa and Toronto.

"I would like to try to do something to keep the party going in Quebec," he said in an interview. "It has been through a bad time with the resignation of people like Balcer."

PERRAULT, PM WILL CONFER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Tuesday he will confer with Prime Minister Pearson on B.C.'s political climate May 31.

Perrault said Pearson invited him to the Ottawa meeting.

Asked if the talk was in any way connected with prospects of a federal election, Perrault said: "no comment."

"I shall be discussing a wide range of issues on conditions and problems in B.C.," he said.

ONE-MAN SHOW OPENS

Pensioner Likes to Paint

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

A West Coast Picasso or a modern day Matisse? More likely just a pensioner who likes to paint.

Robert H. Mann's one-man art show opened Tuesday at the Eagle Galleries, 1016 Fort.

The exhibition, termed "a modest show" by its 75-year-old creator, consists of 14 original oils, half of them landscapes, half seascapes.

PREFER COAST

"I'm more used to mountainous country, but I prefer the coast for scenery," says Mr. Mann.

"Perhaps it's because I was born on the coast of Scotland which is similar to be B.C. coast but more rugged," he adds.

Although he has been sketching since he was a boy, Mr. Mann has been painting seriously only in the last 10 years.

RETIRED 6 YEARS AGO

He describes it as an avocation which has taken up an increasing amount of his time since he retired six years ago as chief warden of Glacier and Mt. Revelstoke National Park.

Mr. Mann's wife Elizabeth also paints, but "not too vigourously," he says.

Since his retirement they have spent winters on the coast and summers in the Interior where they paint and sketch the scenery.

But it is the hard work which he puts into his art which "seems to count the most."

"They make no pretences at being abstract," he declares, "but at the same time they're not photographic."

In 1963 more than 40 of his canvasses were sold, most of them for about $40 or $50.

Abstract Oil Takes Top Prize at Show

A University of Victoria fine arts professor has won first prize in the Greater Victoria Art Gallery's jury show.

Donald Harvey's six-by-eight foot abstract oil, Ripple, was declared best in the show when decisions were announced at the exhibition's opening Tuesday.

Second prize was awarded to Maxwell Bates, an associate of the Royal Canadian Academy, for his oil, Kindergarten.

Show judges included Irene Hoffar Reid of Vancouver, president of the Canadian Group of Painters; Iain Baxter, assistant fine arts professor at UBC, and John Erickson, fine arts professor at the University of Washington, Seattle.

Honorable mention was awarded to works by Pat Martin Bates, Nita Forrest, Flemming Jorgenson, J. C. S. Wilkinson, and Molly Privett, all of Victoria.

E. Haxthow of Duncan, and Michael Morris of Sidney also received honorable mention.

'New Gods' Exciting

BROCKVILLE (CP) — A new Canadian play, Les Nouveaux Dieux (The New Gods) by a Montreal playwright proved an exciting and fascinating experience for adjudicator Guy Beaulne at the Dominion Drama Festival Tuesday.

Mr. Beaulne, director of theatre for the ministry of culture in Quebec, heaped praise on Jacques Duchesne's play which he said used all the resources of theatre to the fullest degree.

"The performance at this particular moment of our Canadian life and civilization has affected me greatly as an audience," said Mr. Beaulne.

He was particularly pleased, he said, with the use of lighting to emphasize the modern surrealistic scene. The focal point of the stage was a large vacant eye, in which constantly-changing abstract patterns of light appeared as a background to the action.

The play, which won the western Quebec regional drama festival earlier this year, also received praise for costuming, music and set design. But several of the short episodes could have been left out without harming the continuity, he said.

Reeve Curtis To Open Sketch Club Exhibit

Reeve Hugh A. Curtis of Saanich will open a three-day annual exhibition of the Victoria Sketch Club Tuesday in the Douglas Room of the Hudson's Bay Co.

'LOVERS' OUT SAY POLICE

TORONTO (CP)—A picture which police termed obscene and ordered removed from an exhibition at a private art gallery here last week will be rehung next week, gallery owner Dorothy Cameron said Tuesday.

The picture, Lovers No. 1, by Hamilton artist Robert Markle, is part of an exhibition called Eros '65 currently featured at the gallery.

ISLAND DIGEST

DOT ORDERS INQUIRY INTO COAST COLLISION

DRAKE

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A formal public investigation will be held into the collision of the tanker Tyee Shell and barge Island Express off the west coast of Vancouver Island Feb. 25.

The inquiry was announced by the Department of Transport Tuesday.

Divers Groping For Boy in Boat

Divers today searched a sunken boat on Vancouver Island's west coast for the body of a six-year-old boy.

It is thought the youngster may have perished inside the boat when it sank in Nootka Sound, southwest of Tahsis, on Monday.

First reports from the scene of the mishap said the drowned child was a four-year-old girl.

SAVED THREE

The couple saved their three other children when their 30-foot trawler, the Everly Boy, suddenly capsized.

At the time it was being towed from Nootka to Friendly Cove. The towline parted and large waves caught the vessel broadside.

The boat filled with water in minutes. All except Christopher managed to board the other boat, the Diana G.

Christopher's body was not found in the trawler which is beached in deep water about 100 yards from shore.

SEARCH CONTINUES

Coroner Russ Inkster said the man appeared to have been dead about two weeks.

An autopsy will be held.

VETOED BUDGET APPROVED

Sidney village council Tuesday approved its 1965 budget after it had been vetoed by chairman A. A. Cormack.

In a surprise move after the budget had been given third reading, the village chairman said he was returning the budget bylaw to council for reconsideration "because I feel it is a grave mistake."

"I feel this is another attempt to launch debit financing something that previous councils have avoided," he stated.

NO SURPLUS

He charged council had made no provision in the budget for a surplus to take care of emergencies.

He explained over a period of years the general revenue account accumulated a surplus of $27,698. This fund was used as working capital by previous councils for operating expenses until current taxes and other revenue were received.

"This surplus has now been absorbed in this year's budget as part of the $84,235 itemized for capital expenditure out of revenue," he said.

$10,000 ONLY

He urged council to transfer only $10,000 of the surplus for capital expenditure out of revenue and to return $17,698 for emergencies.

"In view of the uncertainty at the present moment as to the future of the village in the present controversy of incorporation (North Saanich), I feel this is most important," he said.

"BLOCKING"

Comm. Andrias Boas pointed out the village had a surplus to take care of emergencies.

"We have $9,000 taxes in arrears," he said.

B.C. Man Killed

HOPE (CP) — Karl Forster of Richmond was killed early Tuesday when his car slammed into the entrance to Saddle Rock tunnel, north of here on the Fraser Canyon Highway. Police said Forster was alone in the car. A coroner's inquiry was to be held.

Too old to buy insurance?

Being over 65 is no barrier to the purchase of new life insurance. And for many people in their sixties or seventies it can be a very wise "buy."

Here's an example. A man age 75 has a substantial number of investments. At death, estate taxes will have to be paid. To raise the cash, income-producing assets have to be sold, often with severe losses to the beneficiaries. Life insurance can prevent this loss by providing the necessary cash.

Manufacturers Life has a sound reputation for its liberal approach to insuring older people for the purpose of estate conservation or for guaranteeing the continuity of a business. Our representatives are qualified to provide competent counsel to help our senior citizens meet these special needs.

See the Man from Manufacturers.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

Today we have a discussion of the two-way finesse.

Jim: "What is the origin of the expression that a peek is worth two finesses?"

Opening lead—♠ 4.

Oswald: "You aren't supposed to look at an opponent's cards but some players are so careless that you can't help seeing some of their cards some of the time. When you have to finesse for a king it does you no good to see it. If it is in back of the ace you can't finesse for it. If it is in front of the ace you would have finessed in any event and picked it up. When it comes to the queen you may have two ways to go for it as in today's hand."

Jim: "You sure have two ways to go for that queen of clubs and you had better go the right way if you want to make your three no-trump."

Oswald: "Yes. East wins the spade lead with the ace and returns the suit. It makes no difference whether you play the queen or the ten, since West has the king and jack. He takes three more spade tricks and leads a heart. You have four diamond tricks and two heart tricks in top cards and need three club tricks to make your contract. Since the East-West hands have not been shown, how would you go after that missing queen?"

Jim: "I see the reason for the expression. It would be nice to have seen that queen. Failing that it is theoretically an even-money chance or nearly so. I do have the advantage of having seen some discards on my diamonds and also East's discard on the fourth spade. Eventually I will have to go after clubs and probably will do so before I cash the second heart so as to be sure not to go down more than one."

Oswald: "Would you say you had an even-money chance?"

Jim: "No, and neither would you think that your chance of success was even money. Somehow or other, every good player gathers some information from the manner in which his opponents play their cards and his so-called even-money two-way finesses work at least two times in three."

That investment you have in your home is an asset in more ways than one. You qualify for the Associates' Home Owner's Loan Plan. Under this plan you may borrow from $2,000 to $20,000 on the equity you've built up. The interest rate is reasonable. There are no hidden charges or obscure clauses. You completely repay the loan in equal monthly instalments over a period of up to ten years. There are no "balance" or "balloon" payments. Interest is computed monthly on the unpaid balance. This means that each payment you make reduces the amount of interest you pay.

There are 101 reasons why you might need cash—financing a university education, buying a second car, remodeling your home. Keep the Associates' Home Owners' Plan in mind. The Associates is one of Canada's largest financing firms with branch offices in principal cities across the country.

"OPPORTUNITY UNLIMITED"
"BEACH RESORT"

This beautiful spot has approx. 6 acres of property fronting on the best sandy beach anywhere. Miles of beach in both directions. Ideal for swimming in summer as it is so shallow. In fact, often it is difficult to find a parking space. The main concession and restaurant is approx. 2,000 sq. ft. of space including 3 BR living quarters — 18' x 36' dining rm plus coffee counter and outdoor service area. Spacious modern kitchen and all equipment. Besides this there is a side-by-side duplex that rents for $100 per month in winter. During summer, of course, current rates are in effect. They have their own water supply. There is a cement boat launching ramp used for recreation and fishing. Illness only reason for selling. (My own personal opinion is that they are tired out from carrying all that money to the bank). Taxes just $188.35 gross. Located just off the Pat Bay Highway, 15 minutes from City Centre. There's only one of these at the asking price of $36,500.00. This is great property with a definite future. For further information call Roy Smith, EV 2-2157 anytime, Western Homes Ltd.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

When you see me driving anywhere in the vicinity, give me a wide berth. I flunked the "National Drivers' Test." This surprised me because I had always thought I was a cut above the average in my driving habits. But the "Test" seen on CBS-TV Monday was the great leveller.

Stephen

The program put the viewers behind the wheel to test their driving ability. It was divided into four sections: Judgment, Knowledge, Perception and Special Situations.

This column provided a test form for you on Friday. All that was required was to watch the program and answer the questions asked by Walter Cronkite.

* * *

At the same time 2,000 men and women were located in four American centres and asked to fill out similar forms, except theirs were fed to computers for immediate answer reaction.

Believe it or not, most of the wrong answers fell in the average "Knowledge" section. This asked 15 true or false questions on rules of the road.

According to the computer, less than one-half of 1 per cent of the 2,000 specially-selected guinea pigs got all 15 correct. Most averaged only nine out of 15 correct. (In any case, I registered eight correct out of 15.)

* * *

It was a shaking experience because we take so many things for granted while driving. Yet these rules of the road separate the living and dead.

A typical question in this section was: "If you come across an eight-sided sign, do you slow down, etc.?"

You were to make your decision on your answer in a matter of seconds because that is all you have when driving, in most cases. The answer naturally is "Come to a complete stop," as an eight-sided sign is the North American sign for a stop-sign.

Yes, a North American sign. That is why Canadians would have had no trouble taking this test because driving rules and habits, both north and south of the 49th, take similar routes.

There was even a special question asked on the topic of alcoholism and pertained to two separate situations.

* * *

This section revealed over 50 per cent of road fatalities are due to drinking. Therefore, if you drink pace yourself. Otherwise the only defensive attitude is: When you drink, don't drive.

It was an unprecedented and slick program technique which bears repeating at crucial periods if only to allow viewers to learn how little they really know about safe driving habits.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

ask Andy

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclodedia to John Sorenson, age 13, of Duluth, Minn., for his question:

Is the platypus related to any other animal?

The platypus has a thick, repellent coat somewhat like the fur of an otter. He has webbed feet for swimming and cheek pouches like those of a chipmunk for toting food. He is called the duckbill, or the duckbill platypus, because his snout resembles the wide bill of a duck. He is a great burrower, and at one time has was known as the water mole. The female platypus lays eggs, carries her newborn infants in a pouch and feeds them on mother's milk.

This odd animal seems to have been assembled from parts of many different animals. Actually, he is not related to any of the creatures he resembles. So far as we know he has but one close relative in the world. His cousin is another oddity known as the spiny anteater, or the echidna, and to look at the two you would never think that they are related in any way. The echidna looks somewhat like a small porcupine without his tail.

Feeds on Small Creatures

Scientists classify the platypus and the echidna in the animal order Monotremata. The world's two monotremes are found in Tasmania and parts of Australia. The echidna is also found in the island of New Guinea. Their territory is shared with a wide assortment of marsupials, but even though the monotremes carry their young in pouches they are not related to the kangaroo clan.

The echidna's spine is mixed generously with long, coarse hairs. Both monotreme cousins are warm-blooded, fur-coated mammals. Scientists suspect that all or most of the early mammals of the remote past laid eggs and nursed their young. In bone structure they most likely resembled the reptiles, somewhat as the monotremes do. The platypus and the echidna seem to be the last remaining relics of the little mammals that existed at the time of the dinosaurs.

The monotreme cousins are chunky animals about two feet long. The furry platypus, however, has a bushy tail and feeds on worms, crayfish and other small creatures that dwell in the water. The spiny echidna has no tail at all. He makes his home in fields and woodlands where he uses his strong claws to dig out the ants and termites on which he feeds.

* * *

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Gary Wayne Garris, age 12, of Claremore, Okla., for his question:

Were the Americas ever connected to Asia?

Not so long ago in geological time the two Americas themselves were separated. The Panama Ridge rose to join them only about 100 million years ago. Through the long ages of the earth's history there have been many other changes in the continents. North America and Asia once linked hands across the far northern Pacific Ocean.

The Aleutian Islands still span this water like a broken necklace. Some of the islands are part of Asia and some are part of America. One Asian isle and one American isle are only three miles apart. The narrow Bering Strait between Asia and America may have been a land bridge during the Ice Age just a few thousand years ago.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK—Mrs. Jimmy Durante is well on the mend after leg surgery . . . Jack Lemmon has won one of the top comedy roles of many a reason on Broadway—he'll play the Art Carney part in the film version of "The Odd Couple." Walter Matthau will re-create his stage characterization in the movie. It's one of those familiar show biz heartbreakers with Art Carney as the current victim. What's wrong with him?. Nothing. He's a marvellous actor and great in the role, as all the critics—and the audiences—attested. But he's not "bankable," as they say in Hollywood, and Jack Lemmon is. If Jack wanted the comedy (and undoubtedly he did) any producer in Hollywood with enough money—or banker friends—would buy it and produce it for him. A more dramatic but similar case occurred when Jack Warner passed over Julie Andrews, the original Liza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady," and hired the far more expensive (if less suitable) Audrey Hepburn as "insurance."

Harold Lloyd Jr., son of the famed silent screen comedian, is seriously ill on the West Coast after a severe stroke . . . Ronnie Martin, on the bill with Johnny Mathis at the Copacabana, knows exactly what he's going to do with his first week's pay cheque. The young comedian spent most of it in an all-night poker game at which he wound up the Great Big Loser, so one week's salary is just about enough to clear things with the three winners . . . Prince Rainier still gives Princess Grace little surprise presents. The latest was a sporty Ferrari in her favorite color—pale blue . . . The monumental star of a Broadway hit is having problems with her leading man. She keeps sending him notes, complaining about his appearance, his drinking and his vulgar language, and has threatened to see that his contract is not renewed if he doesn't reform.

Director David Lean is doing everything he can to finish "Dr. Zhivago" in time to qualify for this year's Academy Awards—and MGM executives are as excited about the picture as he is. They feel that if the rest of the footage measures up to what they've already seen, "Dr. Zhivago" will be one of the greatest films in the history of motion pictures. Lean, a perfectionist, takes years to plan, produce, shoot and edit one movie. "Lawrence of Arabia," his last effort, was released in 1962 . . . Shelley Winters has a new fur coat—a gift from Sean Connery. No romance—just his way of thanking her for her confidence and loyalty when he was an "unknown" in the big wide wonderful world of make-believe.

Barney Ward, the former Basin Street managing director who quit his lucrative job to go to California and become chief of Peggy Lee's various enterprises, is now in the midst of one of these regrettable hassles you hear about so often in show business. He's levelled a five-figure lawsuit at Peggy, claiming commissions on jobs that grossed her more than $150,000. It's hard for their mutual friends to believe they're bitter about each other; they were so close, always exchanging presents, almost inseparable, and calling each other on the telephone at all hours when they weren't together . . .

Billy Daniels has been having "Golden Boy" problems. If he leaves the show, Lou Gosset will replace him, and Billy's management will be happy because he can make far more money on the night club circuit.

The Regency will be hosting more cinema queens next week. Rita Hayworth will check in on her way to Europe, and Carroll Baker, fresh from her "Harlow" chores, will give the fashionable East Siders a chance to see how much of the platinum-blonde "thirties" look she's chosen to retain in her private life . . . Gregory Peck's first trade review on "Mirage" came out and it was such an out-and-out rave that Universal execs telephoned him in London where he is shooting "Arabesque," stopping production to read every word to him. Since Sophia Loren and a large cast were involved in the production, you can imagine how much that telephone call cost . . . Mary Reeves, widow of popular folk-singer Jim Reeves, who died so tragically last year, is making personal appearances and giving out interviews throughout the country to help promote his first—and last—movie, "Kimberly Jim."

Queen Victoria Scarf Returned to Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—A khaki wool scarf, one of the highest awards in British military history, was returned to Canada Monday and went on display in the Canadian War Museum.

The scarf, one of seven Scarves of Honor crocheted by Queen Victoria in 1900 for presentation to Boer War heroes, originally was presented to Pte. Richard Rowland Thompson, a native of Cork, Ireland.

Pte. Thompson won the scarf for rescuing wounded comrades while serving as a medical assistant with the 2nd (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment. His nephew, Samuel F. Thompson, of Cork, returned the scarf to Canada, presenting it to Governor-General Vanier Monday morning in an impressive military ceremony on Parliament Hill.

Some 4,000 persons watched the ceremony which included special guards of honor from the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa, successors to Pte. Thompson's original army unit, the 43rd Ottawa and Carleton Rifles.

Also on hand were Veterans Affairs Minister Teillet, who made arrangements for Mr. Thompson's trip to Canada, and Gen Charles Foulkes, chairman of the Canadian chiefs of staff.

Both Mr. Teillet and Mr. Thompson said the early history of the scarf is vague, and it is not known how it got to Ireland.

Pte. Thompson's stay in Canada was brief. After emigrating to the U.S. in the 1890s, he came to Ottawa in 1899 to join the 43rd Ottawa and Carleton Rifles. He was chosen for the special service battalion in the first Canadian contingent going to South Africa later that year.

He was invalided back to Canada late in 1900, but returned to South Africa after the war where he married Bertha Alexander, a member of a prominent Gatineau, Que., area family. He returned to Canada with his wife, then moved to Buffalo, N.Y., where he died in 1908. His widow brought his body back to Ottawa for a funeral with full military honors and burial at Chelsea, Que.

LORD THOMSON BLASTS CANADIAN TAX PLAN

'A Violation of Human Rights'

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson, Canadian-born publisher, said today Canada's tax measures affecting newspaper advertising are "a violation of the universal declaration of human rights" and called on the International Press Institute to express "its determined opposition to the whole scheme."

Thomson, whose organization publishes newspapers in Canada and a number of other countries, said he is prepared to entertain a temporary compromise in his belief in the "unfettered liberty of the press" in newly-developing countries to help maintain political stability.

But the Canadian tax scheme, in such an advanced and enlightened country, was "quite incredible." It also was "incredible" that certain Canadian publishers were prepared to accept government interference in newspaper operations, seeing some short - term advantage, Thomson added in an institute luncheon speech.

Under the Canadian measure, cost of advertising in Canadian newspapers will be allowed as an income tax deduction only in cases where the newspaper is at least 75-per-cent Canadian-owned.

The Thomson organization publishes 26 Canadian dailies and since all of these are fully Canadian - owned, "my own short-term interests would be advanced by this legislation," Thomson said.

"Nonetheless, it is my opinion that it would be incredibly ill - advised and harmful to newspaper operations in all the countries of the world.

"It is in violation of the universal declaration of human rights of the United Nations, where Article 19 specifies that every one has the right to freedom of information and expression, a right which includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers."

The institute, now in the midst of its annual conference attended by leading newspaper men from 32 countries, should not remain neutral just because some Canadian newspapers do not object to the Canadian development, he said.

'Nicest' People But Also Noisiest

An advertisement for a certain brand of motor scooter states you meet the nicest people riding their product.

F. Douglas Bull, 1400 Newport Ave., doesn't think so.

He complained about "ear-splitting noise" from the machines to an Oak Bay council meeting Tuesday night.

He asked for "whatever action that can be taken in order to afford some relief to our ears and nerves."

Council agreed motorcycles can make a lot of noise "if the throttle is used improperly."

But under present bylaws it couldn't enforce any control of the noise caused by a cyclist revving his engine.

It was suggested the province measure the cycles' noise and "stiffen the regulations."

The letter was eventually received and filed.

'TAKING CASH WITHOUT PROVIDING REAL FIGHT'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Bob Summitt, legal counsel for the World Boxing Association, described Cassius Clay's first-round knockout of Sonny Liston as "a farce and a fraud."

"Tonight was another good example of taking money from the public without giving them a real fight," Summitt said Tuesday night.

REVENUE MINISTER:

'No Chance' Of B.C. Bank

VANCOUVER (CP)—Revenue Minister E. J. Benson said Tuesday that Premier Bennett has no chance of getting into banking.

In an interview Mr. Benson said the premier should put his money into universities and let Ottawa look after the banks.

He said the federal government has little objection to a bank with its head office in British Columbia but is not in favor of seeing the provincial government getting involved because banking is a federal matter under the British North America Act.

Mr. Bennett's application to Parliament for a bank charter has been stalled for some time.

"One could guess that almost every business in B.C. would have to deal with a provincial bank," he said.

Asked if he meant such business would be forced into dealing with a provincial bank, he replied that provincial authorities—such as school boards—would find it necessary to deal with the bank.

Private business would likely follow because of provincial loyalty.

"The result would be that the federal government would lose control of fiscal policy, which is constitutionally a federal matter," he said.

"Because of this the provinces are not to be allowed to participate in banking."

Mr. Benson, a chartered accountant, was here to speak to service clubs.

Meanwhile, in the Senate, first reading was given to a private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia. The sponsor, Senator J. W. deB. Farris (L—British Columbia), said he would lead off the debate today.

A similar bill was killed by the senate banking committee last session after many senators objected to proposal by the B.C. government to buy 10 per cent of the new bank's shares. The government has since introduced a revised Bank Act in The Commons that would bar all governments from investing in banks.

Second Site 'Possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said today there may be a second Soviet installation in the vicinity of Hanoi, North Viet Nam, armed with what he termed missile-associated equipment.

He told a press conference this represents a deepening of the Soviet involvement in support of Communist North Viet Nam.

Rusk did not go into details, however, when asked about reports that there are more than one surface-to-air missile installations near the North Vietnamese capital.

But he acknowledged that "there may be a second site in the immediate Hanoi area."

40 TONS OF BOMBS RAIN ON RADAR SITE

Twenty F-105 Thunderchiefs supported by other jets early dropped about 40 tons of bombs on the Hon Matt Island radar site, 140 miles south of Hanoi, destroying and damaging a number of buildings.

The same planes then dropped about 12 tons of bombs on the petroleum depot at Vinh, 150 miles south of the capital. They reported that two fires started by Tuesday's strike on the same target were still burning.

RCMP Shoot Man After Dog Slain

Police said today no charges have been laid against Alison Malcolm Martin, an official of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. at Trail, who was shot in the forearm and thigh after a police dog was killed in a burst of buckshot.

Police said he was shot Tuesday by Const. Robert Stephens, a dog master.

They said two RCMP officers went to Martin's home early Tuesday after being told that another man had been ordered out of the house at knifepoint.

RCMP said the two officers were driven from the front door at gunpoint and called for additional officers from Trail and Nelson.

They said Supt. Stevenson looked into a closed stairway to the third floor, and found himself facing a man with a shotgun. He backed away and the dog, which had been ordered to attack, was shot as she leaped at the man, they said.

Const. Stephens then fired twice at the man, wounding him in the forearm and leg, police said.

RCMP said they then seized the shotgun, which had one charge in it with the hammer cocked.

GRAD LIST THURSDAY

A list of the graduating class of the University of Victoria will be published in The Times Thursday.

Consul to Retire

VANCOUVER (CP)—Avery Peterson, United States consul in Vancouver, retires Aug. 10 after only a year here, but more than 35 in the foreign service.

Consulate officials said Peterson, 59, will retire to his home town, Boise, Idaho.

NURSERY SCHOOL COMPLAINANT:

John-John Punched My Nose-Nose

NEW YORK (AP)—John F. Kennedy Jr., four-year-old son of the late president, has been attending nursery classes since February at a private school run by Roman Catholic laymen just off Fifth Avenue, it was disclosed today.

"He's a great kid and likes school very much," a source at St. David's School said.

Asked if John's school chums are aware he is the late president's son, the source said: "No, I don't think so. They're four-year-olds."

John's enrolment at St. David's was first brought to light by the New York Herald Tribune with this anecdote in today's editions:

"The new boy punched me in the nose," the four-year-old boy told his mother on coming home from nursery school the other day.

"Oh," said his mother, "I didn't know there was a new boy. Who is he?"

"I don't know," said her son. "He says his name is John Kennedy."

Blackest Night, Says Farr

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When St. Bernadine, the "father of boxing," died in the 13th century, the sport died with him for more than 400 years until the English revived it.

Tuesday night, cries of "fix," "fake," "fraud" were heard in many theatres in Canada and the United States when heavyweight champion Cassius Clay knocked out Sonny Liston with a "phantom punch" in the first round.

The controversial knockout at Lewiston, Me., left a nasty cloud over boxing for the umpteenth time in the last decade, and once again the sport's obituary is being written.

The heavyweight division is the key to boxing's success. When it dies so does the rest of the sport—little by little.

But then along comes another heavyweight match and the prospects of a big purse—and the sport is "revived" until the next time.

And there are potential matches for Clay, against Floyd Patterson or George Chuvalo of Toronto, that could air the boxing arenas once more. For television provides fantastic purses in heavyweight championship matches and as long as it does the corpse at least will remain warm.

REACTION CRITICAL

In London, British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper watched the fight beamed by Early Bird satellite. He commented:

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. London time. It drew wry comments from two former British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to Joe Louis when the Brown Bomber was world heavyweight champion, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing, and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former world middleweight champion, said:

"My wife Barbara can take a

'Squalid Shemozzle' Says Briton

LONDON (Reuters) — European sports writers and fans, with Britain leading the chorus, joined today in deriding the outcome of Tuesday night's Clay-Liston fight.

Today's London papers carried banner headlines in which the key words were "stinker," "farce" and "fix."

The Geneva daily La Suisse headlined its story "Parody of a fight." The leading Paris paper France-soir said: "Boxing, already in a state of confusion in the United States, had no need of this new blow below the belt."

If the British sounded angrier than other Europeans, it may have been because millions of them had stayed up most of the night to see the fight "live" on BBC television via a special Early Bird transmission.

HONORABLE BENNETT

VIP TREATMENT, Japanese style, was extended to B.C.'s Premier W. A. C. Bennett as he arrived at Tokyo airport this week from Vancouver. In a special suite, reserved for "Honorable Bennett" the premier was greeted by a score of high-ranking government officials and a large battery of Japanese newsmen. Mr. Bennett accepts a bouquet of flowers from Mrs. Shinji Nishidera, wife of the president of Maple Leaf Cultural Association, and her four-year-old granddaughter, Sumiko.

BENNETT VISITS JAPAN ROYALTY

TOKYO (Reuters) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, accompanied by five provincial ministers, was received today by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko at their palace in Tokyo.

The British Columbians flew into Tokyo Monday on an 11-day economic mission to seek expanded trade and economic relations with Japan.

This afternoon they were to visit a camera company and three electric appliance makers in Tokyo.

Thursday they will meet Japan's trade minister, Yoshio Sakurauchi.

The visitors already have conferred with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and other leading government officials.

They are scheduled Thursday to visit western Japanese industrial cities for a four-day inspection trip. They will return home June 3.

Legion Votes For Leaf Flag

They voted in favor of substituting the new Canadian Maple Leaf flag, reversing their previous decision on this issue.

They also reversed a resolution from the Nanaimo and North Vancouver Island zone of the Royal Canadian Legion that the Red Ensign be retained as the Legion's color.

A majority vote in favor of the new Maple Leaf flag was recorded at the 27th annual convention of the Legion's Pacific Command in Victoria Curling Rink.

The resolution urged the Legion's Dominion command to "take early action to see that the national flag of Canada is honored and displayed in an appropriate manner by members of the Royal Canadian Legion."

It was opposed by Joseph Cass of Nanaimo.

"At our Winnipeg convention last year we agreed to retain the Red Ensign as the Legion's official color," he said. "I don't think we should go back on that."

Several delegates favored retaining both flags, but the majority agreed this would be impossible.

'KO Punch Hit Like Wet Towel'

NEW YORK (CP) — Sport writers at ringside generally agree that the world heavyweight boxing championship bout between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston Tuesday night was an atrocity.

"The fight to end all fights."

There was much doubt, too, about the punch Clay threw—a "phantom right" Cassius said—and the time of the knockout, announced as one minute of the first round.

Columnist Jimmy Breslin of The Herald Tribune called it the "worst mess in the history of all sports."

"The first punch thrown by the champion was a short nearly invisible right hand that landed on Liston's jaw," wrote Jesse Abramson of The Herald Tribune. "It was his only real punch—after running, backing and ducking from Liston's determined pursuit."

NOT MUCH POWER

Robert Lipsyte of the New York Times also noted that the punch was a short right hand that "did not seem to have knockout power."

"This wildly unpredictable young man (Clay) put another strain on credulity," commented Arthur Daley of The Times. The fight "had to be seen to be believed and even then it was hard to believe."

Breslin was particularly brutal in his comments.

"Clay snapped a right hand from his hip. It was a little, loose-armed punch. But it was a short punch. Short enough to sting. It hit Liston on the side of the head like a wet towel.

"Liston went down. He went down as if he had been shot by a gun. Sonny Liston, who had never been off his feet in his life, who had fought in the ring with a broken jaw, who had kicked back at cops in the back of police stations, who had taken night sticks on the top of the head, went down onto the floor. He went down with his hands over his head, just like Jack Johnson did, and he was counted out in one minute of the worst mess in the history of all sports."

"And even when they were counting," Breslin said, high school kids at the ringside started shouting "fake, fake, fake."

"Oh, Liston looked as if he had been hit. He looked straight across the ring and his eyes blinked and looked crazy while he wallowed on the canvas."

COULDN'T HEAR COUNT

The timekeeper's count had become lost and the referee, Jersey Joe Walcott, was busy chasing Clay to a neutral corner. While he was doing this Liston got up to one knee.

"Nobody had said 10 yet that anybody could hear," Breslin

FOSTER REAL THREAT SAYS VETERAN 500 MILER

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Ford-powered cars should be the ones to watch in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Monday, but veteran driver Bob Veith says his rear-engine Offenhauser will beat them in the long run.

"I'm not worried about the Fords," said Veith, of Fort Bragg, Calif. "Actually, I don't think many of them will finish."

One of the four drivers Veith considers his chief rivals is Billy Foster, 27-year-old Victoria car salesman who became first Canadian to qualify for the race when he averaged 158.416 mph in his rear-engined Offenhauser May 16.

The others are Offey driver Jim McElreath of Arlington, Tex.; and Movi drivers Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., and Jim Hurtubise of North Tonawanda, N.Y.

"I think they have the machinery to go competitive for the full race," Veith said.

Veith was in Victoria in December, 1963, to participate in a safe driving campaign jointly sponsored by The Times. He gave lectures at several schools in Greater Victoria and up-Island.

Cost of Frost Said $8 Million

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Veteran fruit growers say the government will have to pump at least $8,000,000 into the Okanagan Valley if the fruit industry is to survive last winter's crippling frosts.

Soft fruit trees — apricots, cherries and peaches—were first hit in the third week of December when the temperature dropped to 15 below on a night of high wind.

In March the few trees struggling through that first onslaught were wiped out by a 10 above temperature that destroyed every bud.

The total damage has not yet been tallied but it is already around the $10,000,000 mark.

LOOKS FINE

To the unskilled eye the Okanagan looks its usual late spring normal, green and lush. The practiced eye sees acres of devastation where branches which should be carrying fresh-formed fruit stand bare in the sun.

Veteran grower W. O. June of Naramata, nine miles north of Penticton on the east side of Okanagan lake, says assistance from the provincial government must come soon in the form of cash, or complete ruin will follow.

"There will be a few cherries from the south this year, but no peaches, apricots and a very light crop of prune plums," he said when interviewed last week.

The government has offered Okanagan growers aid in the form of new trees up to $1,000 and long-term low interest loans up to $5,000.

"It sounds great," said Mr June. "But a new tree costs $1.50 each. A man with 10 acres would need $1,500 for new trees alone. After that it would cost him at least $1,000 to remove the old trees and the estimated cost of re-planting at 75 cents a tree. In addition it costs roughly $200 per acre annually to keep an orchard in good shape.

"And this does not even take into consideration his loss of revenue during the five years it takes for a peach tree to bear a crop."

A grower with 10 acres—the minimum economic fruit growing unit—normally sells his crop for between $8,000 and $12,000, the price being dependent on variety and quality.

INCOME ZERO

This year, and for the next five years, his income will be zero.

With each agricultural dollar turning over at least four times in the community the total business loss to the central and south Okanagan will be $40,000,000.

That loss is already being felt.

"Those frosts ruined two of the Okanagan's biggest industries," he said. "The fruit industry and unemployment insurance payments."

Mr. Currie was talking of the common Okanagan practice where fruit growers' wives work in the packing houses and canneries during the harvest to earn money and obtain enough employment to qualify for UIC payments. Both incomes are usually required to obtain a living income.

LAYOFFS

"Already men who have worked in packing houses for 20 years are being laid off for the first time in their lives," Mr. Currie said. "It's pretty obvious what's going to happen, or rather what isn't going to happen, later on. There will be little or no work in the packing houses so there will be no supplemental incomes. It's going to be a rough year for everyone."

On Penticton's main street the credit manager of a large department store said the "rough time" was already here.

"Normally at this time of the year we know that people behind in their payments will catch up in the summer months," she said. "This year we know they can't and have no hope of doing so. I'm not looking forward to the rest of this year at all."

Sid Godber, publisher and editor of the monthly magazine "The B.C. Orchardist" and a resident of the Okanagan for 20 years, said he has never seen things so bad and a future so bleak.

HAD 2 ACRES

"I can hardly be classed a grower because all I have is two acres of peaches," he told me, adding: "I should say all I had was two acres of peaches. This year I have nothing, not a blossom, not a bud. Last year I picked about four tons and made about $500. This year I have a few scraggly green leaves and the tragedy is, of course, that the trees are gone. It isn't just a matter of losing a crop, that would be bad enough, it's a matter of losing everything for the next five years at least."

The answer if the fruit industry is to survive?

"A hefty grant with no strings attached, immediately," says Mr. Godber. "Plus re-planting assistance, plus long term loans interest free until the first commercial crop comes off the new trees.

"And the provision should be added that only growers with 10 acres or more should get the re-planting aid and the long long term loans. Those, like myself, who want to grow fruit just ass a sideline, should not be classed with the commercial grower who depends on his crop for his living."

On May 31 Agriculture Minister Frank Richter travels to the Okanagan to meet in Kelowna with industry leaders. Together they will try to find a solution to the worst disaster ever to hit British Columbia's fruit bowl.

"I don't envy him," said Mrs. Geoffrey Alington who with her husband operates 35 acres at Kaleden on Skaha Lake. "But something must be done, and soon. The land-sharks are already moving in offering growers with ruined orchards cash payments for their land for real estate development. The only trouble is the money they are offering is about one third the value of the land."

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain exchange prices rallied in late trade today following an earlier easy tone influenced by declines o nChicago markets.

Flax became firmer in response to a broader demand and overseas inquiries, with business developing to the United Kingdom in parcel lots.

Rapeseed prices were sharply higher following the Chicago rally. There were indications of a fairly agressive demand by Japan and other countries estimated at 4,000 tons.

DEMONSTRATIONS UPSET FOREIGN INVESTORS

MONTREAL (CP)—A French-Canadian businessman said Tuesday night that demonstrations like those that took place on Victoria Day "worry" foreign investors.

Marcel Faribault, president of the General Investment Corporation of Canada, was speaking during a panel discussion on the issue of separatism.

"It is enough to see the worry of foreign capitalists each time demonstrations like those of last night (Monday night) occur at a time when financing is to be carried out in the United States or elsewhere," Mr. Faribault said.

Another member of the panel, Raymond Barbeau, a prominent Quebec separatist, said he did not see how Quebec province's separation would affect investment here.

Ever since the day when Times photographer Irving Strickland and I ventured out among flying hoofs and swinging mallets to get a picture-story on the revitalized Vancouver Island Polo and Riding Club, the sight of mounted madmen bashing a bamboo root ball has fascinated me.

Why this should be, I'm not sure, since my liking for horses is strictly academic, I ride one of the beasts only under compulsion.

But a brisk chukker makes good watching from the sidelines of the club's Bermuda grass field off Island View Road, and I was disappointed when the holiday weekend game was postponed to early next month.

By then, if the weather stays summery, the turf over which the club's 30 nimble mounts will scurry should be in proper shape.

Mr. and Mrs. Polo on our green peninsula are veterinary doctors Bill and Barbara Powell, who dropped in with a season schedule last week.

If the rain stays away, a game will be staged every Sunday through the season. The one I'm looking forward to is lined up for July 4, when a Portland team and local riders will tussle for the City of Victoria Cup.

When I first mentioned it a few days ago, Dr. Cliff Carl of the Provincial Museum wasn't available for comment. But on Monday, Dr. Carl told me that the great canoe has been up there as long as he can remember. He suggests it was stored by some museum curator of an earlier era, and because of lack of exhibiting space, left to gather dust.

One thing's sure: whoever undertakes to fetch the canoe down has a ticklish job on his hands, since the ground floor offices of the bureau now practically surround it.

No mystery, however, is the origin of the tiger tails that have sprouted from a number of Victoria cars. Their sponsor is an oil company which boasts the super-punch of its gasoline through a tiger in its advertising.

Personally, I'm by no means sure that the tiger is the best of symbols. I quit being a tiger behind the wheel the night a couple of us helped the highway cops search the roadside rough for a pretty girl's severed head.

After that, I became a rabbit-type car pilot . . . reasonably brisk but wary, with an earnest conviction that the business of a driver is to get himself and his passengers from here to there as smoothly and safely as possible.

Same on the water, where each year the sea-going tigers are making themselves more of a headache to non-exhibitionist boatmen.

I'm not going to make a pitch for the licensing of pleasure boat operators; in fact I hope we never reach the point where it's necessary.

That, though, may be mere wishful thinking, since there exist among us, marine cutups whose fun takes a keener edge when they can perpetrate a nuisance on others.

Like the jerk who roars full-throttle through a group of fishing craft.

Or the dope who swings a water skier into a cove populated by bathers.

If boatmen find themselves licenced and 'sternly' regulated, it will be the fault of such boatniks as these.

Well, the Clay-Liston 'fight' is over, and it would appear that the abused, racket-ridden business of professional boxing has taken a blow considerably harder than the so-called anchor punch administered by loud-mouthed Cassius with an assist from Allah.

There have been fast knockouts, of course, when heavyweights clashed. The second Louis-Schmelling fight was over almost before we had settled down to watch it.

But they were giants, in those days, and I verily believe Jack Louis in his prime could have taken on both of Tuesday night's ring buffoons at once.

Dancers Twirl, Whirl To Winners' Circle

It was a bonnie day for Victoria highland dancers when they twirled and skirled their way to the top in a Penticton competition over the Victoria Day weekend.

Winner of the grand aggregate trophy with three first places and one second in the 16 years and over class, was Teresa White, 2722 Topp, a Grade 11 student from Oak Bay High School.

Other medal winners were Twyla Bolley, two firsts; Jonit Ruthven, two seconds; Shirley Harman, one second; Pat O'Rourke, one third, one second; Beverley Gait, one third, and Leslie Lord, one third.

The dancers will now be kept busy preparing for a series of summer highland games in the Victoria area.

Peacenik Sent Back To U.S. Via Ferry

He was picked up from city jail shortly after noon.

Officials would not disclose where Robinson was being taken.

Only comment was: "He will be taken by boat to some point in the U.S."

An immigration official was to accompany him.

Robinson has been in the city lock-up since last Friday.

Police picked him up at an address in the city only a few hours after he arrived from Vancouver by charter plane.

An all-points alert was put out for the peace marcher after he crashed the U.S.-Canadian border last Wednesday.

PAST RECORDS

Robinson and five other peace marchers from San Francisco had been denied entry on the grounds of past records and lack of capital.

He was to have spoken at a public rally in Beacon Hill Park Saturday morning, then accompanied Canadian marchers on the protest trip to RCAF Comox.

They will be joined there by others.

If they cannot enter the base they will hold a two-day sitdown at the main gate.

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

What is transparent, weighs practically nothing, has travelled from St. John, Nfld., to Victoria, and costs $11,800 for a 16-month rental?

Answer—a camera lens.

The whole rig — copter, camera and lens — with French pilot and engineer, and a veteran National Film Board cameraman, is in Victoria filming part of an hour-long coast-to-coast documentary for Canada's Centennial.

ZOOM LENSE

The lense alone carries $22,000 insurance.

'CHEAP'

Boyko, with camera, helicopter and assistants, has already buzzed across Canada in the eight months filming has been under way.

Having shot films for the National Film Board for 14 years, he is an expert at documentary work, and filmed the noted "Fields of Sacrifice" for the board several years ago.

Starting with a Newfoundland lighthouse keeper, who showed the way in "Canada's front door," Boyko has caught a cross-section of people and activities almost entirely as he wished.

"We have a script," he says, "but not a tight one."

"I know Canada quite well, and if I see something I like, I shoot it."

EASY-GOING

Victoria he sees as easy-going and slow-paced filled with a number of "the nice type of tourist traps."

"This may be a cliche, but this is the way I see it and I like it."

Monday he took off with the 400-horsepower, 36,000 rpm copter from the "Welcome to Victoria" sign beside the CPR ferry dock, and escalated up to look Captain Vancouver in the eye on his perch atop the Legislative Buildings.

In a practice run Tuesday he flew over Beacon Hill Park and hovered around the World's Tallest Totem which he photographed face-by-face for continuity with similar shots of a Vancouver totem.

APPOINTMENT of Henry G. Robinson, 5648 Wallace Drive, as treasurer-manager of the Seanichton Fair, was announced today by A. W. (Bud) Mesher, vice-president. A beef-cattle raiser, Mr. Robinson was former manager of Milky-Way Dairy and for six years was secretary-manager of the Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association.

June Vote Likely

Rural Saanich school board will hold a public meeting at Mount Newton Secondary School on Friday at 7:30 p.m. to discuss a referendum for the construction of additions and alterations to schools.

The referendum is expected to be submitted to ratepayers at the end of June.

EX-CITY MAN IN HERO'S ROLE

Diving Waiter Saves Chum

Former Oak Bay High School student Larry Russell, 23, of 879 St. Patrick, made five hazardous dives Monday to a car submerged in Burns Lake with four people trapped inside.

Larry, who now works as a waiter in Burns Lake, was a passenger in the car when it missed a turn on to the Burns Lake Bridge and went into the lake.

He told police he crawled out of the car through a broken windshield, forced open a door and pulled one man to safety.

BODIES RECOVERED

Russell said he dived into the water five times to try and find the other two men and two women.

Police later recovered the bodies of Pierre Ouelette, 26, of Fort Kent, Alta.; William McCartney, 27, of Powell River; Violet Starrett, 19, of Topley Landing, and Mary Tom, 48, of Smithers.

IN THE CAMERAMAN'S SEAT behind the 35-mm. camera used to shoot a Centennial Year documentary across Canada is National Film Board's Eugene Boyko. With French-built craft, Alouette II, and French pilot, Boyko is half way through 16-month assignment which takes him from coast to coast.

Guns Banned In Parade Next Year

Officials announced this decision today after hearing of Monday's accidental shooting accidents in which three people were injured.

No official protest of the action will be made until a directors' meeting of Greater Victoria Celebrations Committee next month.

The injuries were caused by the blast from blank cartridges fired from 12-bore shotguns by a group of clowns.

"We were horrified when we heard what had happened."

Talks Set Next Week On Regional College

'Urgent Need' For Senior Matriculation

Officials from three school districts will meet Thursday, June 3, to discuss establishment of a college to provide senior matriculation to students not wanting to take first-year university.

It would also provide facilities for students who have failed in one or two university entrance examinations to try again.

SOOKE IDEA

The proposal was first made by Sooke School Board. The Greater Victoria and rural Saanich school boards agreed Tuesday to explore the matter.

John H. Dalgleish, director of education for the Greater Victoria board, said there is a vital need for a college.

"The problem is that people are not yet fully aware of the need," he said. "A student has to leave Victoria if he wants to get further education."

He pointed out that many students who failed their first-year university did not necessarily lack brains, but were immajure and not ready for university life.

NOWHERE TO GO

"Once they have failed they have nowhere else to go," he said. "A college would re-direct them to some other course or train them to be highly skilled technicians."

He said at present there are 1,008 adults registered at night schools. Forty of these are taking full-time matriculation or high school leaving courses.

The remainder are employed and working towards senior matriculation by taking one or two courses a year.

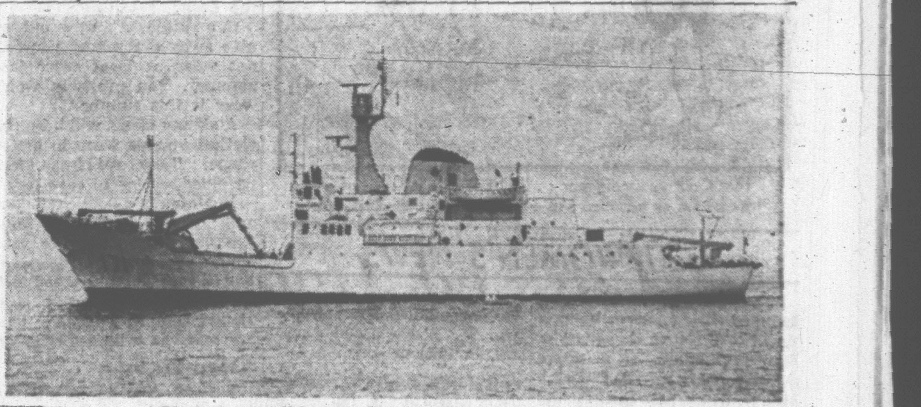
PROBLEMS AHEAD

"But it is evident that we are going to run into problems as the school population increases," she said.

Trustee Isabelle Reader of Sooke, said the district did not have sufficient students to warrant the establishment of a Grade 13.

"We feel a regional college for the whole area is the answer," she said. Students would also be provided with better facilities. It would also serve adult education."



Endeavour did not like rough seas on trials.

Navy 'Isn't Too Worried' About Endeavour's Roll

Senior naval officials say they are not worried about the seaworthiness of the new naval research ship Endeavour.

The $4.5 million ship launched last September, has been restricted to inland waters until problems with stabilizing equipment are solved.

Crew members reported that she rolled so badly that at times there were fears that she would founder.

The harbor master ordered the vessel back to port and restricted further trials to inland waters.

A naval spokesman said this morning the problem is not regarded as serious by senior naval officers.

"We are not too worried about it," he said. "The problem can be overcome and will be overcome."

ADDS TO ROLL

The Endeavour, entirely new in design, is fitted with stabilizers which depend on the transfer of large tonnages of oil to oppose the normal rolling motion of the ship. If the system does not work properly it adds to the roll rather than control the motion.

"It has to be remembered that the Endeavour is entirely new in conception and design," the spokesman said. "It is quite likely that with so many radical differences she doesn't handle like a normal ship. We feel sure that once we have given careful study as to how she should be handled most of the problems will be solved."

The Endeavour, one year in building, was launched Sept. 4, 1964, and handed over to the navy March 9 of this year.

FIRST OF KIND

It was the first ship of its kind specifically designed in Canada for defence research.

The 1,560-ton diesel-electric ship is 235 feet long and has a cruising range of 10,000 miles. She has a cruising speed of 12 knots and a top speed of 16 knots.

Air-conditioned throughout the ship carries a civilian crew of 36 plus 14 scientists and two helicopter experts.

Built to naval research design by Yarrows the ship is still in her trial period.

"She rolled to a greater degree than was expected when in high seas," the naval spokesman said. "All we have to do is make the necessary adjustments and she will be ready to go out again. In the meantime she will be restricted, naturally, to calm waters."

"If you have a car with engine defects you don't set out on a long trip until you have checked the vehicle out," he said. "This is no different. We have a ship of radical design which handles differently to other ships. We had trouble with the stabilizer equipment on the high seas so we just brought her in for checks and adjustments."

But it dropped plans for constructing a road running north and south parallel to the beach.

"Because of the sandy soil the road would have to be a good one," said Coun. Ray Lamont. "We just haven't got the money to go ahead with a project like this."

The first, planned for June 3, will start from the Hotel Sidney at 1:30 p.m. and will include the gardens of Edgar Wood, 9065 Lochside; Fred Hallier, 10784 Madrona, and the greenhouses of the experimental farm on East Saanich Road.

A second tour June 9 will begin at Hotel Sidney at 7:30 p.m. and members will visit the North Quadra Garden Centre.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis Tuesday suggested a third province should be the site of future talks between B.C. and Quebec municipal leaders.

Mr. Curtis, just returned from the Union of B.C. Municipalities' week-long Quebec visit said the meeting in the third province could be held in 1966 or 1967 "as a step toward further mutual understanding."

'TAKING CASH WITHOUT PROVIDING REAL FIGHT'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Bob Summitt, legal counsel for the World Boxing Association, described Cassius Clay's first-round knockout of Sonny Liston as "a farce and a fraud."

"Tonight was another good example of taking money from the public without giving them a real fight," Summitt said Tuesday night.

Fight Shocks Boxing World

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When St. Bernadine, the "father of boxing," died in the 13th century, the sport died with him for more than 400 years until the English revived it.

Tuesday night, cries of "fix," "fake," "fraud" were heard in many theatres in Canada and the United States when heavyweight champion Cassius Clay knocked out Sonny Liston with a "phantom punch" in the first round.

The controversial knockout at Lewiston, Me., left a nasty cloud over boxing for the umpteenth time in the last decade, and once again the sport's obituary is being written.

The heavyweight division is the key to boxing's success. When it dies so does the rest of the sport—little by little.

But then along comes another heavyweight match and the prospects of a big purse—and the sport is "revived" until the next time.

And there are potential matches for Clay, against Floyd Patterson or George Chuvalo of Toronto, that could air the boxing arenas once more. For television provides fantastic purses in heavyweight championship matches and as long as it does the corpse at least wili remain warm.

REACTION CRITICAL

In London, British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper watched the fight beamed by Early Bird satellite. He commented:

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. London time. It drew wry comments from two former British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to Joe Louis when the Brown Bomber was world heavyweight champion, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing, and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former world middleweight champion, said:

HONORABLE BENNETT

VIP TREATMENT, Japanese style, was extended to B.C.'s Premier W. A. C. Bennett as he arrived at Tokyo airport this week from Vancouver. In a special suite, reserved for "Honorable Bennett" the premier was greeted by a score of high-ranking government officials and a large battery of Japanese newsmen. Mr. Bennett accepts a bouquet of flowers from Mrs. Shinji Nishidera, wife of the president of Maple Leaf Cultural Association, and her four-year-old granddaughter, Sumiko.

'KO Punch Hit Like Wet Towel'

NEW YORK (CP) — Sport writers at ringside generally agree that the world heavyweight boxing championship bout between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston Tuesday night was an atrocity.

"The fight to end all fights."

There was much doubt, too, about the punch Clay threw—a "phantom right" Cassius said—and the time of the knockout, announced as one minute of the first round.

Columnist Jimmy Breslin of The Herald Tribune called it the "worst mess in the history of all sports."

"The first punch thrown by the champion was a short nearly invisible right hand that landed on Liston's jaw," wrote Jesse Abramson of The Herald Tribune. "It was his only real punch—after running, backing and ducking from Liston's determined pursuit."

NOT MUCH POWER

Robert Lipsyte of the New York Times also noted that the punch was a short right hand that "did not seem to have knockout power."

"This wildly unpredictable young man (Clay) put another strain on credulity," commented Arthur Daley of The Times. The fight "had to be seen to be believed and even then it was hard to believe."

Breslin was particularly brutal in his comments.

"Clay snapped a right hand from his hip. It was a little, loose-armed punch. But it was a short punch. Short enough to sting. It hit Liston on the side of the head like a wet towel.

"Liston went down. He went down as if he had been shot by a gun. Sonny Liston, who had never been off his feet in his life, who had fought in the ring with a broken jaw, who had kicked back at cops in the back of police stations, who had taken night sticks on the top of the head, went down onto the floor. He went down with his hands over his head, just like Jack Johnson did, and he was counted out in one minute of the worst mess in the history of all sports."

"And even when they were counting," Breslin said, high school kids at the ringside started shouting "fake, fake, fake."

"Oh, Liston looked as if he had been hit. He looked straight across the ring and his eyes blinked and looked crazy while he wallowed on the canvas."

COULDN'T HEAR COUNT

The timekeeper's count had become lost and the referee, Jersey Joe Walcott, was busy chasing Clay to a neutral corner. While he was doing this Liston got up to one knee.

"Nobody had said 10 yet that anybody could hear," Breslin

REVENUE MINISTER:

'No Chance' Of B.C. Bank

VANCOUVER (CP) — Revenue Minister E. J. Benson said Tuesday that Premier Bennett has no chance of getting into banking.

In an interview Mr. Benson said the premier should put his money into universities and let Ottawa look after the banks.

He said the federal government has little objection to a bank with its head office in British Columbia but is not in favor of seeing the provincial government getting involved because banking is a federal matter under the British North America Act.

Mr. Bennett's application to Parliament for a bank charter has been stalled for some time.

"One could guess that almost every business in B.C. would have to deal with a provincial bank," he said.

Asked if he meant such business would be forced into dealing with a provincial bank, he replied that provincial authorities—such as school boards—would find it necessary to deal with the bank.

Private business would likely follow because of provincial loyalty.

"The result would be that the federal government would lose control of fiscal policy, which is constitutionally a federal matter," he said.

"Because of this the provinces are not to be allowed to participate in banking."

Mr. Benson, a chartered accountant, was here to speak to service clubs.

Meanwhile, in the Senate, first reading was given to a private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia. The sponsor, Senator J. W. deB. Farris (L—British Columbia), said he would lead off the debate today.

A similar bill was killed by the senate banking committee last session after many senators objected to proposal by the B.C. government to buy 10 per cent of the new bank's shares. The government has since introduced a revised Bank Act in The Commons that would bar all governments from investing in banks.

Second Site 'Possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said today there may be a second Soviet installation in the vicinity of Hanoi, North Viet Nam, armed with what he termed missile-associated equipment.

He told a press conference this represents a deepening of the Soviet involvement in support of Communist North Viet Nam.

Rusk did not go into details, however, when asked about reports that there are more than one surface-to-air missile installations near the North Vietnamese capital.

But he acknowledged that "there may be a second site in the immediate Hanoi area."

40 TONS OF BOMBS RAIN ON RADAR SITE

Twenty F-105 Thunderchiefs supported by other jets early dropped about 40 tons of bombs on the Hon Matt Island radar site, 140 miles south of Hanoi, destroying and damaging a number of buildings.

The same planes then dropped about 12 tons of bombs on the petroleum depot at Vinh, 150 miles south of the capital. They reported that two fires started by Tuesday's strike on the same target were still burning.

RCMP Shoot Man After Dog Slain

Police said today no charges have been laid against Alison Malcolm Martin, an official of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. at Trail, who was shot in the forearm and thigh after a police dog was killed in a burst of buckshot.

Police said he was shot Tuesday by Const. Robert Stephens, a dog master.

They said two RCMP officers went to Martin's home early Tuesday after being told that another man had been ordered out of the house at knifepoint.

RCMP said the two officers were driven from the front door at gunpoint and called for additional officers from Trail and Nelson.

They said Supt. Stevenson looked into a closed stairway to the third floor and found himself facing a man with a shotgun. He backed away and the dog, which had been ordered to attack, was shot as she leaped at the man, they said.

Const. Stephens then fired twice at the man, wounding him in the forearm and leg, police said.

RCMP said they then seized the shotgun, which had one charge in it with the hammer cocked.

Consulate officials said Peterson, 59, will retire to his home town, Boise, Idaho.

BENNETT VISITS JAPAN ROYALTY

TOKYO (Reuters) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, accompanied by five provincial ministers, was received today by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko at their palace in Tokyo.

The British Columbians flew into Tokyo Monday on an 11-day economic mission to seek expanded trade and economic relations with Japan.

This afternoon they were to visit a camera company and three electric appliance makers in Tokyo.

Thursday they will meet Japan's trade minister, Yoshio Sakurauchi.

The visitors already have conferred with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and other leading government officials.

They are scheduled Thursday to visit western Japanese industrial cities for a four-day inspection trip. They will return home June 3.

Legion Votes For Leaf Flag

They voted in favor of substituting the new Canadian Maple Leaf flag, reversing their previous decision on this issue.

They also reversed a resolution from the Nanaimo and North Vancouver Island zone of the Royal Canadian Legion that the Red Ensign be retained as the Legion's color.

The resolution urged the Legion's Dominion command to "take early action to see that the national flag of Canada is honored and displayed in an appropriate manner by members of the Royal Canadian Legion."

It was opposed by Joseph Cass of Nanaimo.

"At our Winnipeg convention last year we agreed to retain the Red Ensign as the Legion's official color," he said. "I don't think we should go back on that."

Several delegates favored retaining both flags, but the majority agreed this would be impossible.

The convention unanimously voted for an increase in the disability pension for veterans from $2,400 to $3,500—the minimum wage for an unskilled federal civil servant.

'Squalid Shemozzle' Says Briton

LONDON (Reuters) — European sports writers and fans, with Britain leading the chorus, joined today in deriding the outcome of Tuesday night's Clay-Liston fight.

Today's London papers carried banner headlines in which the key words were "stinker," "farce" and "fix."

The Geneva daily La Suisse headlined its story "Parody of a fight." The leading Paris paper France-soir said: "Boxing, already in a state of confusion in the United States, had no need of this new blow below the belt."

If the British sounded angrier than other Europeans, it may have been because millions of them had stayed up most of the night to see the fight "live" on BBC television via a special Early Bird transmission.

NURSERY SCHOOL COMPLAINANT:

John-John Punched My Nose-Nose

NEW YORK (AP)—John F. Kennedy Jr., four-year-old son of the late president, has been attending nursery classes since February at a private school run by Roman Catholic laymen just off Fifth Avenue, it was disclosed today.

"He's a great kid and likes school very much," a source at St. David's School said.

Asked if John's school chums are aware he is the late president's son, the source said: "No, I don't think so. They're four-year-olds."

John's enrolment at St. David's was first brought to light by the New York Herald Tribune with this anecdote in today's editions:

"The new boy punched me in the nose," the four-year-old boy told his mother on coming home from nursery school the other day.

"Oh," said his mother, "I didn't know there was a new boy. Who is he?"

"I don't know," said her son. "He says his name is John Kennedy."

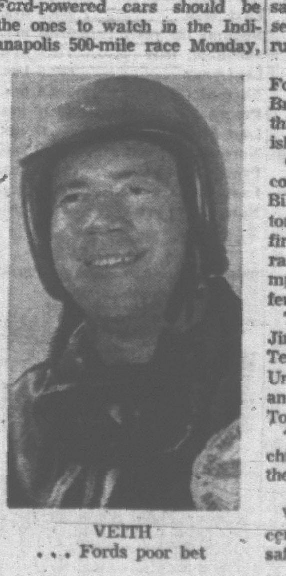
FOSTER REAL THREAT SAYS VETERAN 500-MILER

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Ford-powered cars should be the ones to watch in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Monday, but veteran driver Bob Veith says his rear-engine Offenhauser will beat them in the long run.



VEITH
. . . Fords poor bet

"I'm not worried about the Fords," said Veith, of Fort Bragg, Calif. "Actually, I don't think many of them will finish."

One of the four drivers Veith considers his chief rivals is Billy Foster, 24-year-old Victoria car salesman who became first Canadian to qualify for the race when he averaged 158.416 mph in his rear-engined Offenhauser May 16.

The others are Offey driver Jim McElreath of Arlington, Tex.; and Novi drivers Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., and Jim Hurtubise of North Tonawanda, N.Y.

"I think they have the machinery to go competitive for the full race," Veith said.

Veith was in Victoria in December, 1963, to participate in a safe driving campaign jointly sponsored by The Times. He gave lectures at several schools in Greater Victoria and up-Island.

Cost of Frost Said $8 Million

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Veteran fruit growers say the government will have to pump at least $8,000,000 into the Okanagan Valley if the fruit industry is to survive last winter's crippling frosts.

Soft fruit trees — apricots, cherries and peaches—were first hit in the third week of December when the temperature dropped to 15 below on a night of high wind.

In March the few trees struggling through that first onslaught were wiped out by a 10 above temperature that destroyed every bud.

The total damage has not yet been tallied but it is already around the $10,000,000 mark.

LOOKS FINE

To the unskilled eye the Okanagan looks its usual late spring normal, green and lush. The practiced eye sees acres of devastation where branches which should be carrying fresh-formed fruit stand bare in the sun.

Veteran grower W. O. June of Naramata, nine miles north of Penticton on the east side of Okanagan lake, says assistance from the provincial government must come soon in the form of cash, or complete ruin will follow.

"There will be a few cherries from the south this year, but no peaches, apricots and a very light crop of prune plums," he said when interviewed last week.

The government has offered Okanagan growers aid in the form of new trees up to $1,000 and long-term low interest loans up to $5,000.

"It sounds great," said Mr June. "But a new tree costs $1.50 each. A man with 10 acres would need $1,500 for new trees alone. After that it would cost him at least $1,000 to remove the old trees and the estimated cost of re-planting at 75 cents a tree. In addition it costs roughly $200 per acre annually to keep an orchard in good shape.

"And this does not even take into consideration his loss of revenue during the five years it takes for a peach tree to bear a crop."

A grower with 10 acres—the minimum economic fruit growing unit—normally sells his crop for between $8,000 and $12,000, the price being dependent on variety and quality.

INCOME ZERO

This year, and for the next five years, his income will be zero.

With each agricultural dollar turning over at least four times in the community the total business loss to the central and south Okanagan will be $40,000,000.

That loss is already being felt.

"Those frosts ruined two of the Okanagan's biggest industries," he said. "The fruit industry and unemployment insurance payments."

Mr. Currie was talking of the common Okanagan practice where fruit growers' wives work in the packing houses and canneries during the harvest to earn money and obtain enough employment to qualify for UIC payments. Both incomes are usually required to obtain a living income.

LAYOFFS

"Already men who have worked in packing houses for 20 years are being laid off for the first time in their lives," Mr. Currie said. "It's pretty obvious what's going to happen, or rather what isn't going to happen, later on. There will be little or no work in the packing houses so there will be no supplemental incomes. It's going to be a rough year for everyone."

On Penticton's main street the credit manager of a large department store said the "rough time" was already here.

"Normally at this time of the year we know that people behind in their payments will catch up in the summer months," she said. "This year we know they can't and have no hope of doing so. I'm not looking forward to the rest of this year at all."

Sid Godber, publisher and editor of the monthly magazine "The B.C. Orchardist" and a resident of the Okanagan for 20 years, said he has never seen things so bad and a future so bleak.

HAD 2 ACRES

"I can hardly be classed a grower because all I have is two acres of peaches," he told me, adding: "I should say all I had was two acres of peaches. This year I have nothing, not a blossom, not a bud. Last year I picked about four tons and made about $500. This year I have a few scraggly green leaves and the tragedy is, of course, that the trees are gone. It isn't just a matter of losing a crop, that would be bad enough, it's a matter of losing everything for the next five years at least."

The answer if the fruit industry is to survive?

"A hefty grant with no strings attached, immediately," says Mr. Godber. "Plus re-planting assistance, plus long term loans interest free until the first commercial crop comes off the new trees.

"And the provision should be added that only growers with 10-acres or more should get the re-planting aid and the long long term loans. Those, like myself, who want to grow fruit just ass a sideline, should not be classed with the commercial grower who depends on his crop for his living."

On May 31 Agriculture Minister Frank Richter travels to the Okanagan to meet in Kelowna with industry leaders. Together they will try to find a solution to the worst disaster ever to hit British Columbia's fruit bowl.

"I don't envy him," said Mrs. Geoffrey Alington who with her husband operates 35 acres at Kaleden on Skaha Lake. "But something must be done, and soon. The land-sharks are already moving in offering growers with ruined orchards cash payments for their land for real estate development. The only trouble is the money they are offering is about one third the value of the land."

DEMONSTRATIONS UPSET FOREIGN INVESTORS

MONTREAL (CP)—A French-Canadian businessman said Tuesday night that demonstrations like those that took place on Victoria Day "worry" foreign investors.

Marcel Faribault, president of the General Investment Corporation of Canada, was speaking during a panel discussion on the issue of separatism.

"It is enough to see the worry of foreign capitalists each time demonstrations like those of last night (Monday night) occur at a time when financing is to be carried out in the United States or elsewhere," Mr. Faribault said.

Another member of the panel, Raymond Barbeau, a prominent Quebec separatist, said he did not see how Quebec province's separation would affect investment here.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain exchange prices rallied in late trade today following an earlier easy tone influenced by declines on Chicago markets.

Flax became firmer in response to a broader demand and overseas inquiries, with business developing to the United Kingdom in parcel lots.

Rapeseed prices were sharply higher following the Chicago rally. There were indications of a fairly agressive demand by Japan and other countries estimated at 4,000 tons.

CHICAGO (CP) — The grain futures market rallied generally today from a brief moderate setback and in the early afternoon nearly all contracts were firm to strong.

Soybeans attracted the best support and at times were up 3½ cents a bushel from earlier lows. Brokers said the demand appeared to have included a good deal of reinstatement of long positions. It was believed to have been linked, at least partially, to a report that the Soviet Union may have expanded its involvement in the military defence of North Viet Nam against U.S. air raids.

Convicts Transferred to B.C. Pen

PRINCE ALBERT (CP)—Four convicts, who escaped from Prince Albert penitentiary and roamed this district for three days before being recaptured, have been transferred to the B.C. penitentiary at New Westminster, it was announced today.

Calgary Stamps Sign Two Veterans

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference today announced the signing of two veterans, Jim Furlong and Herman Harrison, for the 1965 season.

Furlong, a regular with the Stampeders since 1962, has consistently done the punting for the club. Harrison, former Arizona State University player, started with Stamps in 1964 and plays offensive tight-end and defensive outside linebacker.

McNamara 'War Criminal': Pravda

MOSCOW (Reuters)—U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara was branded a "war criminal" by Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, today.

In a dispatch from North Viet Nam, two Pravda reporters described American bomber crews as "McNamara's killers" and "McNamara's 'black knights'."

REVENUE MINISTER:

'No Chance' Of B.C. Bank

VANCOUVER (CP) — Revenue Minister E. J. Benson said Tuesday that Premier Bennett has no chance of getting into banking.

In an interview Mr. Benson said the premier should put his money into universities and let Ottawa look after the banks.

He said the federal government has little objection to a bank with its head office in British Columbia but is not in favor of seeing the provincial government getting involved because banking is a federal matter under the British North America Act.

Mr. Bennett's application to Parliament for a bank charter has been stalled for some time.

"One could guess that almost every business in B.C. would have to deal with a provincial bank," he said.

Asked if he meant such business would be forced into dealing with a provincial bank, he replied that provincial authorities—such as school boards—would find it necessary to deal with the bank.

Private business would likely follow because of provincial loyalty.

"The result would be that the federal government would lose control of fiscal policy, which is constitutionally a federal matter," he said.

"Because of this the provinces are not to be allowed to participate in banking."

Mr. Benson, a chartered accountant, was here to speak to service clubs.

Meanwhile, in the Senate, first reading was given to a private bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia. The sponsor, Senator J. W. deB. Farris (L—British Columbia), said he would lead off the debate today.

A similar bill was killed by the senate banking committee last session after many senators objected to proposal by the B.C. government to buy 10 per cent of the new bank's shares. The government has since introduced a revised Bank Act in The Commons that would bar all governments from investing in banks.

Second Site 'Possible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said today there may be a second Soviet installation in the vicinity of Hanoi, North Viet Nam, armed with what he termed missile-associated equipment.

He told a press conference this represents a deepening of the Soviet involvement in support of Communist North Viet Nam.

Rusk did not go into details, however, when asked about reports that there are more than one surface-to-air missile installations near the North Vietnamese capital.

But he acknowledged that "there may be a second site in the immediate Hanoi area."

Legion Votes For Leaf Flag

They voted in favor of substituting the new Canadian Maple Leaf flag, reversing their previous decision on this issue.

They also reversed a resolution from the Nanaimo and North Vancouver Island zone of the Royal Canadian Legion that the Red Ensign be retained as the Legion's color.

The resolution urged the Legion's Dominion command to "take early action to see that the national flag of Canada is honored and displayed in an appropriate manner by members of the Royal Canadian Legion."

It was opposed by Joseph Cass of Nanaimo.

"At our Winnipeg convention last year we agreed to retain the Red Ensign as the Legion's official color," he said. "I don't think we should go back on that."

Several delegates favored retaining both flags, but the majority agreed this would be impossible.

Blackest Night, Says Farr

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When St. Bernadine, the "father of boxing," died in the 13th century, the sport died with him for more than 400 years until the English revived it.

Tuesday night, cries of "fix," "fake," "fraud" were heard in many theatres in Canada and the United States when heavyweight champion Cassius Clay knocked out Sonny Liston with a "phantom punch" in the first round.

The controversial knockout at Lewiston, Me., left a nasty cloud over boxing for the umpteenth time in the last decade, and once again the sport's obituary is being written.

The heavyweight division is the key to boxing's success. When it dies so does the rest of the sport—little by little.

But then along comes another heavyweight match and the prospects of a big purse—and the sport is "revived" until the next time.

And there are potential matches for Clay, against Floyd Patterson or George Chuvalo of Toronto, that could air the boxing arenas once more. For television provides fantastic purses in heavyweight championship matches and as long as it does the corpse at least will remain warm.

REACTION CRITICAL

In London, British heavyweight champion Henry Cooper watched the fight beamed by Early Bird satellite. He commented:

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. London time. It drew wry comments from two former British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to Joe Louis when the Brown Bomber was world heavyweight champion, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing, and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former world middleweight champion, said:

Foster 'Threat' Veteran Warns

VEITH
. . . Fords poor bet

FOSTER
. . . one of four

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The Ford-powered cars should be the ones to watch in the Indianapolis 500-mile race Monday, but veteran driver Bob Veith says his rear-engine Offenhauser will beat them in the long run.

"I'm not worried about the Fords," said Veith, of Fort Bragg, Calif. "Actually, I don't think many of them will finish."

One of the four drivers Veith considers his chief rivals is Billy Foster, 24-year-old Victoria car salesman who became first Canadian to qualify for the race when he averaged 158.416 mph in his rear-engined Offenhauser May 16.

The others are Offey driver Jim McElreath of Arlington, Tex.; and Novi drivers Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., and Jim Hurtubise of North Tonawanda, N.Y.

"I think they have the machinery to go competitive for the full race," Veith said.

Veith was in Victoria in December, 1963, to participate in a safe driving campaign jointly sponsored by The Times. He gave lectures at several schools in Greater Victoria and up-Island.

RCMP Shoot Man After Dog Slain

Police said today no charges have been laid against Alison Malcolm Martin, an official of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. at Trail, who was shot in the forearm and thigh after a police dog was killed in a burst of buckshot.

Police said he was shot Tuesday by Const. Robert Stephens, a dog master.

They said two RCMP officers went to Martin's home early Tuesday after being told that another man had been ordered out of the house at knifepoint.

RCMP said the two officers were driven from the front door at gunpoint and called for additional officers from Trail and Nelson.

They said Supt. Stevenson looked into a closed stairway to the third floor and found himself facing a man with a shotgun. He backed away and the dog, which had been ordered to attack, was shot as she leaped at the man, they said.

Const. Stephens then fired twice at the man, wounding him in the forearm and leg, police said.

RCMP said they then seized the shotgun, which had one charge in it with the hammer cocked.

'TAKING CASH WITHOUT PROVIDING REAL FIGHT'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Bob Summitt, legal counsel for the World Boxing Association, described Cassius Clay's first-round knockout of Sonny Liston as "a farce and a fraud."

"Tonight was another good example of taking money from the public without giving them a real fight," Summitt said Tuesday night.

'Squalid Shemozzle' British Name for It

Today's London papers carried banner headlines in which the key words were "stinker," "farce" and "fix."

The Geneva daily La Suisse headlined its story "Parody of a fight." The leading Paris paper France-soir said: "Boxing, already in a state of confusion in the United States, had no need of this new blow below the belt."

If the British sounded angrier than other Europeans, it may have been because millions of them had stayed up most of the night to see the fight "live" on BBC television via a special Early Bird transmission.

BENNETT VISITS JAPAN ROYALTY

TOKYO (Reuters) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, accompanied by five provincial ministers, was received today by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko at their palace in Tokyo.

The British Columbians flew into Tokyo Monday on an 11-day economic mission to seek expanded trade and economic relations with Japan.

This afternoon they were to visit a camera company and three electric appliance makers in Tokyo.

Thursday they will meet Japan's trade minister, Yoshio Sakurauchi.

The visitors already have conferred with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and other leading government officials.

They are scheduled Thursday to visit western Japanese industrial cities for a four-day inspection trip. They will return home June 3.

NURSERY SCHOOL COMPLAINANT:

John-John Punched Nose-Nose

NEW YORK (AP)—John F. Kennedy Jr., four-year-old son of the late president, has been attending nursery classes since February at a private school run by Roman Catholic laymen just off Fifth Avenue, it was disclosed today.

"He's a great kid and likes school very much," a source at St. David's School said.

Asked if John's school chums are aware he is the late president's son, the source said: "No, I don't think so. They're four-year-olds."

John's enrolment at St. David's was first brought to light by the New York Herald Tribune with this anecdote in today's editions:

"The new boy punched me in the nose," the four-year-old boy told his mother on coming home from nursery school the other day.

"Oh," said his mother, "I didn't know there was a new boy. Who is he?"

"I don't know," said her son. "He says his name is John Kennedy."

LONDON (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy and her two children left for home today after a two-week visit to Britain. They came for the dedication of the Runnymede Memorial to president Kennedy and stayed on for a holiday in London.

'KO Punch Hit Like Wet Towel'

NEW YORK (CP) — Sport writers at ringside generally agree that the world heavyweight boxing championship bout between Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston Tuesday night was an atrocity.

"The fight to end all fights."

There was much doubt, too, about the punch Clay threw—a "phantom right" Cassius said—and the time of the knockout, announced as one minute of the first round.

"The first punch thrown by the champion was a short nearly invisible right hand that landed on Liston's jaw," wrote Jesse Abramson of The Herald Tribune. "It was his only real punch—after running, backing and ducking from Liston's determined pursuit."

NOT MUCH POWER

Robert Lipsyte of the New York Times also noted that the punch was a short right hand that "did not seem to have knockout power."

"This wildly unpredictable young man (Clay) put another strain on credulity," commented Arthur Daley of The Times. The fight "had to be seen to be believed and even then it was hard to believe."

Breslin was particularly brutal in his comments.

"Clay snapped a right hand from his hip. It was a little, loose-armed punch. But it was a short punch. Short enough to sting. It hit Liston on the side of the head like a wet towel.

"Liston went down. He went down as if he had been shot by a gun. Sonny Liston, who had never been off his feet in his life, who had fought in the ring with a broken jaw, who had kicked back at cops in the back of police stations, who had taken night sticks on the top of the head, went down onto the floor. He went down with his hands over his head, just like Jack Johnson did, and he was counted out in one minute of the worst mess in the history of all sports."

"Oh, Liston looked as if he had been hit. He looked straight across the ring and his eyes blinked and looked crazy while he wallowed on the canvas."

COULDN'T HEAR COUNT

The timekeeper's count had become lost and the referee, Jersey Joe Walcott, was busy chasing Clay to a neutral corner. While he was doing this Liston got up to one knee.

"Nobody had said 10 yet that anybody could hear," Breslin

The same planes then dropped about 12 tons of bombs on the petroleum depot at Vinh, 150 miles south of the capital. They reported that two fires started by Tuesday's strike on the same target were still burning.

VETOED BUDGET APPROVED

Sidney village council Tuesday approved its 1965 budget after it had been vetoed by chairman A. A. Cormack.

In a surprise move after the budget had been given third reading, the village chairman said he was returning the budget bylaw to council for reconsideration "because I feel it is a grave mistake."

"I feel this is another attempt to launch debit financing something that previous councils have avoided," he stated.

NO SURPLUS

He charged council had made no provision in the budget for a surplus to take care of emergencies.

He explained over a period of years the general revenue account accumulated a surplus of $27,698. This fund was used as working capital by previous councils for operating expenses until current taxes and other revenue were received.

"This surplus has now been absorbed in this year's budget as part of the $84,235 itemized for capital expenditure out of revenue," he said.

$10,000 ONLY

He urged council to transfer only $10,000 of the surplus for capital expenditure out of revenue and to return $17,698 for emergencies.

"In view of the uncertainty at the present moment as to the future of the village in the present controversy of incorporation (North Saanich), I feel this is most important," he said.

"BLOCKING"

Comm. Andrias Boas pointed out the village had a surplus to take care of emergencies.

"We have $9,000 taxes in arrears," he said.

Too old to buy insurance?

Here's an example. A man age 75 has a substantial number of investments. At death, estate taxes will have to be paid. To raise the cash, income-producing assets have to be sold, often with severe losses to the beneficiaries. Life insurance can prevent this loss by providing the necessary cash.

Manufacturers Life has a sound reputation for its liberal approach to insuring older people for the purpose of estate conservation or for guaranteeing the continuity of a business. Our representatives are qualified to provide competent counsel to help our senior citizens meet these special needs.
